The Sydney Morning Herald.

No. 23,285. Registered at the General Post Office, Sydney, for transmission by post as a Newspaper.

SYDNEY, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1912.

22 PAGES. PRICE 1d.

SUMMARY.

The general condition of the German Emperor has improved.

The wreath sent by the King and Queen for the late General Booth was inscribed "a mark of regard and high esteem."

Disastrous floods have occurred in England. Trains are held up, and wheat fields are ruined.

More rain has fallen in England during the current month than in any August within living memory.

The birth-rate in England and Wales for the quarter was 2.7 below the average in the 10 preceding years.

The death-rate was 1.7 below the average of the 10 preceding similar periods, and was also the lowest on record.

Canada is preparing to register a vigorous protest against the Panama Canal Bill.

The Cabinet is reported to be planning retaliatory measures.

Newspaper comments in Berlin regarding the bill largely coincide with the British comments.

The journals refer to the serious injury with which German shipping is threatened.

In the hydro-aeroplane race from Saint Malo to Jersey and back four of the competitors finished. Several machines fell into the sea.

The Board of Trade makes it a misdemeanour not to proceed to the relief of a vessel in distress when it is possible to do so.

A Nationalist party has been formed in Peking. A network of railways is to be constructed within 10 years.

Another plot has been discovered in Egypt.

A man who was arrested at Alexandria had in his possession documents inciting to rebellion.

Three arrests have been made in Cairo in connection with seditious placards.

The Powers have made energetic representations to the King and Government of Montenegro in the frontier troubles.

King Nicholas has replied that he will do nothing contrary to the wishes of the Powers. He expresses the hope that the Powers will settle the dispute in the interests of order and peace.

The "Times" eulogises the lead given by Australia and New Zealand to other Dominions in practical measures for defence.

A terrific cyclone swept over Grenfell on Monday evening, and a number of houses were wrecked.

The cyclone lasted only about five minutes, but thousands of pounds worth of damage was done.

The business of Anthony Horderns and Sons has been formed into a limited company, with a capital of £2,500,000.

A start is to be made at the end of the week with the work of rearranging the wharfage at Circular Quay.

The sheds on the E. and A. Wharf are to be removed, and new ferry wharfs and buildings erected.

It is expected that the Lane Cove ferry traffic will be removed to the new wharfs in a month or two.

In the Assembly Mr. M'Farlane moved that the Crown Lands Act be amended so as to do away with residence conditions.

He contended that the object aimed at in the residence conditions—the prevention of dummying—had not been attained.

Mr. Beeby thought the general principle of the motion was a mistake. The debate was adjourned.

The Premier gave notice of the introduction of a bill to regulate the motor traffic.

The Minister for Agriculture is waiting for an opportunity to introduce a bill dealing with the water hyacinth pest.

A bill granting the Parliamentary franchise in time for the City Council elections is to be proceeded with.

The Government was asked to expedite the building of houses at Daceyville.

"We are pushing on with the buildings as fast as we can get material," replied the Treasurer.

Mr. Cohen was ejected during a debate on a motion in favour of hospitals receiving financial support from the Government.

The Minister for Works announced in the Assembly that Mr. Hanna had been appointed to the Public Service Board.

Mr. Carmichael made available yesterday the official notes of the Stock Exchange deputation in reference to the Gas Bill.

The Minister, in his reply, said the object of the bill was to be fair to the companies, while regulating their operations.

The business of the metropolitan police courts is to be carried out from Monday next on an entirely new plan.

This will apply more particularly to the Central and Water Courts, but some of the suburban courts will be affected.

The Premier was questioned in the Assembly yesterday in reference to the Griffith inquiry commission.

"As to what has become of the commission, that is for the commissioner to report," was Mr. M'Gowen's reply.

The council of the Sydney Chamber of Commerce will start on a vigorous campaign next week to increase the membership.

The Town Clerk of Sydney, in his annual report, severely condemns the telephone service, which he thinks is "the worst in the world."

Mr. Nesbitt points out the advantages of the automatic system, and recommends its adoption.

The Federal Government has appointed Dr. F. Watson editor of "The Historical Records of Australia."

The case of the claimants was closed in the matter of the Marine Engineers and the Steamship Owners' Association.

For the respondents it was argued that there was no evidence to show that there was any dispute in the interstate trade.

The exhibition of work by the Women's Handicrafts Club was opened at Admiralty House yesterday.

Lady Chelmsford hoped that Sydney might achieve something equal to the Sutherland School of Needlework in London.

The hearing of the Vend case appeal was resumed yesterday in the High Court.

Counsel for the appellant analysed the shipping agreement, and argued that there was no evidence that anyone had suffered.

A Bill has been introduced in the New Zealand House of Representatives for the reform of the Public Service.

It is proposed to place the service under the control of an independent commissioner, with two assistant commissioners.

The Tailors and Tailoresses' Union at Broken Hill has rejected the proposed wages board.

The new co-operative tailoring establishment starts on Saturday, and the strike commences to-day.

Mrs. Rebecca Isaacs, mother of Mr. Justice Isaacs, died at Auburn (Vic.) yesterday, in her 84th year.

The distance on the original survey of the proposed Glen Innes-Inverell railway line has been reduced by eight miles.

The Minister has decided to have the new line permanently surveyed.

An effort is to be made to establish the Norwegian whaling industry at either Jervis Bay or some other port.

A miner named H. Whiting was killed in the Sea Pit colliery, Newcastle, by the explosion of a charge.

Complaint is made of the overcrowding of trains on the Southern line.

The Premier in the Assembly denied the report that Mr. Holman was to be appointed Agent-General.

The waiters, messengers, and minor officers of the Assembly have been placed under the control of the Speaker.

Weakness was shown all round on 'Change yesterday. Australian Gas receded in value.

In mining stocks silver shares commanded most attention, and a fair amount of business was recorded.

Forecast.—Fine in western districts, but still cloudy with scattered showers and thunder elsewhere, chiefly in eastern and south-eastern parts, cool generally.

LADIES' SMART HOSIERY MUST BE OF SILK.

"She'd stockings by the dozen—silk
And open-work, and of that ilk,
As delicate and white as milk."

JUST SUCH AS YOU BUY

AT FARMER'S.

Every fashionably-dressed woman—or almost every one—wears Silk Hose, first because the present style of dress (well clear of the ground) demands a smart stocking, and secondly because there are comfort and softness in Silk Stockings, so that, like somebody's soap—once used always used.

And the latest and smartest styles are at Farmer's, including Black Silk with coloured embroidery, Shot Silk, Silk with Coloured Clocks, White Silk with Clocks, Silk with Lace Ankles, etc., etc.

NOVEL SHIRT NOTIONS

AT MURDOCH'S.

THE NEW ART CRINKLED PLEATED SHIRT.

If it's a novelty it's at Murdoch's—and this is absolutely the neatest and smartest notion in Shirtdom. These are NOT the common or garden pleated shirts. These are both crinkled and pleated in truly distinctive designs. The crinkling is permanent too—it's worked—not "freaked" on by chemical process.

THIS NIFTY SHIRT NOVELTY, MURDOCH'S PRICE, 5/6.

MURDOCH'S UNFADABLE SHIRTS, GOLF OR TOURIST STYLE, 4/6.

We have these shirts in all the new art shades, harmonious combinations of browns, blues, greens, also pleasing self-colours and white. You'll like these shirts—they're very toney and right up to the knocker as regards comfort and service.

A MENTAL AND MORAL TONIC.

ACCORDING to the DICTUM of an old-world MEDICAL SPECIALIST, a CHANGE of CLOTHING is a POWERFUL MENTAL and MORAL Tonic, and the PSYCHOLOGICAL and PHYSICAL effect of an EARLY-MORNING TUB and a SHAVE is MOST MARKED.

ANTHONY HORDERNS' Ready-to-wear CLOTHING has a STYLE which STAMPS it as UNIQUE, and

ANTHONY HORDERNS'

FAMOUS LOW PRICES

MAKE it an EASY matter for MANKIND to TURN OUT smartly DRESSED, and reap the STIMULATIVE BENEFIT of a NEW suit; likewise, these PHENOMENAL PRICE-PRUNERS reduce the COST of SAFETY RAZORS as well as the FAVOURITE OLD-STYLE RAZORS and SHAVING outfits.

GEM JUNIOR SAFETY RAZOR.

The GEM JUNIOR SAFETY RAZOR solves the problem for the man with a tender skin. It is unequalled for easy and luxurious Shaving, and does not scrape nor pull.

The GEM JUNIOR SAFETY RAZOR, with the New Bar, adds still further to the EFFICIENCY of this popular Safety Razor. The GEM JUNIOR provides a KEEN BLADE for EVERY day in the week. Every Blade automatically adjusts itself, and as the BLADE does the shaving it is the first consideration.

GEM JUNIOR BLADES are made from the best Razor Steel, tempered by a process patented by the Gem Cutlery Co. (the oldest makers of Safety Razors) that provides a keen, lasting edge.

After using GEM JUNIOR BLADES several times, they may be stropped—the steel is superior, the temper and edge so fine, that stropping makes them as good as ever.

The New Bar smoothes out the creases of the skin, raises the beard just ahead of the cutting edge, and makes perfect shaving a simple matter.

The GEM JUNIOR SAFETY RAZOR is made and finished in the BEST STYLE of the BEST materials, and by the best workmanship. It comprises Nickel-plated Frame, extra handle for Stropping Blades, and Seven KEEN-EDGED BLADES, packed in neat case.

BY POST, 5/3.
Extra Blades for the GEM JUNIOR RAZOR, Packet of 7, 2/; by post, 2/1.

GEM PALACE SAFETY RAZOR.

An EDITION DE LUXE of the GEM JUNIOR. Handsomely finished, triple silver plate, with 12 Special Blades for heavy beards. The GEM PALACE makes an ideal present for any man.

PRICE, 12/6; by post, 13/.

GEM STROPPING MACHINE, specially designed for the GEM JUNIOR SAFETY RAZOR. It can be used with any strop. The operation is simple, the handle is automatically adjusted to the correct angle, and a keen edge is speedily restored to the dullest blades.

Price, 5/; by post, 5/4.
Extra Blades, 2/3, packet of 6; by post, 2/4.

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR.

The advantage of the GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR is the ease and rapidity with which shaving is accomplished.

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR, in handsome E.P. Pocket Case, complete with 12 Blades, 17/6.

CURLEY IDEAL SAFETY.

Men who use the CURLEY IDEAL SAFETY RAZOR will have no other. It is, the manufacturers claim, the only Razor made that permits correct shaving with safety—that is, the sliding diagonal stroke from point to heel or heel to point.

The CURLEY IDEAL looks like an ordinary Razor, strops in the same way, has the same feel, takes as great a sweep, but, in addition, permits of the sliding diagonal stroke with absolute safety.

OUR PRICE, 7/6; BY POST, 7/9.
EXTRA BLADES, PRICE 3/ EACH.

The CURLEY PEERLESS SAFETY RAZOR is the result of half a century's study of the Razor question. The guard is made wedge shape, making the sliding diagonal stroke safe and easy. Complete in case, with 5 Blades, 10/6.

CURLEY PEERLESS BLADES, Packet of 5, Price 2/9.

STAR SAFETY STROPPING MACHINES, for STAR Blades, 6/9 and 9/.

VALENTINE to (Gloria): You're a prig—a feminine prig: that what you are. . . .

GLORIA: . . . . I have many faults—very serious faults—of character and temper, but if there's one thing I am not, it is what you call a prig.

VALENTINE: Oh, yes, you are. My reason tells me so. My knowledge tells me so; my experience tells me so.

GLORIA: Excuse my reminding you that your reason and your knowledge and your experience are not infallible.

VALENTINE: I must believe them. Unless you wish me to believe my eyes, my heart, my instincts, my imagination, which are all telling me the most monstrous lies about you.

GLORIA: Lies!

VALENTINE: Yes, lies. Do you expect me to believe that you are the most beautiful woman in the world?

GLORIA: That is ridiculous, and rather personal.

VALENTINE: Of course, it's ridiculous. Well, that's what my eyes tell me.

FRA DIAVOLO.
An Adaptation of Auber's Masterpiece.

A 25,000-DOLLAR PRODUCTION.

This production shows FRA DIAVOLO at work and at play, his plots and his schemes. He is shown flattering beautiful women, learning their secrets, and plotting to rob them. He stops at nothing. Reputations of virtuous ladies, happiness of sweethearts and husbands, the lives of men—he sacrifices them all to achieve his despicable ends. Death overtakes him, however. The long arm of Justice reaches out, and he pays the penalty for his many crimes by a violent death. He is thrown from a precipice 2000ft above sea level.

LAST NIGHT, LAST NIGHT,
SPENCER'S EXCLUSIVE VITAGRAPH LIFE PORTRAYAL,
"FORTUNES OF A COMPOSER."

Fortune often knocks at the door when Death has closed it for ever. . . . The lights are put out, and the cold hand of death closes the old man's eyes, and he awakes in Heaven, with the strains of his own music blending with those of the choirs above.

KIRKBY LUNN CONCERTS.

PAINTING THE LILY!

"It is late in the day to be praising a singer of such transcendent power, vocal, musical, and intellectual, as Madame Kirkby Lunn. Her reputation needs no attestation of ours and TO PRAISE HER IS TO PAINT THE LILY."
—"Liverpool Courier," 7/12/'11.

KIRKBY LUNN,
KIRKBY LUNN,
GREATEST DRAMATIC CONTRALTO OF OUR TIME.

Richly endowed by Nature with distinctive gifts, Soul, Temperament, Commanding Personality, True Musicianship. Rare Interpretative Power, and
"A VOICE OF PURPLE VELVET SHOT WITH GOLD."
Who TRANSCENDS IN VERSATILITY
all the other Stars
in the same luminous cluster as herself.
PRE-EMINENT IN OPERA AND ORATORIO, SUPERB
IN BALLADS, CHANSONS, AND ARIAS.

HER FIRST AUSTRALIAN CONCERT, given in the Melbourne Town Hall on Saturday Evening last, to a house packed in every part, was acclaimed on all sides as
THE ARTISTIC TRIUMPH OF THE YEAR.

MADAME KIRKBY LUNN brings with her supporting artists of such eminence that they will undoubtedly prove one of the MOST DISTINGUISHED CONCERT COMBINATIONS
that have yet visited Australia.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The proposal made last Friday at the biennial meeting of the National Council of Women to change the constitution is one of the most encouraging signs we have had from the council for some time. For it speaks of health and growth, and the need of more scope for development.

For eighteen years the council has worked, and worked well, on its old constitution; but during the past year or so there has been a growing feeling amongst many women that the time has now come for branching out, and for altering the regulations, so that more women can take part in the activity of the council. Eighteen years ago the number of women anxious to share in such work was small, but each year sees more and more women taking an active interest in all kinds of public affairs, and if the national council is to be the useful meeting-ground where women of all ideas and aims can forgather and compare notes, and unite their efforts in a common cause, it must broaden its bounds so as to take in all who wish to enter. Under the old regulation thousands of women have been members of the council because they belong to the societies which are affiliated; but the number who are actively engaged in the work of the council is by no means a fair proportion. Under the suggested alterations there will be far greater incentive for women to join independently as associates, and many a woman who is at present debarred from the meetings because she is not the delegate from a society will be able to attend and take a personal interest in the proceedings. It is absurd to expect a sustained and intelligent interest from women who are allowed no active share in the work, and the only way to hold members is to give them something to do.

The Victorian National Council has recognised this fact, with the most excellent results; and at the recent interstate conference it was impossible not to see that there were many points to be learned from the southern council. And, perhaps, there is no healthier sign than the fact that our local council is so ready to borrow what is best from the Victorian constitution. The Melbourne women had the good fortune to profit by our experience, and now in turn the older council can learn from the younger. It is most gratifying to find that the New South Wales council is so free from petty provincialism that it is quite ready to follow the lead of another State when that lead is a good one. It is surely a proof of a true national spirit, and of a real desire to go forward.

And the National Council of New South Wales could have no better opportunity than the present to go forward. In Lady Chelmsford it has a strong president, who is deeply interested in the work, and who brings to the position a great deal of valuable help. Under her leadership it should be possible for the National Council to become one of the strongest forces in our public life. But it is only by so extending the bounds, that all women who are actively interested in public affairs may take a share in its proceedings, that the council can truly earn its right to the title of the National Council of Women.

As Lady Chelmsford said in her presidential address on Friday, there is no disloyalty in the present proposal to alter the constitution. But, while appreciating the value of all that has been done in the past, and giving full recognition to the useful work of the original members, the fact must be faced that nothing in nature can stand still, and if a body does not wish to go back it must go forward.

THE MOUNTAIN GULLY.

The top of the gully is not very interesting with its straggling gums and seeding wattles. A few blue and white and yellow orchids sprinkled over the grass give a joyous note; here and there a clump of deep pink boronia glowing against the grey rocks, and a solitary snow bush shines from the undergrowth. But dear as these brave flowers are, they give no hint of the beauty in the valley beneath.

An easy scramble down the rocks brings us to the creek bed, and at once the pageant begins. On every side are great clumps of gorgeous brown and golden pea flower. It is one of the bossiaeas, a kind we do not find in our familiar Sydney haunts, and it almost takes away our breath to see these great bushes stretching their wealth of blossom right above our heads. We stand in silent admiration before its beauty.

"Come on," says the Mountain Girl; "there are better things than that down the gully." So we follow her through the tangle of grass, and fern, and thickly-growing Christmas bush to see what better things the gully can display. The first thing that bids us stay is a group of waratahs, growing straight up from the black earth in their majestic fashion. The long stems are each crowned with a big pink bud, a generous promise of the red beauty to come. Behind the waratahs festoons of hardenbergia make a purple background that is fitting for the regal flowers.

"Ah, the waratah ought to be our national flower," says someone.

"Wait a while," says the Mountain Girl, with a knowing smile. "Perhaps you won't say that in a minute."

She leads us forth once more, across the little stream, and round a bend of the gully. "What do you say to that?" she asks triumphantly.

But we have nothing to say. The sight before us takes away our breath and holds us spell-bound. On every side the bush is aglow with the loveliest of lovely wattles; not the big tree kind, but tall, slender, feathery bushes, which wave their golden burdens in the light spring breeze. It is a most fascinating wattle, and truly Australian in the changeableness of its foliage, which varies from soft feathery fern-like branchlets to the ordinary plain leaves, while here and there a cluster of dead leaves makes a vivid orange splash amongst the green.

It would be worth going many a mile just to see those flower-laden wattle trees. But Nature is in a spendthrift mood this spring. Over and across and in and out of the golden blossoms she has flung trails and trails of the hardenbergia; the purple blooms run riot amidst the gold. No artist would dare to plan such a colour scheme. No weaver could ever hope to weave such a cloth of gold; but Nature, the prodigal and daring, has flung the flowers in a medley, and the result is perfection.

We push our way amongst the wattles, breathing in the sweetness and laughing to see the yellow dust brushing our hair and our shoulders. And the Mountain Girl leads us onward till the trail suddenly ends at the edge of a mountain-pool, where the lovely green wattles bend towards the grey-green water, and tall tea-trees stand protectingly behind.

We have all long since exhausted our words of admiration, and a long-drawn "oh!" is all that we can say.

Then someone cries, "Oh, you lovely, lovely things. There is nothing to come near [illegible]."

And we all agree as we wend our way back through the golden maze, that, though the waratah is regal, and we love it, there is nothing that makes one glow with joy in one's own land like the sight and scent of a [illegible] in flower.

FASHION AS SHE IS.

Girls' frocks have rarely been simpler than they are at present. The schoolroom miss no longer cavils at the simplicity of her toilette when she sees her elder sister wearing a similar one contentedly.

Taffeta gowns for maids are seen. They are befrilled and beruched in a quaint and old-fashioned manner. This light-weight material is very charming, and adapts itself to the style of the day. A becoming frock with ruchings for the trimming was both distinctive in line and treatment. The blouse was made with the new sleeve sewn into the armholes, with puffs below the elbow, and finished with frills. Narrow ruchings were used for decorating the neck and sleeve edges of the blouse, which gave a quaint and pretty effect. The skirt was cut in two pieces, with a seam at each side, and was trimmed with double ruches gathered at the centre over cords.

Another rather dressy and girlish model was in taffeta silk, in a beautiful shade of new blue. The skirt was made in three pieces that lapped over to the panels of heavy lace. It was finished at the hem with a broad taffeta ruching. The heavy lace trimmed the bodice and also the cuffs. A trimming of buttons and simulated buttonholes helped to form part of the decoration on the skirt and bodice. A heavy twisted cord of the silk finished the waist-line.

Semi-princess gowns are among the smart makes for young girls. They are seen in the softest materials—voiles, foulards, marquisettes, or any other seasonable thin material. Tucked and bordered cotton crepes are also among the materials worn. They are soft and clinging fabrics, and look very well indeed on the slender and rounded figures. The new sponge or towelling cloth must not be forgotten. This likable material is seen made up in every conceivable way—frocks, coats and skirts, and little dinner gowns.

Many small buttons are used on the frocks for maids. Sometimes they are of a contrasting colour, or are in harmony with the trimming or the material itself.

Laces and embroideries are used in just as great a quantity on young maids' frocks as on the gowns of grown-ups. Some of these lacy dresses are very girlish and sweet. A charming example was carried out in white cotton voile, and it took the long straight lines prescribed by fashion. The skirt was trimmed with rows of fine lace insertion above a rather large tuck. The bodice had tiny tucks over the shoulder, giving it a becoming fulness. Fine lace insertion helped to trim the bodice, the square neck and elbow sleeves being finished with the lace. A soft white satin sash tied in a straight bow with long ends at the back gave quite an elegant appearance.

Another example was fashioned of embroidered flouncing. The style is both dainty and practical. The material makes its own finish, and reduces labour to the minimum, while it is also attractive in effect. The body portion of the dress is made from plain material to match the upper part of the flouncing.

Fine beading is arranged over the seams and over the sleeve edges. The white crystal buttons help to decorate the bodice. The sleeves can be made long or elbow-length, and the neck is finished with a dainty lace collar. The rather high waist line is finished with broad beading insertion, and threaded with soft satin ribbon, tied on the side in a large knot, with long ends. A bunch of pale pink and blue satin rosebuds thrust into the waist gives the necessary finishing touch to this pretty dress.

Simple frocks are seen in French ginghams. A white checked with pink had scallops worked with pink thread and pink dots, outlined with black. The scallops also show a single thread of black darned through the centre. The whole is most attractive and smart in the combination of colours. A plain pink collar gives a specially dainty touch. The blouse and skirt are both closed at the side of the front, and are joined by means of a black patent leather belt. A frock of this kind could be made of linen, and would be equally nice.

The choice of frocks for evening wear is something of a problem, and the modern young Miss, if she does not expect the same supply of party frocks as her older sister, is no longer content to wear her confirmation dress till it is outgrown, or to appear in the same toilette night after night.

Tunic dresses are being extensively worn by young girls. They are made of soft satins, with ninon or mousseline-de-soie.

There is also a special fancy this season for the satin-finished silks, such as crepe meteors and messaline—either one would look well.

A charming yet perfectly simple frock was fashioned of messaline, combined with chiffon. The skirt was plain, made in two gores. The tunic was made of bordered and dotted chiffon, it being straight at its lower edges, and over-lapped. The blouse, made in the peasant style, was finished with a dainty fichu of the dotted chiffon, but without the border, a pleated frill of the chiffon forming the edging. The somewhat high-waisted line was finished with a twisted silk cord, ending on the left side with a large soft satin rose.

Embroidered white net makes charming frocks for parties and dances. A pretty idea is to have the tunic banded with lace and edged with fringe. The skirt would look well finished with a ruche. A soft lace fichu, forming the trimming on the bodice, and small pleated frills of the lace edging the short sleeves would make a dainty and girlish effect.

Fascinating as are the claims of the frocks for day and evening wear, the millinery for spring wear is just as alluring. Some of the hats to be worn by the "maids" are indeed charming. Hats of taffeta, Pedal, and Leghorn straws are seen. They all fit well on the head, and are most becoming to the young faces. Ribbon trimming is favoured a great deal, also flowers, many small flowers being seen in closely woven wreaths. The dainty collar and cuff sets are again to the fore, and are especially becoming to the young girl. Some of the cuffs extend half-way to the elbow, and are tumbler shaped; that is to say, they increase in width very gradually from the wrist upward, and at the band edge are finished with a turnover, matching that on the collar. If a touch of colour is desired with a collar and cuff frock the lawn or linen or lace may be embroidered with a coloured silk.

CARE OF THE CASSEROLE.

Everyone who has tasted meat cooked in a casserole prefers it to the ordinary saucepan stew; but many housewives hesitate about investing in casseroles on account of the expense. It is true that the initial cost is more than that of an enamel saucepan, for instance, but with care a casserole should outlive the ordinary saucepan. Many people do not understand the method of dealing with the earthenware utensil, and in their hands it is certainly often very short-lived. The following hints for the care of the casserole should prove very useful to many housewives:—Before using a casserole for the first time it is well to temper it. This is best done by covering it with cold water. Then letting the water come to the boiling point, remove from the fire, and let the casserole remain in the water until it is cold. Under no circumstances let the casserole be put on the stove without water or fat in it; if this is done the dish will crack. Avoid sudden changes of temperature with the casserole; that is, do not take it from the hot stove or oven and place it in cold water or in a wet sink. This will prove disastrous to the dish. Casserole cooking requires only moderate heat. If something is being cooked in the casserole at the same time that intense heat is required for something else, take the precaution of setting the casserole in a pan of water. If the cover of the casserole does not fit very closely, thus allowing steam to escape too freely, it is well to spread a strip of cloth wet with a flour and water paste, and press it over the joining of cover and casserole before setting the dish in the oven. When ready to serve, the strip is readily pulled off. In cooking anything in a casserole it is well to allow twice the time for cooking that would be required were the stew or vegetables or fruit cooked in the ordinary way.

A POOR PLAYGROUND.

"I should be very sorry to put any children of mine to play here," said Mrs. Hugh Dixson, looking round at the sloppy little paved yard and ramshackle old shed, where the Sydney Day Nursery was celebrating its annual meeting, last Monday afternoon.

Every effort had been made to make the little place as pretty as possible, and the flags and greenery had certainly worked wonders. But in spite of all, the fact remained that it was indeed a cramped little paved yard, and by no means the kind of playground a mother would choose for her little ones.

And yet it is the very best accommodation that the Day Nursery Committee can provide, and small and poor as the premises are, they are certainly an untold boon to the children of the neighbourhood. For here it is that the mothers who are obliged to go to work for the day leave their little ones, safe in the knowledge that no harm can befal them. The children, many of them babes in arms, are carefully tended, and the older ones are amused and occupied; they are fed, and, during their hours at the nursery, clothed in comfortable garments; and, in short, they receive all the care that a child should have in its own home.

And if there is not room in the tiny courtyard for the wee mites to run about and stretch their little legs and develop their little bodies, it is certainly not the fault of the committee. Nor did the critic mean to imply that it was.

At the present time it is practically impossible for any committee or small body of people to procure in crowded areas sufficient ground to carry out such work adequately. And, as Mrs. Hugh Dixson went on to say, it is surely the place of the different municipal councils to help such movements as the Day Nursery, by providing land for purposes which are of untold value to the community. It is hard to think of anything which would give such good return to a local council, and to the people at large, as an open space for the use of the little children, who have no playground but the streets. The interest on the money spent might not come in immediately, but in the long run it would be paid a hundred-fold.

The Darlington Council has set a good example by the help it has given to the Day Nursery situated within its boundary. The Mayor has taken a personal interest, and a large sum of money has been raised by local efforts. It is to be hoped that many other municipal bodies will follow this example, and that in time we shall have playgrounds and day nurseries in every suburb, where the crowded dwellings allow no open spaces and garden plots round the homes.

CITY WOMEN WORKERS AND FIRE ESCAPES.

Without being pessimistic, or desirous of prognosticating disaster, it might be well at this stage of our city's growth to deal with the matter of adequate protection in case of fire for girls and women employed in the many offices of the city and in factories. The subject is an equally important one as regards boys and men; but it is desired now to dwell upon it entirely as it relates to our girls and women employees.

It will be argued that in these days of advanced civilisation adequate provision is made. However, granting this much, one is tempted to ask the following questions:—

Are the girls and women in the various buildings familiar with the location of fire escapes, and the quickest method of reaching and using them? Is there systematic instruction of the occupants of a building—particularly of the girls and women—so that in the event of danger of the kind panic will not occur? And are the means of exit from the building safe and sufficient?

Are systematic fire drills held at regular intervals, so that all may become familiar with the different exits? It is contended that such fire drills should be held, because discipline on such occasions is of paramount importance; and those girls and women who can be relied upon should be assigned specific duties in this connection. The advantages of this are obvious.

Reference might here be made to the defects in some of the arrangements which are provided in many of our city buildings. In several cases fire escapes have been provided without reference to their proper location, their accessibility, or to the ultimate destination of the users.

Attention has recently been drawn to the fact that under one Ministry an amended Factories Act was passed providing for more effective means of escape from fire. It might not be amiss to quote the Act here:—"In addition to the usual fire escapes distinct from the stairway ordinarily in use, there shall be on every floor above the first floor means by which persons may descend from the windows." Apparently this Act has not been enforced.

In at least one building in the centre of the city none of the girls employed (mostly typists) know of any means of exit other than the ordinary stairways and elevators.

Another matter of importance is that frequent inspection should be made in order to see that the conditions for safeguarding life are maintained. In the majority of cases fire alarms are tested once a week. That in itself is not sufficient.

Fire alarms may be in perfect order, accessible exits may have been provided, but panic may not be averted if the employees know not how to avail themselves of the means of escape.

AUSTRALIANS ABROAD.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, July 26.

The High Commissioner and Lady Reid gave a large and brilliant garden party at 44 Prince's Gardens on July 16. Although this was the day on which the King visited the test match, and there were several other social events of importance elsewhere, no less than 700 were present. The guests invited included the Duke of Argyll, the Prime Minister of Canada, the Lord and Lady Mayoress, the Japanese Minister, the Argentine Minister, the Norwegian Minister, Sir Edward Poynter, Lord and Lady Darnley, Lord and Lady Linlithgow, and Lord and Lady Dudley.

Professor Warren and Mr. H. E. Barff were entertained at dinner last week by the Sydney University Wanderers. Mr. E. R. Garnsey took the chair. Amongst those present were Messrs. H. J. Deane, A. B. Piddington, F. M. Gellatly, A. W. Ross, C. H. Cropper, Drs. H. Tebbutt, W. Burfitt, C. Verge, F. Stephens, H. Priestley, Rev. H. K. Archdall, Messrs. A. R. Weigall, F. R. de Bertodano, E. Kilburn Scott, D'A. Bucknell, G. F. Davidson, Gordon Inglis, H. J. Swain, Eric M'Keown, L. H. Rogers, and S. D. Chalmers.

Mr. Robert Philp has sailed on the Mantua for a cruise in Norwegian waters.

Mrs. C. J. Manning and Miss Ruth Manning are staying at the Lizard in Cornwall. Miss Manning will shortly be visiting Norway with her sister, Mrs. A. Champion.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Anderson have gone to the east coast for the summer holidays.

Colonel Ramaciotti has been seeing the country parts of England very thoroughly by motor car. He has completed a tour in the west, and will shortly visit the eastern counties. He expects to leave for Australia in September.

Lady Stout, who for some years has been at the head of the Australian and New Zealand Women Voters' Association, is leaving for New Zealand. A farewell tea was given to her on Friday at the International Women's Franchise Club.

Captain N. G. Stewart Richardson, late A.D.C. to the Governor-General of the Commonwealth, has been posted to the 2nd Batt. Seaforth Highlanders on returning to regimental duty in England.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. G. Legge has arrived to take up his duties on the Imperial general staff.

VICTIMS OF THE CONVENTIONAL.

We've been in this house about two months. Next door is a four-roomed cottage, with nice garden and lawn in front, fruit trees and vegetable garden at the back. The family living there includes six children—four girls, two boys.

Yesterday, at the invitation of Mrs. B—— I went in for afternoon tea for the first time, and was shown into a neat little drawing-room, containing the orthodox carpet square, fancy cane chairs, lace curtains, occasional table, and a very nice piano in one corner.

After tea my hostess said, "Come along, and I'll show you through the house."

There was a dining-room, two bedrooms, kitchen, bathroom, and pantry, and, as the advertisements say, "all other conveniences." They were comfortable rooms, nicely fitted up, and fairly well furnished.

Drawing-room, dining-room, and two bedrooms! Where, I wondered, do all those children sleep?

In the front bedroom was a cot, as well as a double bed, so I presumed the four-year-old baby slept in that room with mother and father. Then that meant the remaining five shared the other bedroom. None of the rooms were more than 12 x 12, and only the drawing-room had more than one window.

Rather than do without the conventional little drawing-room, the whole family slept under, to say the least of it, most unhealthy and unpleasant conditions. Apart from the baby, the children range from a boy of 5 to the eldest girl of 17. It was not nice for a girl of that age to be the room-mate of the others, and, in any case, how much brighter and better for the girls and boys to be separate; for tastes differ, and it was no way to encourage tidy and dainty ways in young girls.

But if nothing else mattered, in the interests of health alone, the drawing-room would much better have been another bedroom.

In these days of general recognition (although not enough of us practise it) of the value of fresh air, such a room as that drawing-room becomes the greatest conventional monstrosity. The thought of five pairs of young lungs breathing the air of that one-windowed, not-over-large room makes the unessential drawing-room rather a mockery.

Mrs. B—— often complains of the trouble she has to get the children up in the mornings. But is it any wonder, remembering the heavy tainted air they are breathing during the long night? If people would only look for causes, what a difference there would often be.

Such an instance shows much has yet to be learnt of the laws of hygiene. This family was not uneducated, nor poor. The members were decent folks, and had enough of the world's goods to have provided better living conditions for themselves—if they were only prepared to sacrifice that conventional little drawing-room.

Unhappily in many cases circumstances are such in poverty-stricken families to compel children being reared under such deplorable conditions. But, thinking of Mrs. B——'s children, I often wonder when passing along suburban streets, and seeing the neat little cottages with their lace curtains, what hygienic tragedies the conventional causes inside the four walls.

It is certainly shocking that five young lives should be jeopardised for the sake of a carpet, some cane chairs, and a piano!

AT PALAMA SETTLEMENT.

The annual report of work at Palama Settlement, Honolulu, has details that may be of interest to philanthropic and health workers who are handling similar problems. This settlement still ranks as an infant among those founded on these lines for the service of humanity. Its institution dates to 1896, and the loyalty of a band of American workers. The last five years have witnessed a great increase in its scope of activity within and without its neighbourhood. This includes clubs for men and boys, for women and girls, libraries, playgrounds, kindergarten, evening classes, neighbourhood visiting, infant welfare, and model cottages. Of particular interest to us, as citizens, is the part taken by the settlement workers in the campaign for public health, and against tuberculosis. In 1906 the settlement had one dispensary attached to it; in 1911 it had six dispensaries, with nine trained nurses, and a record of 7600 cases. In the annual report on the district nursing section, we read that the city of Honolulu has been divided into six districts, each with its free dispensary and trained nurse. The nurse attends there for a certain number of hours daily, treating minor complaints, cuts, sores, etc., simple things at the time, but of possible future menace. During the balance of her time the nurse makes visits in the district, giving advice and assistance where she can, and being constantly on the watch for insanitary conditions. These when found, are brought under the notice of Board of Health officers, and the system is of special value as a safeguard, particularly against quarantine diseases. We can realise the danger to health and commerce from these when we learn that the district nurses draw their patients from no less than 25 nationalities. These include Portuguese, Hawaiian, Chinese, Japanese, Porto Rican, Russian, Korean, Spanish, American, German, English, and other Europeans. In addition, the work of district nursing includes a system of school inspection, all the public schools being visited very frequently. In the city of Honolulu the civic conscience is keenly alert in regard to the insidious dangers from tuberculosis, and all cases found by the nurses are at once reported to physicians and to the Board of Health. The tuberculosis patients are ranged in three classes—those who remain in their homes under the care of physicians, those in advanced stages, who are sent to the Leahi Home; those who are in the incipient stage, and who are given an opportunity to go to the Pa Ola day camp. The camp was started about 18 months ago. It has a wide verandah all round, with huge windows and sheltered at need from winds. It is built close to the tenement area of the city, where the Great White Plague is making havoc. The patients attend during the day. They are well nourished, and are taught how to live and take care of themselves in order to protect their friends, neighbours, and families from contracting the disease, and most of them appear anxious to be educated in these minor but important matters which are so far-reaching in their effects.

Many of our own city physicians think that the rudiments of such teaching should be included in the hygiene course of our schools. Lastly, attention is drawn to a public welfare exhibit that was held early in the year to demonstrate both good and bad conditions of the city, and the best methods that are being used along sanitary and educational lines. These methods have lately been mentioned as being both useful and likely to be popular. The facts of healthful and wholesome life are placed side by side with those of squalor and ignorance, and the lesson is there for the learning. The plan has been described as an American "short-cut" method of bringing home the facts of life and experience as gleaned by philanthropic workers. It will probably before long receive amplification among workers in our own city.

Conditions in the Hawaiian Islands are perhaps more insanitary and difficult than with us; but the problems have points of similarity with those of a large city whose people every week grow more cosmopolitan.

Two new hats for wearing with spring coats and skirts. The first is a close-fitting shape of white satin, lined with navy blue taffetas, and is trimmed very simply with white picot ribbon, and an upstanding cockade of pleated navy and white ribbon. The second model is of fine mole-coloured Tagal, rolled high at the left side, and caught with a flat satin bow of deep purple, which, with the ruching of satin that binds the edge of the brim, forms the only trimming on the hat.

THE WIFE'S ALLOWANCE.

Married women should be grateful to Miss Rose Scott for her persistent championing of their cause, and I know many of them are grateful and hold the lady in the highest esteem and affection.

But I wish there might be some discussion as to the details of her principle of the "economic independence of married women." What is a woman who gets, say £50 a year as an allowance to pay out of that sum? Is she to pay her own doctor's and dentist's bills, her trips away, and provide for her own old age?

It puzzles me to know how to adjust these matters. Men, if they are to pay their wives, will expect them to provide for themselves in every way. I heard the subject discussed in a drawing-room lately, and one dainty lady said she preferred to trust to her husband's generosity. She knew she got a great deal more by not demanding anything.

I believe in Switzerland a woman is given a sixth of her husband's income, but I do not know what she is expected to do with that sum. Nor do I know how every man's income can be definitely known. A more business-like footing between husband and wife would promote the happiness of the home and give a woman a feeling of much greater self respect. Among my acquaintances there is a woman with a grown-up family, who has to ask for money to pay her fare if she wishes to go to town, she absolutely never handles money, and has no opportunity of giving even the smallest present without asking her husband for the money to do so. There are, of course, always some women who can not manage money, but even so, they have a right to money enough to dress themselves, and I venture to say that the most stupid will learn in time to spend what they get to advantage.

The feeling that anything given for herself is grudged is what makes women galled under the present arrangements. May I hope that some one with a grip of the subject and an abler pen will continue it for the enlightenment of husbands as well as wives, since I am sure very many husbands read this page with pleasure and profit.

AN ORDINARY WOMAN.

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

"I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes."—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

"It is small wonder that there are so many women present to-day, for no writer has ever put woman on such a pedestal as Shakespeare," said Mr. Hawkins, president of the Shakespeare Society at the meeting held on Monday to consider the question of celebrating the ter-centenary. But women will not need the memory of Shakespeare's heroines to arouse their interest in the present movement. The Australian woman no longer regards herself as something apart. She is one of the public, and has just as much share in any national question as her brothers and husband. Shakespeare belongs to us all, women as well as men, and the movement to glorify his memory is a national, not a masculine one. At present, it is true, there are only men upon the committee, but as several speakers said at Monday's meeting, such a committee is not complete without women, and as soon as things are in working order a number of representative women will be asked to give their help to the undertaking.

It is a most riotous spring, and the flowers seem to be tumbling over each other in their hurry to come out and greet it. Blossoms that should only now be showing their buds have been flaunting their colours for days, and the earliest blooming plants, which in ordinary years receive all our admiration for some weeks, have been ousted by the later ones arriving out of their due time. The result has been something indescribably beautiful, and the masses of blue and pink, gold and purple, have filled the bush-lover's heart with joy. But though so many flowers are unduly early this year, there are still many more to come, and the bush will be ablaze for a couple of months yet, and those who fear that there will be no flowers left by the time the wild flower show takes place in September, need not worry. The early spring flowers will probably all be gone, except for stray specimens, but the early summer ones should be in their beauty if this weather lasts. Many people have been discouraged by the season from entering the cut-flower sections of the show, but they need not fear on that account, and those who are still hesitating will be glad to know that entries will be received till the end of this month.

The members of the Women's Handicrafts are decidedly to be congratulated upon the immense improvement in their work since their last exhibition. At the exhibition and sale, which was opened by Lady Chelmsford at Admiralty House yesterday, the visitors were unanimous in their approval of the work shown, and it was impossible not to comment upon the higher standard of excellence all round. In every branch there was evidence of careful work and study, and a desire to improve. The needlework section attracted the special attention of many of the visitors, and the blouses, lingerie, and children's garments were of exquisite daintiness. A unique art was that of the laundress, of which several beautiful washed and ironed specimens were displayed. The society is particularly fortunate in its president, Lady Cullen, who takes such a practical part in the work; and it is also to be congratulated upon having the interest and co-operation of Lady King-Hall, to whose kindness they owe a debt of gratitude for permission to hold the exhibition at Admiralty House. The exhibition will remain open to-day from 3 till 5.

"Veronica" writes from Melbourne:—

Mrs. S. T. Staughton convened a meeting of ladies at the Town Hall on the 21st inst to arrange for the sale of acacia blossom in the streets of Melbourne on Wattle Day, in aid of charities. Cr. Davey, the Lord Mayor, presided. Mrs. Ross Watts gave an interesting account of her connection with a similar movement in Dresden. She had also taken part in flower-selling in aid of charities in Italy. In both cases large sums of money were raised. Mrs. Staughton stated that she had interviewed the committee of the Wattle Day League, and hearty support had been promised. The date has been altered from August 31 to September 2. All present formed themselves into a general committee to assist in the movement, and to arrange for relays of girls to sell the blossom. Mrs. Ross Watts originally arranged for 100 girls to sell wattle blossom on Wattle Day to provide funds for a hall at Gisborne to accommodate children who otherwise were obliged to walk six miles to school. The proceeds will now be divided with the charities.

Miss Bess Norris (Mrs. J. Nevin Tait) receives excellent notices in the London papers for her work at the recent exhibition of the Royal Society of Miniature Painters. The critics comment approvingly upon her free lines and thin washes of colour, and the entire absence of stipple, and praise her facile draughtsmanship and her expression. Her portrait of Miss Tina Lerner, the Russian pianist, receives special praise.

The newly-formed league to put the German woman back into her "proper place" will apparently have its hands full. For, apart from the million and more German women engaged in the different farming and manufacturing industries, there are 11,900 women filling honorary positions in cities and on charity boards. In 155 municipalities 7000 women are in active service for the care of the poor and of orphans, and in 115 towns there are women serving on school boards.

Mr. Henry Seymour Trower, an Englishman, who died recently, left £10,000 to form a "Woman's Aid Fund," to assist married and unmarried women with medical care and nursing before, during, and after confinement, so as to ensure, as far as may be, their safe delivery and their restoration to health and strength, and to assist them afterwards in the rearing of their offspring. In his will, the testator said, "I am sincerely desirous that some of the money I may leave behind me should do women some little good, and if it suffices to some extent to soothe a moral pain, and dry a few bitter tears, the money will not have been earned by me entirely in vain." The fund is to be administered by four women and one man.

Last month, for the first time in the history of Colorado, the body of a woman lay in state in the capitol, when the memory of Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was thus honoured by her fellow citizens. During her funeral the Mayor ordered that all city and county offices should be closed as a mark of reverence and esteem.

According to the Statistician of the State Board of Health in California, there were over two thousand more marriages during the year when the women of that State waged their successful campaign for the vote than the year before. Evidently, says a critic, the men of California found their women quite as attractive when they were awake and asking for full citizenship as before.

Quebec differs from other Canadian provinces in the fact that it has no Married Women's Property Act. If a woman marries without a contract, which often happens, her husband owns all she has, all she earns, and all she may inherit.

HOW "JULIA FRANCE" WAS WRITTEN.

Gertrude Atherton says that it took her about seven months to write her last book, "Julia France and Her Times," but the story was really a slow growth of several years. Its development is interesting. The book is dedicated to Mrs. Fiske, the actress, and the author explains the reason for that dedication. Mrs. Fiske was a close personal friend and Mrs. Atherton wished to write a play for her. As she had had no experience of play-writing, Mrs. Fiske agreed to take it on the road and rehearse it, so as to try it. "Now, although I called that play 'Julia France,' its heroine was not the woman of my novel," says Mrs. Atherton. "The play included only that story which later became the last section of the novel—where the younger sister captures the fancy of the man engaged to the other. And when they came to stage the play, lo and behold, Mrs. Fiske found that the younger sister, whom I had intended as a minor character, usurped the dramatic interest. The figure I had intended as the main one, that of Julia, proved to be less dramatic. And since Mrs. Fiske is not suited to the part of the younger sister, the play was dropped.

"Then I resolved to turn the character of Julia into that of a heroine of a novel. I went back sixteen years, and studied her. And when I had followed her out in the logical development of her psychology she was different. I saw that she could not be the same woman. The original Julia stood pat on suffrage; in the novel she was forced into the movement as a means of expression. The entire novel, however, was so woven together with memories of Mrs. Fiske that I dedicated it to her.

"Only the minor characters in 'Julia France' are actually modelled upon persons. One is in life a prominent Californian millionaire. Another is a British noblewoman, who has actually opened a millinery, just as my Ishbel did. Daniel Toy, the hero, I have never met. He typifies the general spirit and character of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League here. I think he must be alive; I go round rather hoping I may meet him."

"KEEP YOUR CITY CLEAN."

"There, they've done it at last; thank heaven." Caroline caught my arm as she spoke, and pointed to the glaring placard "Keep your city clean."

I shrugged my shoulders.

"What's wrong?" said Caroline, seeing my action. "Aren't you pleased about it?"

"Yes," replied I, "but it seems to me to be such a half-hearted way of doing things."

"What on earth do you mean?" said Caroline, pulling on her gloves leisurely. "You'll be prosecuted if you throw your rubbish about—that's whole-hearted enough for anything, my dear; and more—it's just, it's just, it's just." She emphasised her "just" by pushing her thumb almost desperately into her glove.

"I know I'll be prosecuted," retorted I, somewhat snappily, I am afraid, for Caroline has a happy knack of piquing me at times. She is so absolutely certain of herself, despite all her sweetness. "I know I'll be prosecuted—but, tell me," said I, "will that man over there, or that one, or that, or any of them, in fact, be prosecuted for throwing their matches about? Look at the streets, they're just littered with dead matches; and it's nothing, simply nothing, to come across a lighted one."

"You're exaggerating," returned Caroline. "You invariably do exaggerate when you begin to talk about anything outside your own little profession. What do you want the men to do? Why Charlie would simply die if he didn't smoke. And look how comforting and homely it is to see a ring or two of smoke about a man's face. You absurd dear," she ended. "They can't eat their dead matches, and you wouldn't ask them to pocket them, would you?"

"It's just like you, to jump to conclusions," said I. "I didn't say anything about smoking. I mentioned matches. Only yesterday I put my foot on a lighted one, and it isn't so long ago a woman lost her life through one being carelessly thrown on her frock. Then there was that big New York fire, caused through a match. But it isn't the lighted ones that are so objectionable as the dead ones. Men don't fling matches carelessly about their own homes; they have at least an ash tray."

"Ah, well, of course, if you go on like that," began Caroline, weakly. "I don't know where in the world you are going to end. You wouldn't expect Charlie to carry his match tray about with him, would you?"

"You're ridiculing me," I pouted. "If they can be supplied with places to strike their matches, why can't there be places to put the dead ones, and if they can have receptacles for rubbish, why can't they insist upon the dead matches being put in too?"

"You want a Utopia," sighed Caroline; "but I can see you're perfectly right, dear. However, I'm afraid I can't do much in the matter; but I'll tell you what I will do"—here she gave an exquisite little laugh. "I'll ask Charlie to put all his dead matches in the rubbish bin, as a special favour to me. You know he'll do anything in the world for me."

Fortunate Caroline. She is, however, not by any means the only one for whom "Somebody" would do anything in the world. But I'm wondering seriously whether Charlie will come up to her expectations in this case. It's a tremendously big thing to ask a man to deliberately stay a habit. Nevertheless, Caroline is a perfect dear when Charlie is near, and she might accomplish anything—even this. So might others. I wonder if it's worth trying?

A XVII. CENTURY ETIQUETTE BOOK.

Some delightful hours may be spent in the perusal of old etiquette books, and perhaps none more amusing has ever been compiled than that by Antoine Courtin in 1676 for the guidance of young France. The unwary are forewarned of every pitfall, and a full set of rules provided for all possible and, to our minds, impossible occurrences. Here and there we find a direction that might with profit be followed nowadays. For instance, "Do not wear a hat so large that people behold in you merely a hat walking on two legs." But the next rule we may take credit for having improved upon, "Wash your hands at least once a day, and your face also if possible." The rules for a gentleman's behaviour in the presence of ladies give some startling ideas of the possibilities of those days. "No gentleman should kiss a lady unexpectedly, snatch off her cap, her neck-handkerchief, her bracelet, or a ribbon to wear as a favour to give people the idea that he is madly in love with her, nor must he carry away her letters or books, nor read her private tablets." Also, on certain occasions of visiting, etc., the neophyte had to be warned not to kiss his hostess, for, "even should she hold out her cheek out of politeness, you must only pretend to kiss her by putting your face close to her head-dress."

The young man of the period is also warned not to dig his friends in the stomach; when visiting, not to tear out his hair if startled or grieved; and, if tired, not to throw himself on the bed.

The etiquette of that day permitted a man to wear his hat at dinner, but it did not permit him to blow upon his food, to throw what he could not eat upon the floor, or to drink straight out of the soup-tureen. Neither was he to lick his knife or his fingers. A light is thrown upon a frequent failing by the warning, "It is better to touch nothing except with a fork." Another law must be given in Courtin's own words, "It is necessary to wipe your spoon if, after having used it, you wish to help yourself to something out of another dish, as there are people so particular that it would disgust them to eat the soup into which you had dipped your spoon after taking it out of your mouth; indeed, in many houses nowadays spoons are provided for each dish." As an offset to these reflections on the manner and customs of the seventeenth century in France, it is only fair to quote from another work of the same century. "The Obligations of the Great" gives the following summary of neighbourly duty, which can scarcely be improved on as a fine code for any time:—"It is the duty of such to succour his neighbour in need, to comfort him in trouble, to correct his faults, to render him his due, to protect him against violence, and to be his avenger if he suffered injury." So wrote and so practised the Prince de Conti.

CHAPTER XXXVI.—Continued.

Weston in court repeated his story in practically the same terms as he had told it years ago. He had been convicted because his statement as to the "tramp" was not believed. There was, however, no longer any doubt that in this respect he had spoken the truth. He bore himself with a certain quiet dignity that quickly won him popular approval, while there was something terribly pathetic in his appearance—the face that had lost all expression of interest, the scant grey hair—it had mercifully been allowed to grow—the weather and work tanned skin, and, withal and despite all, the bearing of a gentleman that placed him in marked contrast to the prisoner in the dock. Seventeen years' penal servitude, and perhaps—probably—not guilty after all!

"You recognise the prisoner as Ray's assailant?"

"I do—to the best of my belief. It is a long while ago."

"And you swear that while you lay upon the ground, pretending unconsciousness, you saw the prisoner strangle Ray?"

"I swear that—yes." The answer was given calmly and with deliberation, and it produced its effect upon the court. But the prisoner, despite the efforts of the warders to control him, rose furiously in his place and pointed a shaking finger at the witness.

"It's a lie. By the God above I declare it to be a lie. That man has been rightly punished. I saw——"

He got no further. He was forcibly drawn away from the side of the dock and made to resume his seat. The trial proceeded upon its ordinary course.

It resolved itself, as it was evident that it must, to the word of one man against the word of another. Both had admittedly committed an assault; both had robbed. Which hand was responsible for the fatal deed?

The charge had been reduced to that of manslaughter because it was assumed that actual murder was not intended. It was upon this assumption that Weston had eventually escaped the death sentence.

Popular feeling was all in favour of the man who had suffered, and who had throughout maintained his innocence—as far as the death of the victim was concerned. Moreover, he had acted under the stress of a strong emotion, besides being fuddled with drink and maddened by the desire for the drug, of which he had been accidentally deprived. There was some justification, too, for his belief that he had been cheated out of the money which he wished to repossess himself of. Finally, he had made no effort to avoid arrest.

Exactly the contrary held good with the present prisoner. He was a man with a bad record, unlike Weston, who, though he had lived foolishly, had never before come into contact with the police. He admitted that the assault and the robbery were both premeditated, and eventually, after he had, in his turn, been murderously attacked my his own accomplice, he had seized upon the opportunity of disappearing for good. Surely this implied guilt, and the reasons he gave for the proceeding, though he had undoubtedly acted upon them in blackmailing Payne, did not hold water when one remembered the much stronger motive of a dread lest he might be arrested for the murder of Ray. Fearing for his own skin, he had allowed Weston to be convicted and sentenced—he would have permitted him to go to the gallows without protest.

Pending the verdict excitement in London ran high, and there was every prospect that Weston, once released, would be regarded very much in the light of a national hero.

All the preparations had been made for Lavender's marriage. It was to take place absolutely quietly and by special license, as soon as possible after the verdict had been pronounced. But as the time for this drew near a fresh cause for anxiety manifested itself.

This was the failing health of Mrs. Marlow. For weeks she had been going slowly but surely downhill. Lavender, in spite of all her other cares and anxieties, had tended her with devoted care. And then a day came when the doctor took the girl aside and told her that she must prepare for the worst—it was not likely that her mother would survive for many weeks.

The shock of this intelligence, combined with everything else, was almost more than Lavender could bear. Of course, so she told Elliott, she could not think of marrying and going away from England; nor would she leave Mrs. Marlow's side for any longer than was absolutely necessary. At which Elliott bit his lip and appeared decidedly ill-pleased.

And then, one day—all unexpectedly to Lavender—a crisis came. Elliott had called and had asked to see Mrs. Marlow alone. He was with her so long that Lavender began to be anxious lest he should be tiring her dear patient. Accordingly she was making her way to the bedroom when the door was flung noisily open and Elliott emerged.

His face was livid with anger, and he hardly seemed to notice Lavender, who crouched back against the wall to avoid him. He turned, however, after he had passed her a little way, and forced a laugh.

"You'd better go to your mother, Lavender," he said over his shoulder. "She's been exciting herself for nothing. I merely wanted consent to our marriage being hurried on. In her state of health it is advisable—imperative."

"Oh, it was cruel of you—cruel!"—Lavender cried indignantly. She did not wait to hear his response, but hurried to Mrs. Marlow's room. She only knew that he went, muttering to himself, downstairs and out of the house.

Mrs Marlow was sitting up in bed, her face drawn and her eyes gleaming. She was evidently labouring under some deep emotion. Always dainty in her person, the remnants of her prettiness clung to her even in disease, and this, under the influence of excitement, which had brought colour to her cheeks and lustre to her eyes, was at the moment particularly marked.

"Lavender, darling," she cried, "come and sit by my bed, for I must talk to you—while there's still time. Oh, I'm strong enough—you needn't fear for me. That man"—she pointed a thin finger at the door—"is a devil, a cruel, wicked devil. He's bullied and tormented me for years—and I've submitted to it, because I was a weak fool, and because he had it in his power to show that I had been drawing money under false pretences for years, and that I once did a dishonourable thing—he's had me in his power and twisted me round his little finger; he's made me deceive you, so that he could marry you; he's forced me to hurt you—you whom I love more than any other living thing. Oh, Lavender, Lavender! But, thank God, it's not too late."

Lavender was quickly by the side of the stricken woman, soothing and comforting. But Mrs. Marlow refused to be either soothed or comforted until she had made a clean breast of the secret which had been gnawing at her heart and helping her actual physical disease to kill her.

"Oh, Lavender, he's only waiting till I'm dead, and then he would tell you—how I sinned. And it doesn't matter to him about the money as it mattered to me. I accused him of it, just now, and he couldn't deny it. Don't you see, my darling? There's no taint upon you—no taint, no taint; you've been deceived, and Stephen meant to tell you this later on, so that his promise might be swept away—a promise he never meant to keep. And you may marry Eric—Eric whom you love—for oh, my dear, you're not the child of Frank Weston, and if I hadn't been so weak, so cowardly—but I'm dying now, so you won't curse me! For the love of Almighty God, Lavender, forgive me before I die."

She spoke wildly, incoherently; but out of the flood of speech there were certain words which rung and rung again in Lavender's ears.

No taint—not the child of Frank Weston.

She sank down into a chair, and the whole room, the whole world, seemed to revolve about her.

And the looming spectre that was her inheritance trembled and was afraid.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

"You are not the daughter of Frank Weston. You are the child of parents in whose blood there was no shadow, no vestige of taint. Tragedy attended your birth, it is true, but there is nothing in your family history of which you have the smallest need to be ashamed."

It was upon the hearing of these wonderful words that Lavender pulled herself together, and became aware that the shadow which had spread its brooding wing over her life was quivering away into nothingness.

"Tell me, mother; for mercy's sake, tell me," she pleaded.

And Mrs. Marlow, whose soul could find no rest until she had unbosomed herself, made full confession, atoning them, at the eleventh hour, for the havoc her cowardice had wrought in two young lives, havoc which so nearly had become irreparable, but which there was yet time to redeem.

Lavender had already heard something of the story of her own birth, though naturally she had never dreamed that the tale Stephen Elliott had once told her referred in any way to herself.

She was the baby daughter of Godfrey and Dorothy Hollis, and the false report of her death, delivered at a moment of direst stress, had hastened both her parents to an untimely end. Dorothy had died with reproaches on her lips for the husband who loved her so well, and he, a broken man, had not long survived her.

Agnes Marlow was responsible for that false report—the consequences of it had been the heaviest of burdens upon her conscience for the rest of her life. But no one knew—save one man alone—and she had hoped to go to her grave with her sin unrevealed.

Agnes Marlow was a familiar friend of Dorothy Hollis, and also of Winifred Weston. The latter pined for a child, believing that if she became a mother she would be able to hold her erratic husband in better check. She had confided her grief to her friend, who sympathised with her sincerely and deeply. Mrs. Marlow had never thought to work trouble and ill—her only defence, and a poor one.

OUR NEW STORY.

In our issue of Saturday next we begin publication of a new story, "The Grip of Life," by Agnes and Egerton Castle. This is the latest work by that prolific partnership in fiction, and many people will regard it as the best of all the many books to the credit of its authors. In more than one regard "The Grip of Life" shows them breaking new ground. It depends for its interest not so much upon adventure as upon character development. It has its moving situations, but they count for less than the persons who provide them. The persons are Sir Ughtred Maxwell, an Oxford scholar, who succeeds unexpectedly to a great estate, and the cleverly varied family group who constitute his nearest neighbours—the Comte de Braye, Mme. la Comtesse, and Mlle. Solange, their niece. How Sir Ughtred is weaned from his determination to avoid women and concentrate himself upon Greek, and how the mysterious influence of the Comtesse de Braye and the quite different influence of Mlle. Solange work upon him, is told in these pages with verve and brilliancy. The study of the two ladies is especially fine, and Mlle Solange, in particular, is certain of a host of sympathetic admirers. "The Grip of Life" deserves wide reading for the sake of that skilful character-drawing alone, and, in addition, the story is alive with episode and with general interest.

ROYAL COLONIAL INSTITUTE.

WORLD-EMBRACING ORGANISATION.

Earl Grey was recently elected to the position of president of the Royal Colonial Institute. At the annual dinner, at which he presided, a new departure was made, cabled greetings being read from all the branches of the institute in the overseas dominions.

Mr. Wilfrid Docker, honorary corresponding secretary of the institute in New South Wales, is in receipt of the latest report from headquarters, which emphasises the great strides it is making, particularly in England. 787 new fellows having joined in the first six months of the present year. In the journal of the institute, "United Empire" some interesting articles on British citizenship appeared from the pens of such well-known citizens of the Empire as Mr. James Bryce, Sir Samuel Griffith, and Professor Westlake.

The annual conversazione of the institute, held at the Natural History Museum, was attended by 2000 guests. The function annually attracts Anglo-Australians resident in London.

MISSION STUDY COUNCIL.

The Chapter-house of St. Andrew's Cathedral was the scene of a unique gathering on Monday—an interdenominational conference, held under the auspices of the N.S.W. Mission Study Council. The two sessions—afternoon and evening—were devoted chiefly to the consideration of problems especially relating to leadership and the work of summer schools. The speakers were the Rev. G. J. Williams, Rev. A. R. Ebbs, Mr. W. Gillanders, and Mr. J. W. Dovey.

At the afternoon session the explanation of the study circle method showed how this form of education, whether adapted for Bible, mission, or social study, tends to the development of personality and the expression of individuality. At the evening meeting the advantages derived from systematic study at summer schools was emphasised, and a resolution was unanimously adopted "That a mission study summer school be held in New South Wales in Easter of next year."

The Mission Study Council is endeavouring to apply academic principles to all forms of missionary education in the Churches.

Novice, Penrith.—Regular exercise, with plenty of galloping, is indispensable for young dogs.

Scottie, Woollahra.—Your puppy seems to be troubled with worms. Starve it for 16 hours, and then give it half a teaspoonful of fresh areca nut, mixed with fat or butter.

NOTES.

Mr. A. B. Hellmrich, formerly hon. secretary of the Kennel Club of New South Wales, is now a resident of Melbourne. He was an interested spectator of the judging at the recent show of the Australian Ladies' Kennel Club. Among the Sydney visitors were Mrs. W. Shepherd, Mr. J. S. Hughes, and Mr. Dibbs.

Mr. A. W. Williams has disposed of his well-known sable and white collie, Poplar Laddie, to Mr. MacKellar, of North Sydney.

Writing to a Brisbane friend Mr. Eugene Doctor, late hon. treasurer of the Queensland Kennel Club, says:—"I called at the English Kennel Club, the headquarters of the doggy world, and had a chat with the assistant secretary. The heat in London during several days in July was terrific, and quite as hot as I have ever felt in Queensland."

Yesterday's "Herald" contained a cable message detailing the remarkable manner in which a dog tracked a murderer to a ballroom in Berne. On the Continent of Europe police dogs are specially trained for tracking, and also for seizing the offenders against the law. England is slowly coming into line, and sooner or later Australia must follow suit. Two Dobberman (police) dogs imported to Brisbane by Captain Claussen were recently described in these columns. The "Courier" mentions that these dogs have been presented to the Queensland Commissioner of Police. They are quarantined at Lytton, and will, when released, be used for police purposes, as dogs are in their native country, Germany.

A meeting of the Australian Scotch Collie Club was held at the Railway Hotel, George-street, on Monday. There were present Mr. W. Jeffery (chairman), Messrs. Prattis, Lazenby, Barber, Maisey, Williams, Clarke, Robb, Borthwick, Tailby, Andrews, Chambers, Picone, Mesdames Harrison, Borthwick, Jeffery, and Clarke (hon. secretary). The new members and associate members to the club elected were Messrs. S. Potter (V.S.), R. O. Beale, Glissen, MacKellar, James, Bell, Barber, and Mesdames T. A. Griffin and Harrison. Sanction was granted at the meeting for 50 badges to be struck in enamel of a typical sable and white collie dog, at a cost of £8.

Mr. G. C. Warner, hon. secretary of the Bulldog Club of New South Wales, writes:—"The committee met on the 21st instant. There were present Mr. F. M. William (president), Dr. Furnival, and Messrs. Stringer, Ekin, Woolnough, Coutts, Hoskins, M'Namara, Warner. The hon. secretary, Mr. W. M'Namara, tendered his resignation, as owing to business reasons he could not give the necessary attention to the club's affairs. Mr. G. C. Warner, the acting secretary, was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. M'Namara accepted temporarily the position of hon. registrar. The club's list of trophies and specials already totals a value of £200. Medals from the Bulldog Clubs of England, America, South Australia, New Zealand, and Victoria will be offered for competition."

KENNEL CLUB SHOW.

The prize schedule of the Kennel Club's eighteenth annual show is now available for distribution. There are altogether 170 classes. collies have 11 classes; fox-terriers, bulldogs, and Irish terriers, 10 each; Yorkshire terriers, 25; Scottish terriers, 8; pugs, 8; Australian terriers, cattle dogs, kelpies, Sydney silky terriers, cocker spaniels, 6 each; setters, 7; Airedale terriers, foxhounds, beagles, and mastiffs, 4 each. The foxhounds are 10 times as numerous as the mastiffs, and might have had more classes, even at the expense of the Yorkshires, which have no fewer than 25 classes.

The prize money is 10s 6d and 5s for classes with four or more entries; 7s 6d and 3s for three or more entries; and 5s for one or two entries. In cases where special prizes are given they will take the place of class prizes.

Entries will be received at the Kennel Club office from noon till 2 p.m. up to the 8th prox; from 10 a.m. till 5 p.m. on the 9th, 10th, and 11th prox; and on the latter dates at the Royal Agricultural Society's office from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. The judges are:—Mr. R. O. Beale, cattle and sheep dogs; Mr. J. L. Hughes, Sydney silky, Yorkshire and Australian terriers; Mr. H. Moyse, fox-terriers; and Mr. Liddell, all other breeds.

Mr. S. C. Edwards and Mr. J. Borthwick are the joint hon. secretaries.

AUSTRALIAN LADIES' K.C.

At the recent show of the Australian Ladies' Kennel Club there was a good collection of collies, most of which carried profuse coats and frills. These desirable points require cultivation by our breeders. The field spaniels owned by Mrs. J. Elliott scored splendidly in the competition for special prizes. A grand dog pup, Bonny Bobby, 10 months old, won the Menzies trophy for best puppy of any breed; with his litter sister, Bonny Jean, he won the Parker trophy for the best brace of puppies of any breed. Bobby also defeated his sire, ch. Bonny Union Jack (imp.), winner of 90 first prizes, for the best of the breed special. In addition to the foregoing successes, Mrs. Elliott's dogs won Mrs. Payne's and Madame Melba's trophies for the best brace and best team respectively of any breed. Miss Pinschof's won the president's trophy for the best Australian-bred dog, for lady members, with her typical Gordon setter, Studley Nell.

The best small dog in the show was ch. Pengern Blue Mite (imp.), for which Mrs. Waters paid £75 in England. The best medium-size dog was Mrs. Elliott's field spaniel, Bonny Bobbie. The best big dog was Mr. W. Langdon's Harlequin Great Dane, Marie Corelli, a magnificent specimen of a noble breed. For the big dog special the Borzoi Carolus Rex, a splendid animal, was a likely candidate, but his faulty hocks put him out of the running.

BULLDOG SHOW.

The Bulldog Society of New South Wales received congratulations on the success of its last week's show. There were 63 exhibitors, 78 dogs, and 148 entries. These are figures of which any specialist club may be proud, and they indicate the great popularity of the bulldog in Sydney. The ladies seem fonder of this breed than any other, judging by their numbers at the show. Mr. Turner was methodical and undemonstrative in his judging methods.

Mr. Rich's 12 months old dog Centurion (imp.) won all before him. He is one of the low-set, cloddy sort, with splendid body properties, a fair head, and a bulldog all over. The runner-up in open dogs was Mr. Gee's The Pilot, who is well known. A new face at this show, though a veteran in New Zealand, was Mr. Hickey's Greenstone (imp.). He was not in condition to do himself justice.

Interest was centred in the open bitch class by the meeting of Mr. Gee's Bankside Gem (imp.) and Mr. H. F. Moses's Madame Mahomet (imp.). The duel between them for the judge's verdict was a long one; eventually the blue ribbon went to Gem, who is one of the very best of her breed seen in Australasia. Her head and body leave little to be desired, but she looked a few pounds too fat. Madame Mahomet, on the other hand, scored heavily in her splendid condition. Her skin glistened with health, and her activity was remarkable. There was a report that these two bitches would be judged a second time on the standard points, but nothing came of it.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the show was the excellent quality of the young stock. Nearly all of the puppies were low to the ground, and button ears, formerly so noticeable, were seldom seen.

Mr. H. G. Lamb's three first prize wins with Milrah Stripes were well received. This was Mr. Lamb's first appearance as an exhibitor of bulldogs, though he was many years ago a great fancier of canaries and pigeons.

The complete awards appeared in last Friday's "Herald."

ACADEMY OF ART.

Referring yesterday to the proposed Academy of Art, the Lord Mayor (Alderman Clarke) said that he was strongly of opinion that it should be established, and he hoped that the Government would place a sufficient sum on the Estimates to begin work in a manner worthy of the city and citizens. With regard to the control of the academy, he thought that the Government should have the biggest "say," in order to ensure the institution being run free from individual interests.

There was a young lass of Hawbowling,
Whose head kept tossing and rolling,
Who coughed and who sneezed, asthmatically wheezed,
And besides was perpetually yawning.

She scarcely could utter one word,

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to Ancona, Herald Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Inquirer.—The principal of Hawkesbury College could probably tell you where the meat meal is procurable at the price quoted in the college report, viz., 7/6 per cwt.

Leghorn.—The fact of one or two of your Leghorns becoming broody is not the sign of a cross, but is a reversion to the time when all breeds of fowls were subject to broodiness.

Hawkesbury.—Your own district is celebrated for good table poultry, and a look round the farms will convince you that game predominate. When eggs are the chief consideration Leghorns have the greatest run, but may not be the most profitable withal.

The schedule of the Goulburn Poultry, Pigeon, and Canary Club's eighth annual show to be held at the end of next month is to hand. Sixty-two classes are provided for poultry, with moderate prize-money, and quite a lot of medals, trophies, and cups. The poultry section is to be judged by Mr. W. C. Forster. Schedules can be had from the hon. secretary, Mr. D. H. Hays, Goulburn.

The third edition of "Diseases of Fowls" has been issued from the Government Printer, and is now available on application to the Under-Secretary for Agriculture. The book contains a good deal of new matter.

By the Taiyuan, which sailed on Saturday last, 12 cases of frozen fowls, two of ducks, and one of geese were shipped for Manila.

At the Young freezing works the present season over 2000 turkeys have been packed and frozen, the majority of them being shipped to Eastern ports.

At Kellyville on Thursday evening last, when questioned about the price of eggs, the lecturer told the audience that despite the increased production, the high prices of last year woud be more than maintained. He considered 11d per dozen would be the minimum price for new-laids, but should any of the poultry-breeders receive less than 10d per dozen during the cheapest period, they should inquire from the agent the reason why.

It is thought the new poultry markets will be ready for the salesmen in about two months. At present the six operating firms are distributed in various streets, at the Haymarket end of the city, and their removal to one building should be largely in their clients' interests. The City Council purpose fitting the rooms with the necessary wire coops. The rentals have not yet been fixed.

Last week reference was made to the report of the committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce on Cold Storage. The following are the committee's conclusions:—"Food products do not deteriorate in cold storage to such a degree as to make them undesirable for consumption, if kept only from season to season. There, however, should be a time specified limiting the storage period. Butter should not be stored for more than 12 months; poultry not over 10 months, while under no consideration should eggs be carried over the season, or a limit of nine months." The time limit in the judgment of the committee would serve two purposes—first, to discourage the hoarding of food articles for speculative purposes; and, second, to prohibit the keeping of food articles such a time as to cause deterioration in value as food.

It is frequently asked how the fertility or non-fertility of an egg can be determined before incubation. It cannot be done and keep the egg whole. If the shell is broken and the germinal spot on the yoke is examined, an experienced observer can say whether it is fertile or not. With the shell whole, and the egg known to be from a flock with which males are running there is no test that will determine whether it is fertile or not until the egg has been incubated for a few days. The fertility of eggs depends chiefly on the condition of the breeding stock, the number of females allotted to one male, the conditions under which they are kept, and the food. If the breeders are in poor condition there will be many eggs that will not hatch well, or that produce puny or weak chickens. Eggs may be fertile, and not yet hatch well. This is because the germs are weak or poorly nourished, because of poorly-balanced food. This may be due to debility on the part of the breeders, or to poor feeding. Similar trouble results from breeding from birds forced for egg production, or from a male that is allowed too many hens. Where such conditions exist chicks will die at all stages of incubation, and some for several days after hatching. The germ may also be injured by overheating the eggs or keeping in too warm a place while saving for hatching. Less frequently trouble may result from chilling the eggs. Strongly fertile eggs from good, healthy stock will often hatch well and produce good chicks under apparently unfavourable conditions. Obviously the remedy for unproductive eggs is to use only healthy breeding stock, and to keep the breeders in good condition by good food and common sense care and management.

The past year has witnessed a great increase in the egg supplies, but with all this the almost insatiable demand will keep the prices up. All the new people will, however, not make a success of the venture, the trouble not being with the poultry business, the make of the incubator, or the breed of fowls, but with the people themselves. To succeed with poultry one must have a liking for the work. He who thinks the continuous cleaning of the houses, spading over the ground, and keeping the chicks free from vermin unpleasant work, will never make good in the industry. It is right enough to estimate the profits on a basket of eggs, but if the breeder has not the ability to detect an ailing hen in the flock, the value of the whole basket may disappear. Some people give up the business after the first or second hatching failure. The one who succeeds is he who attempts to find out the reason of the failure, and frequently the next hatches are good. Along with poultry business ability, there needs also to be practical ingenuity in making use of the materials at hand. Every day some new need arises, and rather than run to the supply houses for every possible want, which means expense, many of the waste tins and unused household vessels can be utilised. Many of the big poultry farms of the State for appurtenances, might not be called model farms—they are frequently the profitable ones.

At a lecture on Artificial Incubation, given by Mr. G. Bradshaw, at Kellyville, on Thursday last, the audience were told the three principal factors in artificial methods were the eggs, the machine, and the operator; but that most depended on the eggs. The lecturer said that domestication, and later-day breeding for excessive egg-production had brought the numbers now far beyond what nature ever intended, with the result that, while with careful housing and feeding, the health of the fowls has been maintained, the producing organs have been weakened, and experiments were quoted to show that eggs from excessive layers were never so fertile as from normal producers, and that in most instances when infertile eggs were plentiful, so were weak germs and dead in shell. In reply to which was the best incubator, he did not know of such a machine. Personally, he had worked from a thirty-guinea Hearson to one made at about 20s. All had given excellent results, and the same machines in the same room had given shockingly bad results, the quality of the eggs being credited with the trouble. Any incubator, said the lecturer, that stayed on the market three or four years was reliable, and those at present on sale in Sydney, whether of Australian, English, or American make, had occasionally hatched almost every fertile egg. The fact of a poor hatch resulting was no reason why an incubator should be discarded, for apart from the eggs being right, the operator might be at fault, and although books of instructions are issued with each machine, the operator is expected to use some judgment himself, as it has to be watched. The majority of makers claimed their incubators as having occasionally given 100 per cent. of results. This is quite possible. At the same time, any of the people present who completed their season's hatching with an average of 75 per cent. were to be envied.

FEDERAL POLICY.

PREFERENCE TO UNIONISTS.

Addressing a meeting of the Darlinghurst branch of the Women's Liberal League, Senator Sir Albert Gould criticised the Federal Government policy of preference to unionists, and declared that it was utterly wrong that one section of the community should be given the benefit of money raised by taxation from the whole. It was perfectly true that Australia had a most democratic form of Government; but it did not follow that the party in power in the Federal House was representative of the people. The broad principle which had hitherto been laid down was that Governments should represent the community as a whole, and not one section of the community. There had been many instances in Federal politics of the Governments' leaning towards preference for unionists. But the unionists were not the only persons who paid taxes. The non-unionist contributed just as much to the Government coffers.

At a meeting of the New South Wales council of the Australian Freedom League for the abolition of the compulsory clauses of the Commonwealth Defence Act it was stated that reports had been received from various centres indicating a growing interest in the movement. The Adelaide League reported having enrolled 1500 new members.

WOMEN'S HANDICRAFTS.

EXHIBITION OF WORK.

OPENED BY LADY CHELMSFORD.

The opening ceremony of an exhibition of work by the Women's Handicrafts Club, held at Admiralty House at the invitation of Lady King-Hall, was well attended yesterday afternoon. The visitors included Lady Cullen, Lady Hay, Mrs. Prichard Bassett, Mrs. Rolleston, Miss Fairfax, and Mrs. Dowling. The exhibits were displayed in the drawing-room and on the verandah overlooking the tennis court. An improvement in this year's arrangements was in the grouping, which was arranged so as to admit of comparison.

The exhibits, on the whole, afforded evidence not merely of good work done, but of better work in the future. Mrs. Munday's pottery contained some simple and beautiful examples, especially those in coarse clay. She also exhibited some excellent woodcarving, and Miss Makinson also contributed some good work. A quantity of charming needlework was displayed by Miss Neilson, while a number of beautiful finger-bowl mats, painted by Miss Suttor, were also exhibited. Some quaint baskets were the work of Miss L. Durrant. Miss Ella Richards and Miss A. Vale exhibited some pretty examples of china-painting. The watercolour landscapes were evidence of original and thoughtful work. Leather-work, repousse, embroidery, fan-painting, and other handicrafts were represented by a number of exhibitors.

Lady Chelmsford, who opened the exhibition, was introduced by his Excellency Vice-Admiral Sir George King-Hall, and remarked that it was not more than about six months since the last exhibition has been held at St. James's Hall. She was impressed by the improvement in the exhibits generally, especially in view of the fact that the society had been going through somewhat difficult times. It was to be hoped that the effort now made would result in a better understanding between buyer and maker. Great care should be taken that only the best should be brought to the exhibition. It was not too much to hope that from this small beginning Sydney might acquire something equal to the Sutherland School of Needlework in London or the similar work done in Melbourne. The society owed much to the interest taken in it by Lady King-Hall, with her knowledge of art and exquisite taste, while she felt sure that the workers would be glad of an expression of their appreciation of the kindness of Lady Cullen in becoming their president.

THE SOVEREIGN.

ITS BUYING POWER.

Investigations are being made by the Commonwealth Statistician (Mr. G. H. Knibbs) to secure information for past years as to rates of wages, hours of labour, and employment throughout the Commonwealth.

"These particulars," says the Commonwealth Statistical Office, "will clear the way for various investigations of great interest and importance, such as a comparison between index numbers showing the trend of wages and those showing variations in retail prices and house rents, thus indicating in its true light the relative value or purchasing power of wages.

CUTICURA OINTMENT GAVE INSTANT RELIEF.

"For about two years I suffered with eczema, my whole body and face were smothered with it, consequently, I could not eat or sleep, and after trying all kinds of cures and medicines, I was just on the point of giving up my case as hopeless, when a friend advised me to try Cuticura Ointment, which I did, and obtained instant relief. There is not now a speck of eczema to be seen on my body, thanks to Cuticura, and I am only too willing and pleased to tell all my friends about it." (Signed) William Brown, Forth and Clyde Hotel, Balmain, Sydney, N.S.W., December 10, 1910.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment afford the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children, and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. Although sold throughout the world, a sample of Cuticura Ointment, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. 30 K, Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT.

Saturday's football matches are specially described, and other sports receive prominence. Illustrations:—Manly Superior Public School Football Team; A Family of Footballers; The 'Prentices of Homebush; Frank Iredale has an article on the Triangular Cricket Contests. "Milroy's" turf section is, as usual, full of interest. Snapshots of Edward White, Henry Bell, and Harry Rayner.

THE MAN ON THE LAND.

It is comparatively easy to bring rural people together to discuss political questions, but much more difficult to secure a gathering of farmers desirous of exchanging ideas and experiences on agricultural questions. Agricultural Bureau meetings in South Australia have for many years served a useful purpose in this way, and reference is made to some interesting papers recently read at them by practical men. The High Court decision regarding grade stamping of choice produce is also dealt with, and the usual features receive expert attention.

OTHER FEATURES.

Spring Awakening: The Coming of the Tourist Train; Champions of the Bulldog Show; Fire at Henty; The Query Club; Chess Tourney; Draughts; Humour; Science; Motor Notes; Sunday Reading.

VEND APPEAL.

SHIPPING AGREEMENT.

ANALYSED BY COUNSEL.

"NO DETRIMENT TO PUBLIC."

The hearing of the Vend case appeal was resumed yesterday by the High Court at Darlinghurst.

The Chief Justice: Sir Samuel Griffith, Mr. Justice Barton, and Mr. Justice O'Connor, were on the Bench.

Mr. E. F. Mitchell, K.C (Melbourne), Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C. (Sydney), and Mr. L. Ham (Melbourne), instructed by Messrs. Malleson, Stewart, Stawell, and Nankivell, of Melbourne (by their Sydney agents Messrs. Macnamara and Smith), appeared on behalf of the appellants; and Mr. Wise K.C. (Sydney), Mr. E. Starke (Melbourne), and Mr. T. R. Bavin (Sydney), instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, Mr. C. Powers, for the respondents.

The appellants are the Adelaide Steamship Company, Ltd., Howard, Smith, Company, Ltd., Huddart, Parker, and Co., Proprietary, Ltd., M'Ilwrath, M'Eacharn, and Co., Proprietary, Ltd., and the companies' officers:—Edward Northcote, William Thos. Appleton, David Hunter, and Charles Morton Newman.

Mr. Mitchell, referring to what he called "the shipping agreement," explained some of its sections for the purpose of showing what they meant. As to the vend allotment of coal, apart from any question whether the appellants were responsible for it, it would not cause the inconvenience, or should not at any rate have been expected to cause inconvenience to people in the way of preventing them getting as much coal as they wanted.

Mr. Justice O'Connor thought the agreement meant that the agents should, as far as possible, get the coal they required.

The Chief Justice: Is there any law that a coal-owner must supply as much coal as a customer cares to ask for?

Mr. Mitchell said his Honor had held that once you got a combination then that rule applied. What the Chief Justice had said might be a perfect answer, but he wanted to show from the construction of the shipping agreement that it could not be reasonably expected to lead to the detriment that followed, and, therefore, it could not be intended by either party to the shipping agreement.

The Chief Justice remarked that he desired to get a thorough grasp of the case, and it appeared to him that this was an important step in the matter. The assumption was that the colliery proprietors has done something wrong, and the purchasers, the shippers, were equally responsible.

Mr. Mitchell said that the whole burden of Mr. Wise's opening remarks, his speeches throughout the case, and final address, was to refer to the whole body as "the combine."

The Chief Justice thought that calling a thing a name did not bring it under the Act.

Mr. Mitchell: "I sometimes in the course of the case like one of Bret Harte's heroes, who said 'Do I sleep? Do I dream?' I could not understand the logical position of what my friend Mr. Wise was putting to Mr. Justice Isaacs."

Mr. Justice O'Connor: What his Honor Mr. Justice Isaacs is putting in his judgment is that there was no limit to the price which might be fixed by the vend, whatever that price was, and that the shipping people agreed to help to carry out the payment of that price by the public.

Mr. Mitchell said that it would have been a different thing if the Crown had proved the case opened by Mr. Wise, namely, that there was an agreement for an indefinite time. It was first set out in the draft copy of the agreement that it should be for seven years, but the shipping companies objected. If it had been shown that the shipping companies bound themselves to go on no matter what f.o.b price was fixed, there might be some foundation for the judgment, but the evidence showed that the vend fixed the price at 10s for 1907, and at 11s for 1908. The shippers entered into that arrangement, but there was no evidence that the shippers had entered into any arrangement after 1908, although he admitted that there had been collective bargaining between the parties.

Mr. Justice O'Connor: The vend agreement limited the output. If the collieries had been free they could have met the demand interstate and foreign?

Mr. Mitchell: No. The limitation on the output was only as to opening new pits.

A FLUCTUATING TRADE.

Mr. Mitchell contended that it could never have been intended by either party to the shipping agreement that any delay should occur by reason of the vend allotment of trade. That allotment was based on the actual trade of the respective collieries in the previous year. It was not anticipated that there would be any material change in the trade, seeing that under-cutting was eliminated. The vend allotments related not to the interstate trade alone, but also to the foreign and local trade. There was then no reason to apprehend that any person would not get the particular coal he wanted. The vend allotment was essential to the existence of the vend.

The Chief Justice: It is essential that we should make up our minds which view we take of that agreement, whether it is malum in se or not. It made all the difference.

Mr. Mitchell contended not. For over 45 years in Newcastle the practice had been to regulate the trade by such agreements which were amended from time to time.

The Chief Justice: I propose to consider the matter from the point of view of the Vend, fixing the selling price as being prima facie legal.

Mr. Mitchell: We must approach the consideration of the case from that basis.

Mr. Justice Barton: The contention was that it was turned into an agreement for the restraint of trade.

The Chief Justice said that the agreement was regarded as a good thing, and that a person dealing with them held that as they were engaged in a lawful business, he was entitled to deal with them.

Mr. Mitchell referred to the ruling of May 9, 1906, that the original vend agreement was proposed to be made for a duration of seven years. It was because that seven years' period was contemplated that it had schedules of varying prices. Two or three months after that date the Anti-trust Act was passed, and then the legal officers who were acting took the view that if there was anything objectionable in this agreement by reason of its exclusive dealing provisions, or anything like that, it would be much more objectionable with a period of seven years mentioned instead of one year, having regard to the Commonwealth doctrine enunciated. So that about the time the Act was passed the period is reduced to one year. Possibly they contemplated it would be renewed another year, but all the shipping companies had done was to agree for one year.

Mr. Justice Barton: It was only natural that, if the agreement proved beneficial, it would be renewed.

Mr. Mitchell: Exactly.

HONEST AND LAWFUL.

The Chief Justice said he understood the appellants' case was that the agreement the colliery proprietors made for the f.o.b. price of coal was prima facie, honest, and lawful, and the agreement by the shipping companies was also an honest and lawful one, prima facie. "You must then show that it is not an honest and lawful agreement by extrinsic evidence, of which, as I understand, there is none."

Mr. Mitchell: That is what we say.

Mr. Wise: You cannot separate them.

The Chief Justice: Mr. Wise seems to me to be blowing hot and cold. He seems to me to say one thing one moment, and then another.

Mr. Justice O'Connor: What Mr. Wise puts is: You must look at the real transaction. The transaction was to make it necessary to have both agreements, and the separation of the agreements was a mere matter of form. From the very beginning the parties intended to carry out what was in both agreements, whatever that amounts to. Mr. Wise, as I understand it, does not admit, looking at it in that way, that the vend agreement is lawful.

Mr. Wise: Exactly.

At the instance of Mr. Wise, the following passage in Mr. Wise's opening address, before Mr. Justice Isaacs, was read by Mr. Mitchell as showing what Mr. Wise said was his summing up of what was charged:—"What we say is that the essence of the arrangement was the coal trade should be worked as a whole, that individual contracts, whether by steamship owners or coal proprietors, were inconsistent with the spirit of the agreement and its actual working; consequently all arrangements for the sale of coal had to be made through the secretary to the Steamship Owners' Association, with the secretary to the Colliery Proprietors' Association. The individual dealings with the collieries or steamship owners were prohibited. This dates back in time to April, before the combine agreement was entered into—before the Vend agreement was completed, but after the meeting in Melbourne on April 2 and 3, which really brought the two parties into accord."

If the Vend agreement was to be now attacked, despite the attitude taken up by the Crown in the Court below, it would have to be shown that the shippers in some way were parties to the colliery proprietors fixing an excessive f.o.b. price, with knowledge on their part that it was excessive. That was the very least the prosecution would have to do, and he said that there was not the slightest evidence of the kind. The evidence was that the f.o.b. price had been fixed by the colliery proprietors quite irrespective of the shipping companies, and, having fixed the price, they informed the shipping companies.

Mr. Starke: And you consented.

The Chief Justice: I also consented. (Laughter.) Does the consent really matter?

Mr. Mitchell said that the Crown contention seemed to be that as soon as people entered into a trade combination they were to discard ordinary business principles, and were to be actuated by altruistic motives in fixing their selling prices. That was the principle he expected from Mr. Wise's opening.

Mr. Knox read a number of extracts from the evidence, dealing with the depressed condition of the trade, the competition of the Maitland mines, and the conditions generally, which led to the Vend agreement at a meeting of the proprietors in 1906. Mr. Learmonth, who presided, referred to the unsatisfactory condition of the coal trade, and pointed out the absolute necessity of forming an association of all the collieries, to obviate the highly unsatisfactory results which came from the cutting and competition.

Mr. Mitchell contended that in his judgment. Mr. Justice Isaacs had gone contrary to the evidence thus presented.

At this stage the Court adjourned until today.

A WIFE-BEATER.

SENTENCED AT GLEBE.

According to the evidence of the police, Thomas Kenny, 33, a wharf labourer, came out of gaol a few weeks ago after serving a sentence of six months for assaulting his wife. The charge preferred against him was of having assaulted his wife at the Glebe on August 21. The wife stated that she went out to look for her husband one day last week, as he was drinking hard. She failed to find him, but when she returned home she found him there. He immediately set upon her, and struck her several violent blows about the head, knocking her down. He continued his violence, and broke up the furniture. He pleaded guilty, and was ordered to return to gaol for a further period of six months. When the police arrested him they found in the house nine pairs of spectacles. They then charged him with having goods in his possession reasonably suspected to have been stolen. The magistrate (Mr. King) ordered him to serve a sentence of three months on the charge, which was made cumulative on the other sentence.

HARRY BRENNAN'S DEATH.

The City Coroner (Mr. H. S. Hawkins) held an inquest at the North Sydney Court House yesterday, concerning the death of Harry Brennan, aged 33 years, who was found dead in his room at a boarding-house in Campbell-street, North Sydney, on August 21.

Frances Marie Turnbull gave evidence that on August 15th the deceased took a room at her house, and paid in advance for the accommodation. He told her he was connected with the National Amphitheatre in Castlereagh-street, City. He retired to his room at about half-past 4 o'clock in the afternoon of August 20, being then under the influence of liquor, and she did not see him again alive. Next morning, as he did not appear at breakfast, she went to his room door and looked into the apartment, when she saw him lying on the bed dead. She had never heard him threaten to take his life, but he had told her he took drugs, and she advised him to discontinue them.

Marie Louise Brennan, widow of the deceased, stated that he had been manager of the National Amphitheatre. He left a will, but had no property. He had had financial troubles, and latterly had given way to intemperance, to such an extent that she was compelled to leave him.

Dr. Brierley testified that death was due to poison, a bottle of which was found on the table in the room.

The Coroner returned a verdict of death from poison, self administered.

THE CULT OF DRAMA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It is with deep regret that I note, in the report published by the committee appointed by the Minister for Instruction to deal with the suggested Conservatorium of Music and Fine Arts, that they have recommended that, "inasmuch as the theatre is well established among us, and does cultivate, now and then, the drama as an art, if anything is to be omitted from the scheme at this inaugural stage, it is the drama rather than one of those arts which are in even worse case." The drama of to-day has more influence upon the people than any of the other arts, and while the exercise of this art by its professors is evanescent, its result invariably remains indelibly impressed upon the character of the community; and then again, while the painter and sculptor can destroy and recreate, the actor has only the one opportunity of illustrating his art, and, considering the intricate nature of study required to attain perfection, it undoubtedly requires the control and guidance of master minds.

It is true that the theatres in Australasia are run as commercial enterprises; but how can it be otherwise? It is also true that immature talent and misdirected ability are often witnessed upon our boards, and that while we have many fine actors and actresses, the stage of Australasia needs recruits. That the committee should decide as they have done is to me, personally, a great grief; but I take consolation from the fact that it is just possible that the committee which have been appointed to arrange for a memorial to Shakespeare, the greatest of all dramatists, will see their way to adopt a scheme which may have some bearing upon this important matter. As a young and rising community, all matters affecting art should be regulated, and I fear very much that the non-inclusion of any representative of the stage upon the committee has resulted, in any case for the drama, in its true position not having been placed before the committee—hence their decision.

I am, etc.,
WALTER BENTLEY,
Hon. Gen. Secretary Actors' Association of Australasia.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. A. H. Simpson.)

DISPUTE BETWEEN POULTRY COMPANIES.

The Poultry Farmers' Co-operative Society, Limited, sought an injunction in regard to Co-operative Poultry, Limited. Mr. Bethune, instructed by Mr. J. A. Thompson, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Mann, instructed by Mr. W. U. Smyth King, for the defendant.

The plaintiff company set out that it was incorporated on May 29, 1905, and had since continuously carried on business in Sydney. The business mainly consisted of the sale of poultry on commission, as well as other produce, which was consigned by farmers to them. The company had established a valuable business connection and a widespread reputation. The defendant company was registered as a limited company on March 20 last. Thomas Reid, who was five years manager and salesman of the plaintiff company, left in December, 1910, and was one of the promoters of the new company, and intimately associated with it since its foundation. The objects of the defendant company were similar in nature to those of the plaintiff company, combined with a retail produce business. Plaintiff charged that the use by the defendant company of a name so similar to that used by the plaintiff was calculated to deceive, and the plaintiff company would necessarily suffer great loss and damage. It was argued, among other things, that the defendant company would be mistaken by customers of the plaintiff and other members of the public. Already, it was claimed, confusion had arisen with regard to consignments and correspondence owing to this similarity of names. The plaintiff asked that the defendant company be restrained from using the name "Co-operative Poultry, Limited," or any other name so framed as to be a colourable imitation of the name of the plaintiff company, or so nearly resembling plaintiff's name as to be calculated to deceive or mislead customers or the public that the business of the defendant company was the business carried on by the plaintiff company, or in any way connected with it.

In reply the defendant company set out that it was registered by the name of "Co-operative Poultry, Limited," and had used no other name. Thomas Reid was not one of the promoters of the company, nor did he enter the employ of the company for about a year after leaving the plaintiff company. The defendants admitted that the business carried on by both companies was somewhat similar, but they denied that the use of their name was calculated to deceive, or would be mistaken by plaintiff's customers, or the public, for the plaintiff company. The defendants denied also that any confusion had arisen to the plaintiff company by reason of the alleged similarity of name, and contended that they were entitled to use the name by which the company had been registered, and that the suit should be dismissed with costs.

The case stands part heard.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

PETITION WITHDRAWN.

Re James Croudace, Ltd.

Mr. B. Keith Cohen appeared for the petitioning creditor; and Mr. H. L. Tress, for the company. It was stated that this matter had been settled, and leave was accordingly given to withdraw the petition.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

SCOTT v SCOTT (OVERLACK, CO-RESPONDENT).

Andrew George Collins Scott petitioned for a dissolution of his marriage with Florence Ellen Scott (formerly Pepper), on the ground of her misconduct with Alfred Overlack, who was joined as co-respondent. Desertion also was alleged. Mr. L. B. Bertram appeared for petitioner. The parties were married on June 4, 1904, at Newtown.

His Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

GIBSON v GIBSON.

Emma May Gibson (formerly Ferguson) petitioned for a dissolution of her marriage with Edward Fenton Gibson, on the ground of desertion. Mr. R. W. Fraser appeared for petitioner. The parties were married on October 1, 1900, at Sydney.

His Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

HANNA v HANNA.

Mr. R. W. Fraser appeared for Eleanor Jane Hanna, formerly Burns, who petitioned for a divorce from her husband, George Bailey Hanna, on the ground of desertion. The parties were married on May 9, 1900, at North Sydney.

His Honor granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before the Registrar, Mr. Salusbury.)

CERTIFICATE APPLICATION.

Re Samuel Cavin Young. The matter was adjourned to September 9.

SINGLE MEETING AND PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

Re William Thompson. The bankrupt was examined by the official assignee. The matter was adjourned to September 10

HEARING OF PROOF OF DEBT.

Re Arthur Edgar Barnes, ex parte A. H. Lord and Co. The matter was adjourned to September 3.

PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

Re Frank Denis Brown. The examination was adjourned to Monday next. A report of yesterday's proceedings appears in another column.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Judge Scholes.)

Further argument was heard in the application by the employees for a variation in the Government Railways and Tramways (Tramway) Board.

Mr. Croft represented the applicants, and Mr. Cargill appeared for the defendant.

With his Honor on the Bench were Mr. Johnson (Chief Commissioner), Mr. Commissioner Richardson, and Messrs. Lawton and Kavanagh, as assessors. The case stands part heard.

COMMONWEALTH ARBITRATION COURT.

MARINE ENGINEERS AND STEAMSHIP-OWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

The case of the claimants was closed in the claim of the Australasian Institute of Marine Engineers, and the Commonwealth Steamship-Owners' Association.

Mr. C. M. M'Donald appeared for the Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association, and Mr. J. M'K. Corby for the Australasian Institute of Marine Engineers.

Opening the case for respondents, Mr. M'Donald argued that no evidence had been adduced to show there was any dispute in the interstate trades, and that, therefore, the companies should be dismissed from the plaint insofar as these vessels were concerned.

His Honor suggested that it might be desirable from the shipowners' point of view that the award should cover all services—State and interstate.

Mr. M'Donald pointed out that the difficulty in the matter was that the conditions in the State trades were entirely different from those obtaining in the interstate trade.

Mr. Corby said he had intended including the State vessels in the dispute, and he desired the award to be made in respect to them.

His Honor eventually decided that he would make his award as to interstate steamers only, and that between the date of reading the award and the date when the parties would speak to it, the shipowners would have an opportunity of consulting with the institute and arranging an agreement. If no agreement was arrived at his Honor would then consider whether he would make the award apply to State boats.

The first witness called for respondents was Mr. Raymond Oxford, local superintendent of the Huddart, Parker Company. His duties brought him into contact with fitters ashore, and he said there was no fitter employed in an engineering shop in Sydney who was not liable to be discharged when work was slack.

Mr. Corby: You prefer to employ young men, don't you, Mr. Oxford?

Witness: We employ them if they come along.

Mr. Corby: I understand that you want reliable men. Men you know will always be there when wanted—like policemen?

His Honor: I don't think you are entitled to say a policeman is always there when wanted. (Laughter.)

Mr. Corby: I have heard a song which states the contrary is the case.

Witness added that it was absolutely essential that an engineer should be on board ship when in port, Sundays and holidays included. An engineer received overtime for keeping ship on Sundays and holidays when in port. He had little to do but sleep, smoke, and read, and was paid for it.

Chas. Myine M'Donald, secretary of the Commonwealth Steamship-Owners' Association, put in a statement showing that the increases under the claim made by the engineers would amount to £21,390 per annum, or an increase of 27 1-3 per cent. on the present rate of wages. He added that the increases granted to the masters and officers under the last award of Mr. Justice Higgins amounted to 12.2 per cent. on the previous rates.

The Court adjourned until Thursday.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Docker and a jury.)

COMPENSATION CLAIM.

The case of William John Gerders, of North Sydney, against James O'Reilly, of George-street, Sydney, respecting a claim of £200 as compensation in a furniture transaction, was not concluded when the Court rose.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

Crown Prosecutor, Mr. H. Harris.

BOUND OVER.

George Dobbyn, who pleaded guilty to embezzling small sums of money belonging to his employers, the Colonial Mutual Life Assurance Society, Limited, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment, the sentence to be suspended under the First Offenders Act on accused finding a surety to be of good behaviour for 12 months. He was also ordered to make restitution in the sum of £25.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE.

Thomas Ludlow pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Wm. Andrew Hodkinson, at Marrickville, on August 3, and stealing a collar stud. He had served long terms of imprisonment in Queensland, New South Wales, and Victoria. His Honor ordered accused to be remanded for sentence.

"FORGOT ALL ABOUT IT."

Donald MacRae was acquitted on a charge of breaking and entering the Oriental Hotel, Springwood, on July 14.

Counsel said the hotel was entered on the night of July 13 by someone, who broke a window. Nothing was taken. Suspicion fell on accused, and when arrested and searched the police found pieces of glass in his pocket and putty in the folds of his trousers.

The landlord, Colin Wilson Thackeray, having given evidence, accused entered the witness-box, and said, "For four days previous to the day in question I was simply lost." He had forgotten all about the affair, so could give no evidence. "When I start drinking I can't stop," he added.

Accused, for whom Mr. G. Forbes appeared, was discharged, his Honor remarking that he did not think accused knew anything about it.

NO RESPONSE.

When the name of Margaret Waugh, indicted on a charge of uttering counterfeit coin, was called there was no response.

His Honor estreated the recognisances, and ordered a Bench warrant to issue for her arrest, on the understanding that if she attended next day it would not be put into execution.

STEALING LEATHER.

Arthur William Dale pleaded guilty to having stolen 1111 feet of leather, and was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, the sentence to be suspended under the first offenders' provisions. He was ordered to pay the sum of £18, as compensation, within three months.

LAND APPEAL COURT.

(Before Messrs. H. A. G. Curry, President, W. Houston, and C. E. Rennie.)

A HOME MAINTENANCE AREA.

Re S. G. Gordon.

Mr. Pike appeared for the appellant in support of his appeal against the decision of the Narrabri Land Board, in respect of his application to acquire by transfer Oswald Francis Boydell's settlement lease, Narrabri. Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Minister for Lands, to oppose.

It appeared that Gordon applied under section 11 of the Act of 1903, for leave to acquire, by transfer, a settlement lease of 4770 acres held by Boydell. Applicant was already the holder of a settlement lease of 3545 acres, and the two holdings, which were only separated by a road, made a combined total of 8215 acres. The Board refused to give their approval to the proposed transfer, on the ground that the two areas combined would be considerably more than sufficient to enable applicant to maintain a home thereon. Gordon now appealed.

The Court sustained the appeal, and remitted the case to the board for necessary approval.

A CONVERTIBLE AREA.

Re M. P. Brown.

Mr. Pike appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Hanbury Davies for the Minister for Lands. This was an appeal by M. P. Brown from the decision of the Land Board at Narrabri in respect of his application for the conversion of his settlement lease at Narrabri into a conditional purchase.

Judgment reserved.

CONTRIBUTION FOR RABBIT FENCING.

Re A. B. Woodhouse.

Mr. T. Rose appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Pike for the respondent, G. J. Davis. Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Minister for Lands. This was an appeal by A. B. Woodhouse against the decision of the Parkes Land Board in respect of the claim of George Joseph Davies for contribution towards the cost of erecting rabbit-proof fencing on the boundaries common to portions 12 and 14, parish of Curumbenya, land district of Parkes. The amount which appellant was ordered to pay was £28 12s 6d, being half the cost of the fencing, and he now appealed.

The Court dismissed the appeal, and allowed respondent £2 2s costs.

CROWN LEASE UNDER THE NEW ACT.

Re A. Larking.

Mr. Hanbury Davies appeared for the Minister for Lands, and Mr. Thomas Rose for the respondent, Alexander Larking. This was an application on behalf of the Minister for Lands for a return to the Condobolin Land Board for rehearing of Alexander Larking's Crown lease application, in the Condobolin land district.

The Court reserved judgment in this case, and also in an application by the Minister for Lands for a reference to the Condobolin Land Board of Joseph Larking's Crown lease application at Condobolin.

APPEAL AGAINST A RECOMMENDATION.

Re E. Shanahan.

Mr. H. Brae appeared in support of appeal; and Mr. Hanbury Davies in support of the recommendation of the Local Land Board, Deniliquin. This was an appeal by E. Shanahan against the recommendation of the board for refusal of his application to convert his special lease Deniliquin into a conditional purchase.

The Court held that the objections to the lease were founded upon contingencies which were too remote. The appeal was, therefore, sustained, and the application remitted to the board for necessary action.

APPEAL AGAINST APPRAISEMENT.

Re J. Donovan.

Mr. H. Brae appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Hanbury Davies for the Minister for Lands. This was an appeal by J. Donovan against the appraised annual rental of his special lease at Deniliquin.

The case stands part heard.

POLICE COURTS.

MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT.

HEAVY PENALTY IMPOSED.

Arthur Bertram Curran appeared at the Paddington Police Court yesterday, with his head tied in bandages, on a charge of having destroyed a vase in Centennial Park, the property of the trustees, on August 12. The defendant pleaded guilty.

The deputy ranger of the park, W. H. Austin, stated that at 1.45 a.m. on the date of the offence he was called up, the messenger stating that there had been a motor car smash on the grand drive, near the Cleveland street gates. When he got to the scene there were several people lying about, more or less injured. Inquiries elicited the information that the car had run off the road and crashed into a large vase on a pedestal standing at the end of the footpath, some distance from the track.

Curran claimed that the night was dark and foggy. He and his friends had been for a drive to Bondi Beach.

The magistrate (Mr. Payten) fined the defendant £20, or four months.

CHARGE OF BIGAMY.

Herbert Lees Edwards, 32, was charged at the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Smithers, S.M., with bigamy. The charge alleged that: (1) At Longreach, Macleay River, on August 12, 1902, he married Marion Mabel M'Kay, and that while so married he did, on December 20, 1905, at Sydney, marry Violet Joyce, Mabel Marion M'Kay being then alive; and (2) that at Newtown, on November 18, 1911, he married Pearl Everton.

The accused was remanded, on the application of the police.

INTERNATIONAL AMATEUR BILLIARDS.

The proposal to send an Australian representative to take part in the British amateur billiard championship was not advanced by the recent Australian championship in which the form displayed was the worst in point of averages and breaks since its inauguration. On their late showing, it would be foolish to send any of those who competed, but it does not follow that no amateur in Australia possesses the necessary qualifications. Unfortunately, our best amateurs did not compete in the preliminary to the big event—the State championship—and, as it is the practice that the winner of the State event should represent his territory in the Australasian championship, the best players did not take part in the recent contest. In Messrs. Belfield and Hooper the mother State has two of the best amateur billiardists in the world. The latter is specially gifted in the art, and both John Roberts and H. W. Stevenson have stated that the Novocastrian is the finest amateur player in the world. Mr. Hooper defeated Roberts and Stevenson at different times, and put up a good game against Reece recently. In addition to billiards Mr. Hooper is a champion golfer, tennis player, and bowler, and were he to enter the list in next year's amateur billiard championship, another name would most assuredly be added to the roll of winners.

THE TURF.

THE ECLIPSE STAKES.

The enjoyment of the racing at Sandown Park on Eclipse Stakes Day (July 19) was marred by a persistent rainfall; nevertheless, there was a large attendance, which included King George V. and a large retinue. The Eclipse Stakes, which was worth £8735 to the winner, attracted eight starters—Mr. T. Pilkington's b h Prince Palatine, by Persimmon—Lady Lightfoot, 10st (F. O'Neill), 1; Lord Derby's ch h Stedfast, by Chaucer—Be Sure, 4yrs, 10st (D. Maher), 2; Mr. J. B. Joel's b h Lycaon, by Cyllene—La Vierge, 4yrs, 9st 11lb (F. Wootton), 3; John Amendall, by Count Schomberg—Black Cherry, 8st 10lb; La Boheme II., by William the Third—Sacha, 9st 5lb; Tagalie, by Cyllene—Tagale, 8st 13lb; Silesia, by Spearmint—Galicia, 8st 2lb; and King William, by William the Third—Glasalt, 9st 11lb. Lord Derby, who had two representatives, declared to win with Stedfast, who started at odds of 13 to 8 on; the Derby winner, Tagalie, was next fancied at 9 to 2 against; 6 to 1 was available about Prince Palatine, and 10 to 1 about Lycaon, while any price could be had about the others. The race itself was remindful of the great battles fought out by Ard Patrick and Sceptre in 1903 and the dead heat registered for Lemberg and Neil Gow seven years later. Adopting her Derby tactics, Tagalie at once settled down as pacemaker from the French representative, La Boheme II., and Stedfast, while Prince Palatine was prominent in the back division. In making the final turn Maher gave the favourite his head, and, coming on the outside, headed Tagalie and La Boheme II. as they swung into line for home, while in the meantime Prince Palatine made up his leeway, and, running past Tagalie, threw out a bold challenge to Stedfast at the distance. He was level with Stedfast in a few strides, and thence the issue was in doubt up to the last stride, and had the judge hoisted the numbers for a dead heat the majority of the spectators would not have questioned his decision, but as it was he declared in favour of Prince Palatine by a short head. It was a great battle, in which two good horses and two expert riders took part, and was fully up to the best traditions of the English turf. Owing to the heavy state of the track, the time—2m 12 1-5s for the mile and a quarter—was 4 4-5s slower than the record for the race, put up by Diamond Jubilee in 1900.

NOTES.

In following the lead of the Australian Jockey Club with regard to investing the supervision of racing in the metropolitan districts to stipendiary stewards—not excepting the meetings held at Flemington—the decision of the Victoria Racing Club cannot fail to give general satisfaction. According to the "Argus," rumours have for some time past been in circulation as to the unsatisfactory condition of the turf in Melbourne from a moral standpoint; consequently the announcement of the governing body did not come as a surprise. Racing has now become more of a business concern than a pastime, large monetary interests are involved, and it is incumbent on the governing bodies to adopt the best system for keeping the sport clean, and ensuring a fair deal to all connected with turf pursuits. In this State the control of racing by stipendiary stewards was first instituted, and now that it has had a lengthy trial in the metropolitan area, and has also been extended to provincial racing with the best results, its usefulness has been fully recognised. In their day honorary stewards have done good work in dealing with and suppressing turf abuses; but in numbers of instances they lack the essential qualifications for the position. The executive bodies of the A.J.C. and V.R.C. have come to the conclusion that men who make a continual study of the game, and who have the public form of horses constantly before them, are better fitted to detect wrongdoing than those who supervise only a few race meetings during the year, and it is satisfactory to find that the committees of these institutions have adopted that view of the matter. In the hands of capable men the stipendiary system that comes into vogue next November should be a strong factor towards ridding the turf of undesirables and promoting clean sport.

The Fulham Park stud, established over 40 years ago by Mr. W. Blackler, near Adelaide (S.A.), has changed hands, the estate having been recently purchased by the Australian cattle king, Mr. Sydney Kidman, who intends to carry on the establishment as heretofore. Mr. W. A. Blackler, who succeeded the founder of the stud, has for some time past been in indifferent health, owing to which he could not efficiently supervise the management of the concern, and decided to retire, hence the sale. The estate comprises nearly 300 acres of land in the lucerne country about five miles from Adelaide, and the homestead is situated on a creek that runs through the property. The new owner of Fulham Park is no novice as a studmaster, inasmuch as he has a number of mares at his Norley and Bulla Downs stations, and he owns the stallion Sir Simon (sire of the hurdle racer Bullawarra), whom he intends to locate at Fulham Park, as well as the best of the mares aforesaid. It is also probable that he will further strengthen the stud by the importations of mares from England, and restore the establishment to the prestige it achieved when Richmond, Countryman, Winterlake, Conrad, Port Admiral, and Thunderbolt held court.

Prince Palatine's success in the Eclipse Stakes had the effect of sending up his defunct sire, Persimmon, to second place behind Cyllene on the list of English winning sires. On July 22 Cyllene had 12 wins to his credit for £18,403, of which £11,250 was contributed by Tagalie for her One Thousand Guineas and Derby wins; while Persimmon's total on that date was £13,368 for four wins, of which Prince Palatine was responsible for £12,265. Prince Palatine and Tagalie are first and second on the list of winning horses.

The winners of the big jumping events at Flemington and Caulfield were all Stud Book horses, and the same remark applies to Captain Jingle, who secured the New Zealand Grand National Steeplechase. Captain Webb, the sire of Captain Jingle, is by Natator (son of Traducer) from Fame, by The Painter (son of The Marquis) from Maid of the Mist, by Antidote (son of The Cure), while his dam, Jingle, is by Fusilade (son of Musket) from Chatelaine, by Albany (son of Thormanby) from Trinket, by Traducer (son of The Libel); and, like Wingarara, Guncap, Uxbridge, and Scrutineer, possesses a strain of the potent Musket blood, which he gets through his dam, Jingle.

The richly-endowed National Breeders' Produce Stakes (for two years old), decided at Sandown Park (Eng.) on the second day of the Eclipse Stakes meeting, was secured by Lord Rosebery's filly Prue, by Cicero from Prune, by Persimmon, after a great struggle with Lord Michelham's unnamed filly, half-sister (by Radium) to Mr. Francis Foy's brood mare Playaway (imp.), who won the V.R.C. Newmarket Handicap, 1905. Prue carried 3lb more than the Concertina filly, who was only beaten by a head. The race was worth £4357 to the owner of the winner.

The French sportsman M. San Miguel, who sent La Boheme II. across the Channel to compete in the Eclipse Stakes, had better luck with another of his team. Gorgorito, who, on the 21st ult., captured the Grand Prix at Ostend, run over 1¼m and 110yds, and worth over £5000 to the winner. Though bred in France, the colt is of purely English blood, as his sire Gorgos (who credited Mr. Arthur James with the Two Thousand Guineas, 1906), is by Ladas from The Gorgon, while his dam Primousse is by St. Frusquin from Themis, bred by Mr. L. de Rothschild, and after a short racing career was sent to France. This was Gorgorito's first victory, and his owner celebrated it in a sportsmanlike manner by distributing a large portion of the stakes among French and Belgian charitable institutions.

As a starter for Grand National events in New Zealand Paritutu must (says "Phaeton," in the N.Z. "Herald") have the record. In 1908 Paritutu was produced at Riccarton to contest the Grand National Hurdle Race, and he beat all his opponents save Shrapnel. Twelve months subsequently the veteran was again found battling for honours in the same event, but a lightweight in the shape of Stormont was in the way of scoring, and he again filled the role of runner-up. In the succeeding year Paritutu made a third effort to capture Grand National Hurdle honours, but he had the bad luck to find a great one in the shape of Paisano in the way, and he again came home in second place. Last year the old fellow had the record of contesting both Grand Nationals. He scored a victory in the Steeplechase, but ill-luck befel him in the Hurdle Race, in which, by a faulty jump, he unseated his rider. By getting up into second place in the last Grand National Steeplechase Paritutu demonstrated that he is carrying his 12 years wonderfully well. Up to the present Paritutu has contested 138 races.

The Western Australian sportsman, Mr. W. L. Doolette has retired the imported mare Oi from active service, and sends the well-performed daughter of Worcester and St. Cicely to be mated with the French horse Monitor at the Richmond Park stud, South Australia; and his other imported mares, Springnote, Quintanona, and Blue Dress, will also visit the same horse.

The death of the thoroughbred sire Fred Foote is reported from Cunnamulla. The son of imported Sir Foote and Rosalind was at stud duty on Messrs. Ord and Rowe's station, Wyandra, and received accidental injuries, to which he succumbed.

A record was made in the totalisator returns on the day the German Derby was run off at Hamburg, when the turnover exceeded the million marks (£50,000), never obtained before at any meeting in Hoppegarten.

Racing men who will remember that good horse Battalion, who was one of the best advertisements Queensland has ever had, will (says a northern exchange) regret to learn that a former owner, Nat. Stagg, who for the past 15 years has been a respected member of the Queensland police force, now lies at Gympie, stricken with paralysis of the whole of the right side of his body. Buying Battalion from his breeder, when the colt was 18 months old, for £12, Stagg won a couple of races with him at Dalby and Toowoomba, and afterwards sold him to Mr. Hatton, of Dalby, for £40 cash, and £20 from the first stake won. Hatton quickly got the purchase money back by winning the Brisbane Cup with Battalion, whose subsequent career on the turf is so well known. Poor Stagg has not amassed a fortune as a constable, and, unlike other pensioners, is unable to care for himself or provide for his little family of three.

Lord Firebrand, who ran third in the Austrian Derby on July 22, a week later won the Kaiser Prize, 1¼m, at Kottingbrunn. He was piloted by the Victorian lad, S. Ferguson. Lord Firebrand is by Matchmaker from Lady Agnes, by Tredennis.

During the racing week covered by the latest files to hand from England Frank Wootton rode three winners at Liverpool, and W. Huxley scored a success at the same meeting.

GOLF.

AUSTRALIAN AND DOBROYDE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

OPEN DAY AT PARRAMATTA.

CLUB COMPETITIONS.

The Australian Club's championship was concluded last week-end, and resulted in a win for Gordon Craig, who defeated P. Sydney Jones by one hole after a close and exciting match. It was generally expected that Jones would carry off the championship, but Craig displayed some of the form which a few years back made him such a powerful player, and gave his opponent as tight a match as he has probably ever played. Both men played well, except for an occasional lapse, while the form of each on the putting greens was remarkably fine, an exceptional number of long putts being holed.

At the conclusion of the morning round, during which the players were together all the way, Craig had an advantage of one hole, and in the afternoon he not only held his lead, but increased it, until at the 15th he was 2 up with 3 holes to play. The 16th was halved, and Craig was then dormy 2. The 17th was won by Jones in good style, and at the last hole Craig was about 6ft from the pin after playing three good shots, and having two putts to halve the hole, and win the match, used them and scored a good win. Craig is to be complimented on his success, as Jones has been playing a great form lately. Both players are members of the Bonnie Doon Club, with which they played in interclub matches throughout the season.

The Dobroyde championship was advanced to the semi-final stage. G. B. Thomas, playing his usual solid match game, quite outclassed C. C. Nelson, who has been playing well, and whose chances were much favoured by many of the members. Both played their long game well, but Thomas' approaches, especially from a distance, were too consistently good, and Nelson suffered defeat by 6 up and 4. F. S. Shenstone, playing steadily, easily accounted for H. O. Clissold by 4 up and 2. The latter seemed to be nervous and appeared to feel the importance of the match.

Keith Harrison, who has lately been showing glimpses of his old form, beat J. M. Edwards comfortably by 5 up and 4. If Harrison devotes a little more time to practice he has an excellent chance of regaining the championship. J. S. Carton made a good fight against C. G. W. Davidson over the first 9 holes, the match being square at the turn. Coming home, however, Davidson, aided by some very fine putting, went ahead, and won by 4 up and 3. In the semi-final round, a good match should be that between G. B. Thomas and F. S. Shenstone, but K. Harrison should beat C. G. W. Davidson.

A match had been arranged during the week-end between the probable team to represent New South Wales in Melbourne, and the "next best" amateurs, but owing to the inability to play of several members of the probable team, it was not carried through.

This State will be represented in Melbourne next month by a fairly strong side, which should be able to put up a good fight to retain the interstate premiership won at Rose Bay last year. Messrs. O. H. O'Brien, E. L. Apperly, N. F. Christoe, W. S. Laidley, P. Sydney Jones, T. Smith, H. N. Giblin, W. A. Windeyer, H. Terrey, P. W. Pope, and A. Orr are all going to Melbourne, and the first four have been selected as certainties, with the necessary authority to select three men from the others to complete the team. It is likely that the team will be completed by the inclusion of P. S. Jones, T. Smith, and either H. N. Giblin or W. A. Windeyer.

O. H. O'Brien, playing at Kensington a few days ago in a four-ball match, put up a splendid round of 72, one of the best, if not actually the best round which has ever been recorded on the course. His score was:—

Out: 4, 5, 4, 4, 4, 6, 3, 4, 4=38
In: 4, 2, 4, 4, 4, 5, 3, 3, 5=34

Every hole was played out, and O'Brien did not hole any long putts, which makes the round all the more remarkable. His long game was perfect, and he, on several occasions, laid long brassey shots dead on the pin. One of the players characterised it as the best golf he had ever seen played. O'Brien has been playing well lately, his last four rounds averaging 75. If he can maintain his form he should have a good chance in the Australian amateur championship in Melbourne next month.

Parramatta held a very successful open stroke handicap, though the entry was not quite as good as might have been expected. The links were in excellent order, and the greens were particularly true, a fact which all the visitors properly appreciated. C. V. Cobcroft, of Dobroyde, proved to be the winner, with an exceptionally good card of 79—12=67. His card read:—

Out: 4, 4, 3, 5, 5, 4, 5, 5, 6=41
In: 6, 4, 4, 5, 4, 4, 4, 4, 3=38

Cobcroft's long game was very good, and, though he threw one or two strokes away, he finished splendidly, the last two holes being taken in 4 and 3, the bogey being 5 in each case. His card beat that of W. E. Bain, also of Dobroyde, by 6 strokes. Bain, though at times erratic from the tees, approached and putted very well. He was out in 38, equal to bogey, and back in 44. W. E. Addison and W. Heyde led for third place, with cards of 74 net. W. S. Laidley, with 80, had, next to the winner, the best gross score. He was out in 37 and back in 43.

Long markers were much in evidence at Kensington on Saturday. A. H. Starling, with 102—27=75 winning by one stroke from A. B. Tunmer, 105—25=76. Other players were only a stroke or two behind, the results being very even. O. H. O'Brien, with 78, had the best gross round.

At Rose Bay W. D. Sarratt, an improving player with a good style, secured a comfortable lead of four strokes in the first round of the President's match for Sir James Fairfax's trophy, his card reading 88—17=71. G. H. Adams and F. J. Smith were together with 75 net for second place, and were followed by C. H. Reading and H. A. Howden, who, from scratch, recorded five rounds of 76 each. The final round will be played on Saturday.

Mixed foursomes were played at Bonnie Doon, Concord, and Manly, the entry at Manly being a very long one. At Bonnie Doon Miss Fahey and S. Wright won easily with 92—27=72, the second pair being Mrs. Roberts and P. R. Russell, with 78 net. Three pairs tied at Concord, with 83 net. Miss Walker and G. L. Mullins returned a steady even card, showing 49 each way, while Miss Cameron and R. W. M'Kellar, who were out well in 47, fell away coming home, taking 51. The third pair, Mrs. and H. W. Chambers, also went out well, taking 46 to the turn, but a 7 at the 10th and a 9 at the 16th spoilt their card coming home. The results at Manly were not very good, Mrs. Bonner and G. J. Wilkinson, with a liberal handicap of 23 against bogey, winning with a card of one down, from Mrs. Wilkinson and T. Tombleson (17) 2 down.

Men's foursomes were played at Hunter's Hill, and resulted in a tie between R. C. Lethbridge and R. D. Fitzgerald (6) and G. W. Phillips and F. Du Boise (14) with cards of one down.

Playing at Manly in a four-ball match L. Tenbosch put a fine round of 74, and won a trophy offered by R. W. Pritchett nearly two years ago for the best player to play the course with no figure on his card higher than a 5. Tenbosch's figures were:—

Out: 3, 5, 3, 5, 5, 4, 3, 5, 4=37
In: 4, 4, 4, 3, 5, 4, 4, 4, 5=37

The Killara Club sent a team of 15 to Newcastle, where a match was played against the local club. Newcastle is easily the strongest club in New South Wales outside of the metropolis, and they experienced no difficulty in defeating the visitors. W. P. Maschwitz, F. Amphlett, W. Atkins, C. G. Hodgson, and H. I. Howard were the only Killara men to win matches, those of Maschwitz over A. A. Burke and Amphlett over J. W. Greaves being particularly meritorious. Killara plays home and home matches with Newcastle each year, the fixtures being exceedingly popular. The visitors on Saturday were entertained in a most hospitable manner by the Newcastle golfers, and, though beaten, had a very enjoyable trip.

BASEBALL.

THE DISTRICT PREMIERSHIP.

Although Leichhardt were decisively beaten by Petersham, both teams being defeated through the absence of regular players in Melbourne, it was found that Wenholz, a recruit from the second team, who pitched and won, was not eligible, in accordance with the residential qualification provided in the competition rules; consequently there was no alternative but to uphold the protest lodged by the losers. Leichhardt were quite within their rights in protesting; they had been penalised for a similar lapse previously. Petersham have themselves to blame for not ascertaining beforehand whether Wenholz was eligible.

The result of the trouble is that University and Leichhardt will probably have to play off to decide the premiership, unless either Burwood or Lane Cove, whom they will meet at Leichhardt Park on Saturday, should create a surprise. Great interest has been aroused, and the meeting of the leaders is being eagerly looked forward to.

As in the higher grade, the concluding contests for the honours in the A division are causing much excitement amongst club followers. St. George, last year's winners, hold the key to the situation, but as they have yet to engage Waverley and Petersham Juniors, the issue is still uncertain. The Juniors are the only team that have defeated them this season, and their prospects of securing the pennant are quite as bright as the leaders.

For the B division premiership there appears to be some doubt as to the correct position of affairs, but if Waverley's third and fourth teams have to play a deciding game it will very likely take place at Waverley Park on Saturday.

Erroneous interpretations of the laws of the game have caused much dissatisfaction and confusion to players. At times bad decisions have vitally affected results. The phraseology of the rules, as drafted by the American authorities, is too complex to readily understand. Baseball is too difficult for one man to properly control. In all the important games in the home of the sport there are never fewer than two umpires. In one game last Saturday there were two wrong decisions given. A batter was given first base, hit by a pitched ball at which he struck, and a runner was given out after being obstructed by the fielder.

An umpires' association has been formed, and several meetings have been held, at which a common interpretation of some of the rules was arrived at, but the good work accomplished came too late to be of practical service this season. It would be invaluable to the game if, between seasons, an organised effort were made to thoroughly discuss the rules so that next year every umpire would be competent to legally uphold his decisions.

Last Saturday's games furnished two surprises, the two lowest clubs in the competition, Paddington and Mosman-North Sydney, finishing their engagements with wins against Lane Cove and Waverley. Fortune has not been kind to either, but both have stood loyally to their guns despite many defeats. In the circumstances their victories were very popular.

The display of Petersham Juniors against Waverley II., who defeated them in their first contest, was a revelation to those who had never seen them on the diamond. Consisting of schoolboys and ex-schoolboys from Petersham Public School, they have shown remarkable aptitude in so short a time that future possibilities may be far reaching. In knowledge, skill, smartness, and execution they even now compare more than favourably with older and more experienced players. Should they keep together, and continue to improve, there is little doubt that in a few more seasons they will climb to the top of the ladder. It is not alone in individual efficiency that they stand out so conspicuously but also in combination, in which they have already attained a high standard.

Waverley Fourths is another team of boys that may be classed in the same category. For their training and coaching they and the game are under an obligation to T. Roberts and W. Bell, whose work has been a labour of love, and bids fair to reap a bountiful harvest.

CRICKET.

THE TRIANGULAR TOURNAMENT

TESTS REVIEWED.

The final match of the triangular tournament was in some respects the most disappointing of the series. It was played throughout under most disheartening circumstances of weather and wicket, and, as far as can be judged, with the luck of the game running strongly in one direction all the time. The "Oval" has well maintained its reputation as England's lucky ground. If there was one thing that Australians desired above all else for this match, it was fine weather, for in bright sunshine, on a good wicket, they were much more likely to do justice to their skill than under any other conditions. The fates decreed otherwise, however; it was a wet-weather match of the most pronounced type, and the conditions were the most unsuitable that could have happened for Australian prospects. This was an occasion, too, when winning the toss might yield a tremendous advantage, but this piece of good fortune was also denied the tourists, for Gregory, for the third time in succession against England, lost the toss. Even with teams fairly equally matched, and quite familiar with the special conditions of the game, first use of the wicket often offered the opportunity of establishing an early winning advantage. Often enough the first-wicket partnership has provided that advantage; it did so for us, for instance, at Manchester in 1902; and here was another example. Rhodes and Hobbs got 100 runs on the board before either was out. Of course, Rhodes and Hobbs are deserving of great credit for this feat; they certainly made the most of the sodden pitch before it had dried sufficiently to become difficult. They are, as we know too well, an exceptional pair of batsmen, wonderfully skilful on wet-laden wickets, and adepts in the art of gathering short runs. It is precisely under conditions such as these that the ability to gather those stolen singles is so valuable. All honour, therefore, to this pair of professionals; their first-wicket partnership was a salient feature of the match, for it presented their side with a winning advantage, just as that of Trumper (104) and Duff (55) did to theirs in the Manchester test referred to above. There was just one chance left for the Australians to neutralise this advantage, viz., on a quick-drying ground like the oval for the wicket, in the absence of further rain, to roll out a good batting proposition for the last innings. But there was plenty more rain and frequent interruptions to the play, so that the fourth innings possibility of recovery never materialised.

With so many interruptions in the game it is necessarily very difficult to follow the run of the luck, but it seems pretty clear that the stoppage of the game early in England's second innings (when England had lost two for 7 on the pitch that seven Australian wickets had fallen for 21) was a piece of luck for the home team, as was also the "easing" of the wicket later in the innings, during which time Fry and Douglas put on 79 runs. This partnership, along with the first-wicket effort of Rhodes and Hobbs, represents a good deal of England's winning margin in the match; and, considering the circumstances of the game under which they were compiled, one wonders how much difference it would have made had the luck been the other way round.

PLAYING TO A FINISH.

On the whole, Australian cricket has no reason to complain of the result of the triangular competition. England, 1; Australia, 2, and South Africa, 3, is, no doubt, the correct position of the competing teams. Still, we have some regrets regarding the competition, especially that the supremacy should have rested upon the result of one match between Australia and England, especially, too, when that match was played under abnormal conditions distinctly favourable to one of the contestants. There is one gratifying feature to us, however, about that final match, viz., that it was played to a finish, although it did exceed the time-honoured three-day limit. It is the very first occasion upon which the three-day limit has been exceeded in England, but we hope it will not be the last. It has always been Australia's contention that the tests in England should all be played to a finish, and we are entitled to hope now that this will be the thin end of the wedge. It is all very well to play out the last test of a series, and make it the deciding game, but we are of opinion that such an arrangement is not the most desirable one. It attaches too much importance to one game, during which luck may so obviously favour one side as to give their opponents no chance at all of winning the match. The only satisfactory way is to play all the test matches to a finish. It is due to the visiting side and the country which sends them that the test matches should be played out. Probably if our teams of a few tours back had been satisfied to play only three tests, an arrangement might have been made to play them to a finish. There seemed more money, however, in five tests, though limited to three days, than in three played-out matches. Now that the Australian Board of Control has charge of affairs, and finance is not the all-important consideration in the arrangement of fixtures, efforts, no doubt, will be made to have all future tests played to a finish. The Board of Control, we think, might reasonably insist upon it, and now, that one match has been played out in this way, is the appropriate time to take action in the matter.

WHERE THE TRIANGULAR SCHEME FAILED.

The failure to play to a finish all the matches of the triangular tournament was one of the outstanding defects of the scheme, and one of the contributory causes of its failure. It led to the seemingly insuperable difficulty of designing an equitable method of reckoning points in the competition, so that none knew, till a special meeting of the imperial conference decided after the final test match had been in progress how the matter was to be finally settled. That decision in itself did not seem quite the thing, seeing that England, enjoying fortune's favours, had already got the match virtually won, although we hardly know what other arrangement could have been made at that stage. It seems so obviously the correct thing, that the conditions of the competition should be known before the competition is started, that we wonder some method of counting points was not framed, or that a bigger effort was not made to play them all to a finish. Did it not seem the height of absurdity that South Africa and Australia (both of whom are accustomed to playing to a finish in their own country) should lay down their implements with the object of their meeting unfinished, simply because they were "in England"? True, only one of their matches was drawn, but they might have had all three unfinished. Even if English cricketers could not see their way to spare the time from county cricket, or to so far break through long-established custom (one of the hardest things to do in England), as to play test matches to a finish, there was no reason why Australia and South Africa should not do so. However, it is not likely that the opportunity for them to do so will soon come round again, for a second triangular tournament must seem a very remote possibility.

The 1912 tournament has failed, mainly, for two other reasons besides the one already mentioned, viz., because it has been victimised by the abnormally wet season (with its deleterious effects upon the remainder of the visitors' tours as well as the tests), and, secondly, because the South Africans have shown up so badly in the test series. Both of these circumstances, of course, have had very serious bearing upon the financial aspect. The wet season, however, is merely an accidental happening; it could neither have been anticipated nor avoided. The South African weakness, on the other hand, has been nothing short of calamitous, and a very sad blow to the strongest advocates of the scheme. To say the least, it has been a very disastrous season for African cricket. Five such defeats as the team has suffered in the tests must mean a tremendous loss of prestige, which will surely take many years to recover. Until that time arrives it is no use thinking about any more triangular contests.

ENGLAND'S SUPREMACY.

It is generally admitted that England's team deserved to win the championship. Man for man it looks a good deal better than either of the other two, but in the matter of actual results, the superiority is less apparent. It shows itself chiefly in the bowling. Of course, the wet season has been a bowler's harvest, and it is not surprising to have the leading bowlers coming out with very flattering results. The deadly nature of England's attack is emphasised in the statistical result that 87 opponents were dismissed at an average of 14.26 per man, whereas the Australian bowlers dismissed their 87 opponents at an average of 23.65 per man. Both, of course, included the South Africans amongst their opponents, but, maybe, the English bowlers against Australian batting had a somewhat easier task than Australian bowling against English batting. That is, perhaps, the way we feel about it, but the batting statistics do not bear out that impression, for whereas England's batting average per man is 25.19, that of the Australians is 27.66 per wicket. The Africans are a long way behind in both respects, with 17.21 per wicket for, and 30.17 per wicket against.

WEIGHTY BOWLING FIGURES.

The bowling averages, for instance, convey a fund of information and suggestion. During the campaign the English bowlers captured 84 wickets, fifty-six of them (those taken by Barnes and Woolley) at an average cost of less than 10 runs per wicket. In addition, Dean has captured 11 wickets at 13.90 runs per wicket, and Foster 13 at 18.00 per wicket. These figures are eloquent testimony to the hostility of England's attack. Barnes, of course, has been the star performer, although Woolley beats him by a trifle in the matter of averages. Barnes, however, has taken 39 wickets at an average of 10.35 runs per wicket. As a medium-paced right-hander his figures may be put against those of our three medium-paced right-handers—Hazlitt, Kelleway, and Minnett. These latter have between them taken 35 wickets at an average cost of 21.34 per wicket. That comparison shows a tremendous advantage in favour of Barnes; he has taken more wickets than our three put together, and he has taken them at less than half the cost. Between them England's left-hand bowlers—Woolley, Dean, Foster, and Rhodes—have taken 44 wickets at an average cost of 13.90 runs per wicket; our left-handers, Whitty and Macartney, 31 wickets at 20.54 per wicket. Here again the balance of advantage is very much in England's favour. England used no "googlie" bowling, and ours, as represented by Emery's figures (5 wickets at 48.90 apiece), was a failure. In the matter of leg-break bowling, however, Matthews' fifteen wickets at an average of 17.00 per wicket easily overshadows that of J. W. Hearne, one wicket for 36.

THE GREATEST BOWLER OF THE DAY.

Barnes, of course, is a remarkable bowler judged by any standard and upon his work under any conditions of play. He stands first amongst the medium-paced right-hand bowlers of the day, and, perhaps, it is not too much to say of him that under all conditions of play he is the world's best bowler. Australian cricketers have long recognised and feared his extraordinary bowling skill, but it is only quite recently that English cricket has properly appreciated it.

CONCERNING THE LEFTHANDERS.

The success of Woolley is another significant feat. Woolley on Australian appearances never looked more than a very ordinary performer, a bowler who, brought up under Australian conditions of play, would hardly gain recognition as a first-class bowler at all. His success does not mean that he has improved on his Australian form; it merely emphasises the fact, frequently overlooked by our selectors of teams, that a left-handed bowler need not be a champion in Australia to be a pronounced success in the old country; or put it in another way, inability to command success on our wickets is no reason why, in the case of a left-hander, he should not be most successful under English conditions, or at least be given the opportunity to be so. At the present moment R. J. A. Massie looks to us the type of left-handed bowler who would command success in the old country. One frequently notices that the left-hander who does best under Australian conditions does not relatively do so well in England, and as a further illustration of this notion we might take the results of Whitty and Foster in the season's tests. Twenty-five wickets at 19.80 per wicket and 13 at 18.00 per wicket read in themselves very satisfactory performances, but considering this year's special circumstances they are not relatively nor absolutely nearly so good as they should have been.

BATTING DISAPPOINTMENTS—AND SUCCESSES.

Turning now to the batting figures. Judged by results our batting has been more successful than that of our opponents, and yet the majority of people would be inclined to say that it was the batting of the team that failed. It would be more correct to say, perhaps, that it disappointed, rather than failed. Certain individuals failed, but others did so remarkably well as to counter-balance that failure. Jennings, Minnett, Smith, and Gregory all may be said to have disappointed us in the tests, but Bardsley, Kelleway, and Macartney made up for this overdraft in our hopes, with a little interest besides. Bardsley and Kelleway between them made very nearly half the runs made by the whole side (752 out of 1577); if we add Macartney's 197 we have practically two-thirds of the total runs made by Australia. It is not unusual for three or even two batsmen to make a great proportion of the runs. For the 1909 team, for instance, notwithstanding the presence of all the Australian giants of the willow in the team, three batsmen—Bardsley, Ransford, and Gregory made just 25 runs short of half the total made by the whole side. On that occasion Bardsley's aggregate was 396, on this, 392. His average is better this time, 66.33, as against 44.00 last time.

KEEPING THE FLAG FLYING.

These are remarkable figures; the best that any Australian batsman has ever secured in two successive tours. Kelleway's batting results are also remarkably good (360 runs at an average of 60.00 per innings). These two have done most memorable work for Australia in this test series; they have kept flying the Australian flag of batsmanship.

ATHLETICS.

A.A.A. COUNCIL MEETING.

The delegates at the monthly meeting of the Council of the N.S.W. Amateur Athletic Association on Thursday were well provided with business of a debatable nature, and the discussion at times became very heated. Applications were received from the Cumberland and Y.M.C.A. Clubs for sanction to conduct open events on September 28. Under a new rule of the association, passed at the annual meeting in May, it is provided that two Saturdays in each month must be reserved for club racing. Permission having been granted for open events on September 7 and 21, neither of the remaining Saturdays could be allotted for inter-club events, and while the rule is in force the races for which sanction had been applied for cannot be held. The wisdom of this rule is open to question, as important athletic gatherings, at which events for members of all clubs are provided for, cannot be accepted if arranged upon a date recognised as a club Saturday, and under the existing by-law the request must be declined.

The majority of amateur athletes prefer to participate in open contests, where the competition is keener and the prizes greater than journeying to the club grounds. Delegates at the council meeting realised this, and at a special meeting convened for Monday next it will be moved that the rule now standing shall be rescinded. Those who take the broader view of the question are opposed to the conditions at present existing, but a feature that cannot be comprehended by them is that members of new clubs appear to approach open competition with timidity, the men apparently failing to realise that this branch of the sport is the best means of developing good athletes, and an opportunity is afforded them of displaying their talent. Some clubs, favouring the rule in force, desire to be continually considered in the list of weak clubs. Many of these have been in existence for a longer period than the recognised strong bodies, but little advancement is made because the members favour the petty club gatherings, where the quality seldom displays improvement, and the men do not attempt to grasp the advantage of the wider branches of athletic sport. If open events were supported by these clubs, there would not be the lamentable falling-off in the entries that has been a feature of recent meetings, and it is to be hoped that a regulation which prohibits open competition will be effaced from the rules of the association.

Notice has been given to rescind the rule which prevents clubs holding items of a similar nature to open events on the days when the latter are being conducted. This by-law was deemed necessary two years ago, when the support accorded to open races made it necessary for some action to be taken. The resolution was adopted, and, although two attempts to defeat it have been made, the rule is now recognised as being an advantageous one. If the delegates at the next meeting will realise that open competition is to be encouraged, the endeavours to cancel the existing arrangements will meet with the same fate as past attempts.

In the discussion upon the resignation of the hon. secretary, one of the delegates spoke in a strain that is much needed in the debates of the council of the A.A.A. He pointed out the danger of bringing club disputes into the association work, and the troubles that ensue thereby. The representatives are expected to work in the interest of athletics when attending council meetings, and minor club matters should be kept apart. Some of the delegates fail to appreciate this view, and the discussions not only prolong the meetings, but much bad feeling is engendered by the needless debate. The continual outcry appears to be against the stronger clubs, which have risen from small ones by continual labour upon the part of their officers and members, and instead of emulating the more vigorous organisations, representatives of younger clubs stand back and criticise, displaying, by their attitude, that enterprise forms no part of their composition, and objection is taken when shown in others. If an athlete decides to leave a strong club and become a member of a weaker body, the matter passes without comment; if, however, the reverse happens, a commotion follows: the representatives of the smaller bodies arise, as was the case at last meeting, and make charges which they are unable to substantiate of inducing members to leave their clubs—neglecting to observe that encouragement is not needed to bring men to the formidable clubs where the competition is better, and the facilities are greater for a man to display his capabilities.

Considerable interest was manifested by the members of the police force in the first club meeting at the Bourke-street depot, last Thursday. The fields for the initial meeting were not large, but there is every prospect of forthcoming gatherings assuming greater proportions. The N.S.W. Police Club promises to be one of the most formidable bodies in the ranks of the A.A.A., as the best performances were recorded by athletes who have previously been conspicuous as members of other organisations, and who, by associating themselves with the service club, will greatly assist in making the venture a success. The ground is in excellent condition, and as the headquarters of the club are at the depot, the members will have ample facilities for training. At Thursday's meeting, W. O'Reilly, an ex-Australasian champion, won the 16lb shot from scratch, putting the weight 38ft 11in.

Nominations are due this evening for the first open sprint handicap of the season. This item is the 220 yards handicap for A.A.A. members, to be held at Manly on September 7.

The members of the South Sydney Harriers who are leaving to join the N.S.W. Police A.A.C. will be tendered a farewell dinner at Redfern Town Hall to-night.

FIXTURES.

To-night: South Sydney Harriers 3rd annual dinner, at Redfern Town Hall.
Saturday: Club sports meetings.
Monday: Special council meeting A.A.A., at Y.M.C.A. rooms.

MOTORING.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AUSTRALIA.

The monthly meeting of the A.C.A. will be held in the club rooms, Challis House, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock. All members are invited to attend. Reports from all officers and sub-committees will be presented and general business transacted.

The roads and tours committee will shortly issue to members particulars of the club touring picnic, to be held next month. It is hoped a large number of members will take part in the social outing, and that it will be the forerunner of others of a similar nature.

The weather conditions, which for several weeks were most unfavourable for touring, took a turn for the better, but the rain which has fallen during the past two or three days will not improve the roads, consequently many motorists will not be venturing far afield while the present weather prevails. The near Main Southern-road, as far as Picton, is still reported to be in bad condition, Razorback in particular being troublesome. The alternative route by way of Campbelltown and Appin is preferred by some, but it is questionable if this way is better. The other portions of the road are very rough.

MOTOR CYCLE CLUB OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

The general interest in the hill climbs has subsided since the destination of the L.M.C. trophy was decided last Saturday at Coogee. The next competition is a hill climb for members of the club who have never won a first prize. The secretary reports that owing to the large and increasing number of novices in the club, this competition will take two days to decide. Sixty-six members were elected within the last three months.

At the last meeting held at the Sports Club, it was decided that three competitions be held for the Speedwell Cup, valued at £7 7s, viz.: (1) Petrol consumption test (Centennial Park); (2) hill-climbing competition; (3) reliability trial. The committee will to-morrow draw up conditions to govern these contests, which are open to all powers.

Further particulars relating to club matters can be had from the secretary, J. A. Fair, 244 Pitt-street, who states that it is probable that the reliability trial recently held to Katoomba will be re-run, as several competitors complained that their cards were not signed at some of the controls.

NOTES.

"There is no doubt that thousands of drivers of horse vehicles are either ignorant or grossly careless," says the "Autocar" (Eng.), "and they ought to pass some elementary examination before being allowed to drive on the public roads either in cities or country. That they are wofully ignorant or careless is proved by the behaviour of so many of them. Every motorist knows that the overtaking of a cart near a cross-road is a danger, inasmuch as it is quite likely the cart will be swung across the road just as he is about to pass it, even though the horse driver may have looked back and seen him coming. The driver does not seem to have sufficient sense to know that if he turn to the left it does not matter much if he fail to signify his intention, but that, on the other hand, if he turns to the right, he turns across the overtaking traffic. This is so elementary that the continual neglect of the precaution of holding out the hand or the whip compels one to come to the conclusion that either gross ignorance or carelessness exists. At any rate, the ignorance can be dissipated by insisting on an examination being passed, so that the authorities can be certain that those who use the roads know the elementary rules."

These remarks are also applicable to the Sydney traffic.

An interesting report is to hand from Mr. Roy W. Sandford, who, accompanied by his wife, motored over from Melbourne on a 30 Chalmers, during the last few days. The car is an old model, and has been about two years in use, and took part in the recent military relay race. It is estimated that up to date the car has been driven about 24,000 miles.

Mr. Sandford is not enthusiastic regarding the road conditions, and would not recommend them being utilised for a pleasure tour until they become drier. From Melbourne to Seymour it was good running, but thence to Wangaratta it was in a very bad state. It was fair up to Chilton, but it was splendid from that town right into Albury. Thence to Germanton the travelling was good, but on the turn off up to Wagga Wagga the road was covered with water patches, and was very slippery, but the inconvenience was amply compensated for by the appearance of the surrounding country, which was like a beautiful garden all the way to Cowra. The great wheat area was a mass of green as far as the eye could reach.

After leaving Wagga for Cootamundra the same state of roads continued, and around Junee it seemed as if the going were a series of water-pools. It was not so bad on to Young, although patchy. The car had often to be driven through pools of water and loose mud about 20 yards across. From Young to Cowra there was water all over the place, and the car had to be rushed through a series of water-holes about 3ft deep. Mr. Sandford came right through from Cowra to Sydney in one day, the roads being good, and they had no mishaps.

One noticeable feature that Mr. Sandford remarked was the number of motor garages that have been erected, or are in course of erection, in the leading country towns. Those in Albury and Young are very good, and one has to visit these centres and other main country towns to realise the immense future before the motor car for developing and fostering the out-back places in Australia.

LAWN TENNIS.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.

THE ALL-ENGLAND CHAMPIONSHIPS.

An interesting comparison of the number of entries and the conditions which obtained in 1887 with those of the recent All-England championships is afforded by a perusal of the "Field Lawn Tennis Calendar of 1888." It appears that the entries numbered 16 for the singles, 10 for the doubles, and 5 for the ladies' singles, as against 81, 34, and 34, respectively, this year. It was in 1887 that H. F. Lawford won the singles championship by defeating Ernest Renshaw in the final round, as the holder, W. Renshaw, was prevented defending his title owing to "tennis elbow." It seems strange, nowadays, to read that, in the final, "before tossing, it was arranged to change courts after each game. Mr. Renshaw, winning the toss, chose the court with the sun at his back, and what wind there was was also in his favour. Mr. Lawford then elected to serve, so that the service throughout was from the worst court." The rule as to changing sides at that time was that the players should change at the end of every set, but the umpire might, on appeal from either competitor before the toss, direct the players to change sides at the end of every game, if, in his opinion either side had a distinct advantage, owing to the sun, wind, or any other accidental cause. The doubles were won by Hon. P. B. Lyon and H. W. W. Wilberforce, and the ladies' singles by Miss Lottie Dod, who defeated the holder, Miss Bingley, in the challenge round. Miss Bingley, who later in the year became Mrs. Hillyard, has subsequently won the championship on many occasions, and so recently as last June reached the semi-final round of that event. Miss Dod won the championship four times subsequently, retiring unbeaten. She won the ladies' golf championship of England after retiring from lawn tennis.

It was in this year that the name of A. W. Gore, winner of the all-comers' singles at Wimbledon this year, and many times champion of England, first appeared amongst the list of prizewinners. He was competing at the London Athletic Club's tournament at Stamford Bridge, and the event was the singles handicap, in which, receiving 15 and one bisque, he gained second prize. Amongst the competitors was W. J. B. Salmon, who had won the New South Wales championship in 1885, and lost it to C. W. Cropper in 1886. Salmon, receiving 15, was beaten in the first round. E. W. Lewis, the back-marker, was owing 15, which goes to show that English form was a good deal ahead of Australian at that time, for Salmon had few superiors when he left Australia. Additional proof of the superiority of English players at that time is afforded by Salmon being defeated setless by Chipp in the open singles at the same tournament, and also by E. W. Lewis in the covered-courts championship.

Amongst the suggestions made by the meeting of club delegates last week for consideration by the council of the New South Wales Association was one for the erection of a practice board at the Double Bay courts. Practice boards are almost unknown in New South Wales, but in New Zealand almost every club possesses one. In Sydney the Neutral Bay Club erected a practice board some time ago. Nearly every player at some time or other has used a blank wall for practice, and the practice board is an extension of the same principle. At a club the practice board usually has the advantage, not generally possible when a wall is utilised, of having good turf in front of it, so that ground strokes may be improved as well as volleying. For perfecting certain strokes these structures are of great value if used intelligently. With certain limitations a player can obtain just such strokes as he may wish to cultivate, either on the volley or off the ground.

The neglect of clubs in the lower grades to forward official returns of their matches in the interclub competitions promoted by the association this year has been as pronounced as ever, in spite of a regulation which provides that clubs so defaulting may be fined, and even debarred from competition. It tends to increase interest in the competitions if the relative positions of the clubs can be ascertained as the competitions progress; but this is impossible when so many returns are wanting as is the case this year. If the regulations dealing with the matter are not sufficiently stringent they should be amended next year. As matters are now it would appear that some clubs owe their present positions to hearsay rather than official returns.

Next week the tournament season will begin with the Sydney Club's open meeting at the Sydney Cricket Ground, entries for which will close on Tuesday next. The number of competitions so far announced is satisfactory, and if the courts are up to their old standard an enjoyable week of tennis is in store for them.

FOOTBALL.

RUGBY UNION.

WESTERN SUBURBS IN THE FINAL.

GLEBE AND UNIVERSITY TO PLAY OFF.

There was more evidence of the solid revival of the Rugby Union game on Saturday. The old rivals in University and Glebe occupied the University Oval, and the play, especially during the first half, was full of sparkle and dash, each side executing movements that only well-organised and well-trained teams are capable of. The attendance was quite the largest of the year, eclipsing that of any other football gathering of the day. The spectators witnessed two excellent matches.

In the early game—the final of the second grade premiership—Eastern Suburbs and Newtown showed defence of a very high order. Each attacked in turn, but the tackling, rush-stopping, and line-kicking were excellent. Both teams clearly left no stone unturned to thoroughly prepare themselves for the match. The muggy weather made the hard game very trying; still the sides fought it out to the end with a dash and life that was an object lesson to several of the first grade clubs. There were many fine bits of play on both sides, but as is generally the case when two well-matched teams meet, it was a case of "tactics v tactics." Once or twice the Newtown backs swung into action, but the tackling of the Easterners was very safe. M'Dowall was prevented putting the ball down even after he had punched his way across the line, and in all cases there were one or two men equal to meeting the charge. The same thing happened when Eastern Suburbs attacked, with the exception of the solitary instance where the only points of the game were registered. Jones, of Eastern Suburbs, received the ball when all were running towards the right wing; he turned quickly and short-punted to the other side of the field, with the result that after the bounce had beaten Lane, Miller had no difficulty in scoring, and winning the game for Eastern Suburbs just on time.

The winners were in a comfortable position when they began the game, being one point ahead of Newtown in the competition table. Thus the latter had to win the match to win the competition, whereas their opponents had two chances of bringing off the premiership, as if the match were won or drawn, the honours would have gone to them. However, the side made certain and won. They are thoroughly entitled to the premiership, as their record shows that, besides amassing the greatest number of points in regard to matches won, they also scored more than any other club in attack, whilst there have been fewer scored against them. It is seven years since the Eastern Suburbs Club won a premiership in any grade.

After the showing of the juniors, the spectators looked for some bright football when University and Glebe took the field. As the men filed out it was seen that the misfortunes that had dogged the footsteps of the Collegians this season had made even greater gaps in their ranks, the absence of James and Hamilton being at once noted. Pockley, who had played only one game this year, and Barton, who had been figuring with the second team, made up the fifteen. During the whole of the first half play sparkled up and down the field, excellent running and dribbling being interspersed with some very fine line kicking by Lamrock and Buckle. On the whole, Glebe attacked more persistently than University, but the excellent tackling of the latter's backs stopped any score. Early in the game Barton showed himself a match for the sturdy Westropp, and, although his work was mainly confined to defence, he acquitted himself very well. The Glebe forwards were, however, all the time wearing down the blue and golds. Even in the first half this was beginning to be evident.

Pockley's fine run and Wogan's dropped goal were the features of the first spell; but the ball was flicked about in an alarming way, and the pace was so fast that it was early anticipated that either one side or the other must crumble up before the second half had progressed very far. University were the first to show signs of wear, and, after the loss of [illegible], they were a badly-beaten side. The winners' work was chiefly confined to the forwards, and in this respect they were the superior side.

If the ball had been secured by the 'Varsity pack, however, a different story may have had to be told, as the three-quarter line of the Collegians was about the fastest that the side has put into the field for many years. [illegible], Lamrock, and Pockley would have taken some stopping if given the same chances that the Glebe backs had; but Griffen and Clarken invariably got the ball in scrums, and Wylie and Walters in the line-outs and rucks. Pockley's run from goal-line to goal-line was a masterpiece, but it only served to show that the three-quarter was out of condition, as he failed towards the finish, and Wogan overhauled him. The Glebe centre was the hero of the match, his two finely-kicked goals at the finish of each spell bringing much applause. In the forwards the player who stood head and shoulders over any other member of the vanguards was Walters, his all-round form being of a very high character. On his play in this match he should have been a member of the Australian team that is to leave for America on September 7.

Western Suburbs had very little difficulty in recording their third win of the season over Newtown at St. Luke's Oval. By this feat they have now qualified for the final match, and will enter that contest with a one-point lead on their opponents, who will have to defeat them to win the premiership; a drawn game or a win will give the honours to the Westerners. Solid defence in the backs and hard forward attacking work won the game. The whole of the Suburbs' rearguard, led by the ubiquitous Ward Prentice, showed defence of a rare order; in fact, the whole plan of campaign seemed to be the nursing of the forwards by useful line-kicking, and to let them do the rest. It was a strenuous contest, and might have developed into something more but for the strong hand of Referee Dunn, who had splendid control throughout. The Blue and White vanguard secured possession in the majority of the scrums, but their opponents had the better of the line-outs, excepting that often, after gaining possession, the quick-breaking work which the winners put in nullified any advantage they otherwise would have gained. Some of the Newtown players seemed short of condition. This in no way detracts from the meritorious win of the Westerners, who were much the better side throughout, and have proved conclusively this season that they are better than the 1911 premiers. Ever on the look-out for men, Newtown tried another player from Newington College—Meldrum—and the newcomer showed very promising form.

The results of the semi-finals mean that the final of the first-grade competition will not take place until September 7, as University and Glebe will take the field on Saturday to decide who shall meet Western Suburbs in the concluding fixture. It appears fairly certain, after their triple victory over the Collegians, that Glebe will figure in the final, and, in view of their defeat by the Westerners by a penalty goal to nil in the first round of the competition, the deciding match should be full of interest.

The semi-finals of the third grade have been decided, and have left Newtown and Randwick to contest the final on Saturday. These two teams have been leading throughout, Newtown having a one-point lead on their opponents.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

PREMIERSHIP COMPETITION ENDED.

THE CLUBS' STATISTICS.

On Saturday the concluding round, though unnecessary for the purpose of deciding the winner, was productive of keen Rugby, the fact that there still remains the City Cup competition evidently acting as a stimulus to the players. Eastern Suburbs kept their fine record intact, and Glebe also added another victory to their list; but in each case the winners were fully extended, and the result was in doubt till the finish.

At the Sports Ground, Balmain gave such an attractive display as to warrant the belief that the side will have to be reckoned with in the "knock-out" series. The inclusion of W. Hilliard and R. R. Craig, added to the burnishing up of Wall's tackling, will make the team a formidable one. At present the black and gold full-back is easily eluded by a player adept at giving the "dummy" pass. Early in Saturday's match E. White passed to a support, after Wall, anticipating the transfer, had moved across to tackle White's colleague. When on the next occasion the speedy Eastern Suburbs player reached the opposing full-back he feigned to pass to B. Dalton, and as Wall repeated his earlier act, he was outwitted by White, who enabled Messenger to score. Balmain forwards were as solid and as smart as their opponents. Apart from the superior place-kicking of W. Messenger, there was little difference in the sides.

Glebe and South Sydney showed bright football at Wentworth Park, with a junior player, H. Horder, the ablest of either side. None of the clubs who have infused new blood into their first-grade teams have suffered in any way. They are equally as dashing as the older brigade, and there is still sufficient of the latter to give the teams the necessary ballast.

North Sydney's end-of-the-season displays have been remarkable for the sterling forward play of some of the young bloods in the team. Their six wins for the season is an improvement on last year's showing, when they filled the seventh position in the competition. A little more polish in the back division to finalise the work of good forwards and they can hardly fail to ascend higher on the football ladder. They followed their good showing against the premiers with a similarly creditable game against Newtown, and though they were again defeated the result was in doubt until Newtown scored a try just prior to the whistle.

The scoring was very even, each side having 3 points at the interval. Newtown promptly increased their quota to 6 on resuming. The red and black then had frequent opportunities of kicking penalty goals from good positions, but Walsh was astray with his kicking, and, after many failures, gave place to Taplin, whose first kick proved successful. One point only separated the totals, and heartened by the prospects of another victory North Sydney played with greater zest, and were quite too fast for the bigger and heavier Newtown forwards. They had all the honours in the ruck and loose play, and caused the blues to fall back to their line and defend strenuously, but there the attack failed, as the backs lacked ability to seize the many chances that were provided to reach the goal line.

Newtown were more successful in heeling the ball out, but made little use of it to open the game up. The halves were bothered somewhat by the spoiling tactics of McFarlane and the quick-breaking forwards. Some element of luck was with Newtown. They got the first try after a scramble in goal, and the second after a Northerner had dribbled the ball several yards when behind the line, instead of promptly forcing down. The last try, however, was a gem, and had the Shoremen beaten from the start, Reed, Talbot, and Murray combining very neatly, and racing goalward from the far 25.

Western Suburbs' solitary win this season was at the expense of Annandale in the first round, but on Saturday the younger club were the victors. The game was played at a fair pace throughout, but here the attractiveness ended. It was ragged, entirely devoid of brilliance, and towards the end rather rough.

Though Wellington is not very strong in the new code, it was not expected that the New South Wales team would have such an easy victory—45-13. A pleasing feature about the win is that the place-kicking was not as weak as was anticipated. Frawley kicked five goals. During the English tour his total was only three. The takings amounted to £155. To-day the visitors will play Taranaki at New Plymouth.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

THE PADDINGTON PROTEST.

The exhibition game given at Goulburn should be productive of good. Though the Riverina team were defeated by 35 points, the contest was by no means one-sided. On the contrary, it was replete with those stirring incidents that make the game so attractive. Though the ground was small, it had not the usual effect of cramping the play, which was very fast. The marking also was good, that of Foo on the Sydney side being brilliant. The place-kicking of Watts called forth eulogies from many of those who saw the game played for the first time. At the close of the match residents promised to give their assistance to Australian football in Goulburn next season, and thus help to organise the game in southern New South Wales.

Riverina will play a return match against a metropolitan eighteen on the Australian Football Ground on Saturday. Teams from this centre generally put up a keen struggle, and this season's combination is somewhat stronger than those which have preceded it. It has had a wider selection. Since Riverina last played in Sydney the game has moved further north, and there is nothing but Australian football between the border and Temora, largely due to the establishment of irrigation works on the Murrumbidgee and to the throwing open of big areas in the vicinity of Temora and Barmedman. The present team is composed of four players from Albury, two from Lockhart, five from Leeton (called after a former Minister for Works), five from Naranderra, five from Coolamon, two from Temora and one from Barmedman.

The team is in charge of Mr. W. R. Gordon, of Naranderra. In an interview, that gentleman said: "No other game has got such a hold in Riverina as the Australian, and we mean to keep it by instilling into our youths that they should believe in it because it is Australian. It is going to boom further. The next big railway work will be from Wyalong to Lake Cudgellico, which will open up some thousands of acres of fine agricultural lands. Victorian farmers are waiting for this land to be made available, and you may be sure their sons will bring their Australian football with them."

Many people are under the impression that Paddington will have the call on W. Strang's services in the final game for the premiership. The captain of the Riverina team, W. Waterstreet, of Albury, points out that to do this he will have to obtain a permit from Albury, for whom he has played since he left Sydney, and, as the time for issuing permits has closed, the ex-vice-captain of this year's "minor" premiers could not legally play with a Sydney team.

The Paddington and East Sydney dispute still remains unsettled. On Friday evening last it was not dealt with, owing to the several delegates being away at the Goulburn exhibition match. This unfortunate affair has been before the league so many times that the matter has become somewhat mystified. The original dispute arose over a point raised by East Sydney, that the full-time bell rang after the field umpire had blown "time off," and that the timekeepers had ignored the instructions from the field. The investigation committee held that the timekeepers were in error, and ordered the match to be re-played. It was re-played, and on this occasion Paddington were defeated, but, in turn, they protested on the ground that one of the quarters was played "time short." The chairman of the investigation committee, after hearing the two time keepers, ruled that there was no evidence to go before the committee, and dismissed the appeal. Paddington then appealed to the league to have the matter reopened to discuss the chairman's ruling. The league granted the request, but the committee, on re-hearing the matter, decided that the chairman's ruling was right. Now Paddington are appealing to the main body to overrule the first decision, on the ground that when the timekeepers rang the bell the field umpire's duty was to have protested to the timekeepers that full-time had not been played, instead of which he blew his whistle, and thus acknowledged the close of the game.

OLYMPIC SWIMMING CHAMPIONS.

M. E. CHAMPION (N.Z.) H. HARDWICK (N.S.W.) C. HEALY (N.S.W.) L. BOARDMAN (N.S.W.)

The Australasian Swimming Team which won the Teams' Race at the Olympic Games, held at Stockholm in July.

The decision of the Victorian Football League not to send a team this year to Sydney will cause great disappointment in this State. That the New South Wales League erred in not making an earlier appeal does not in any way lessen the necessity for closer football relationship between the two leading States. Late as it is in the season, the Victorian body might easily have strained a point and complied with the request of the New South Wales League.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

GARDINER CUP SEMI-FINALS.

SYDNEY'S FINE RECORD.

The way now being clear for the semi-finals of the Gardiner Cup competition, it is proposed to play off that between Sydney and Garden Island on Saturday next. This match should prove one of the most exciting and strenuous games of the season. The teams, being cast in different divisions of the first league, have not previously met this season.

Sydney have had a remarkable run of victories. Beaten by Glebe in the first game of the year, they have since won every match. Sydney has played 13 matches in the metropolitan competitions—the Rawson and Gardiner Cups—winning 12 and losing 1, and scoring 45 goals to 9. The record is reminiscent of that of H.M.S. Powerful last year, when the navy men won 11 matches out of 12, and scored 41 goals to 14. The Sydney players will, therefore, enter the field with a confidence engendered by a series of successes, but they will need to be in their best form to defeat their opponents.

Although their more recent displays have been consistent, Garden Island have shown some strange reversals of form. In the Association Cup they have been beaten by West Sydney (twice), Balmain, and Glebe. In all they have won 8 of the 13 matches, lost 4 and drawn 1, and scored 37 goals to 12. That the Navy team is capable of great things, no one who witnessed their win against Corrimal can gainsay, and, as they have been preparing for their Gardiner Cup matches by systematic training, their showing when opposed by Sydney is expected to even surpass their performance in the last Cup tie. Sydney may well beware.

The semi-final between Balmain and Cessnock will probably be played on Saturday September 7.

RAWSON CUP NOTES.

The Rawson Cup match Glebe v Balmain, on Saturday next, will almost certainly narrow down the possible winners of the competition to two. The defeated team will lose the chance of securing the trophy and attendant medals, so that something special may be anticipated. Should Glebe win—and it is their last competition game—they will have 19 points, and Balmain, at the most, could only secure 18 points in their remaining matches; whereas, if Balmain win, Glebe will stand at 17 points, and Sydney already have 18. A draw will, of course, still leave both teams in the running.

Balmain "A's" close win over Balmain "C" may be taken by some adherents of the game as an indication that the senior team did not play up to form, but the "C's" put up a game that would have done credit to a few of the first league teams. There is such an amount of football talent in the Balmain district that the first three elevens are all good combinations. It will be within recollection that in last year's Gardiner Cup competition Balmain "A" defeated Balmain "B" by only one goal to nil in the semi-final, and afterwards beat H.M.S. Powerful in the final by 2 goals to 1.

Newtown gave further proof of their capabilities by running Glebe close, only a goal separating the teams at the finish. Blake and Carroll, on the respective sides, were frequently prominent, the former's fast dashes on the wing being at times overwhelming in their suddenness.

ASSOCIATION CUP.

Balmain proved altogether too strong on the day for West Sydney in the Association Cup match, yet the Balmain backs were not such a distinct success as the scores indicate. Harrigan was unable to show his best form owing to an injury to the knee, and Latta has played in better form.

The Balmain halves, particularly Law and Howie, tackled earnestly, Ferrier being more in evidence by sending on to the forwards and taking "pot-shots" at goal. It was the smart, strong running and able control of the ball by the forwards that won the game for Balmain. They never faltered in their stride, and repeatedly burst through the West Sydney defence. Dashing form was maintained throughout, evidencing splendid condition and a keen desire to win.

The combination of Adams and Jackson was of great assistance. Accurate centres from the right wing were neatly taken by Jackson, who scored three of Balmain's five goals. Hyde and Newman, however, must also be given credit for their vigorous displays.

West Sydney forwards, except for occasional flashes in the centre and on the right wing, could not get going, and the halves did not keep close enough to the forwards to assist in the attacks. O'Brien and Lambert worked solidly in defence.

Balmain and West Sydney have one match to play in the Association Cup, the former against Garden Island, and the latter against Newtown. The only results that will give West Sydney any chance of again meeting Balmain in the competition are a win against the Navy team; otherwise, Balmain must win the cup.

FIXTURES.

ROWING.

THE OLYMPIC SCULLS.

The rowing event, apart from the eights, an account of which appeared in yesterday's "Herald," in which Australians were particularly interested at the Olympic Games, was the Single Sculls, in which the holder of the Australian championship for the previous two years was engaged, in the person of the Tasmanian, M'Villy. Ever since his arrival in Europe the Tasmanian had not been able to reach his true form, and his display at Henley was far below what had been expected from him on his rowing in Australia. A further drawback in Stockholm was the loss of his boat, which during the trip from London via Queensboro, Flushing, Hamburg, and Copenhagen had gone astray, being last seen at Flushing. M'Villy had been training in a boat belonging to the English sculler M'Culloch, and, as his boat had not arrived in time for the race, was forced to row in the English boat. There was a very marked popple in the middle of the course, and good steering told in the sculling. The Australian was drawn to meet Stahnke (Germany), and should have had little trouble in winning. Soon after the commencement, however, he crossed right in front of the German, and it seemed as if the boats touched. In any case both stopped, and the German held up his hand in protest. Both started rowing again, and M'Villy and his opponent rowed right through, with the German paddling easily.

Of course, there was no option but to disqualify the Tasmanian, which the judges promptly did. The result was a great disappointment to the small but enthusiastic band of Australians present. The other heats were won by Kusik (Russia), Butler (Canada), Kinnear (Great Britain), Messaros (Hungary), Levicksy (Hungary), Veirmen (Belgium), and Simonsen (Denmark). In the semi-finals Messaros was defeated by Veirmen, Butler rowed over, Kusik defeated Levicksy, and Kinnear defeated Stahnke. In the next round Veirmen defeated Kusik, and Kinnear defeated Butler, both heats being rowed in exactly the same time. The final, as anticipated, resulted in a win for Kinnear by two and a half lengths in 7m 47 3-10s.

A THOROUGH DISAPPOINTMENT.

The regatta has been a great disappointment to the controlling body, which had anticipated greater public patronage and fine sport, making one of the finest galas during the games. The entries received were numerous and representative, but for some reason or other the actual events fell flat. The severe criticism meted out on the matter of the course has also left an uncomfortable suspicion that the eventual winners are not really the best crews, and that the events have not served their purpose of deciding the world's champion boats. The semi-failure of the rowing is practically the only blot on the Olympic Games of Stockholm, 1912. A bright spot on the management, however, has been the treatment of their visitors by the Swedes, who have maintained all the traditions of Swedish hospitality. This culminated in the farewell dinner given to the foreign rowing officials and competitors at the conclusion of the events, which left the visitors with a fine impression of the Swedes and Sweden.

INTERESTING ITEMS.

The Enterprise Club will hold a members' four-oared race on Saturday. It will be the fourth race held this year for points in connection with a handsome set of honour caps which are to be presented to the winners.

The committee of the Balmain District Regatta has decided to hold the following open races at its regatta, to take place on Monday, October 7,—viz. Senior fours, junior fours, maiden eights, heavyweight fours, and lightweight fours.

George Towns is delivering a new eight-oared boat to Mosman Club, which expects to have a strong maiden crew early in the season. Apropos of this, the application made by Mr. Bernard Becker for permission to row in New South Wales as an amateur, is in the hands of a sub-committee appointed by the association. Mr. Becker was a member of the Waitemata Rowing Club of Auckland, where he has won several races. His application to the association is more or less a matter of form, and he should be eligible for the Mosman Club's maiden eight, as wins gained in New Zealand do not count in this State.

The North Shore Club has contracted with George Towns to put its boats in order for the ensuing season, and the work is at present in hand. The club has decided to send a senior four and maiden eight for the early regattas. Unfortunately, Mr. J. Howie, formerly a Queensland interstate man, and now a member of the club, will not be available for the four, as he will be leaving for England at an early date. Mr. Armytage Moore, formerly of the Toronto (Canada) Club, has joined the shore club. He has won the champion pairs, double sculls, and fours of the Pacific Coast, and if he can be induced to race again he should be a tower of strength.

Mr. C. A. Wadman, the New Zealand senior oarsman, whose case for admission as an amateur is at present before the association, will, in all probability, be available for this club's maiden eight, the N.Z. wins not counting in this State.

Just about 32 years ago W. Beach was taken in hand by John Brown, who really discovered the coming champion, and bought a light skiff for him so that he might get some practice on Mullett Creek, near which Beach then lived. Mr. Brown died a few days ago, being well over 80 years of age. He never lost interest in Beach, and was always a true friend and liberal supporter. John Brown, of Brownville, Central Illawarra, was a fine sportsman, and for years he was the promoter of the Lake Illawarra regattas, which, however, were discontinued some years ago.

It seems probable that Durnan will get a race with Barry some time during the present year if he is prepared to accept the champion's terms, and not dictate too much. They are agreed as to the amount of stakes, but, while Durnan wants £300 expenses and no share of the gate-money, Barry offers only £50 and a half-share of the gate. This would mean about half the sum asked for, but is a fair offer. The Canadian appears to want the match, and there is no doubt Barry will take him on if the terms are not too high. Towns had only £50 allowed by Gaudaur, and put £250 aside in stakes, and when Durnan came here he took £100 expenses without a murmur. The gate-money, however, was a substantial amount, equal to what three races on the Thames would bring in. Pearce has asked for a race with Barry a year hence, and he can hardly complain if the champion takes on the Canadian this year. A holder of the championship must row within six months from the date of acceptance of a challenge, unless he has to race in some other country, when he is allowed an additional three months. As Pearce is not prepared to row within the specified time, and Durnan is, the circumstances are peculiar. However, there is only a remote chance of Barry not being champion when the Australian is ready to race in August next.

When the Henley on Yarra regatta was started, the committee adopted the amateur definition of the Victorian Rowing Association, which was natural they should do; but New South Wales was displeased, preferring the interstate conference definition, under which the Australian amateur championships are rowed. The New South Wales R.A. passed a resolution that no entries were to be made from this State, and so far none have been made; but a better feeling now exists.

ULMARRA HUNDRED REGATTA.

Arrangements are well in hand for the forthcoming regatta at this centre. This will be the second big regatta attempted by the Ulmarra sports, and everything points to the function being a big success. Donations are coming in freely, and promise to exceed the amount received last year. It is expected that the entries will be a record for the allcomers' singles. Since last year's regatta quite a number of young Clarence River scullers have purchased outriggers, and commenced training in them. This means that there will be a much large number of entries this year. The committee have wisely allocated the prize money this year in a totally different manner; that is, so far as the Ulmarra Hundred is concerned. The total prizes will be £100, and the event will be rowed in three heats, first and second man to start in the final. Each heat-winner will receive £10, and the winner of the final will receive £55, second man £10, third £5. Assuming that the three placed men in the finals each win their divisions, the money would be split up into £65 for first, £20 second, and £15 for the third man, which is a very equitable division. Another beneficial effect of such a division as has been made is that it will naturally tend to create much better racing than under the old system, where no prize money was allotted to heat-winners. An effort is being made to organise a big regatta at Grafton a few days after the Ulmarra fixture, which, by the way, is fixed for Wednesday, October 9.

BRONZINO.

Purchased by Mr. Samuel Hordern, of Sydney, from Mr. J. de Rothschild.

Bronzino, [illegible] won the St. Leger in 1910, [illegible] Manchester Cup. He is beyond question one of the highest-class horses that have ever been bought for shipment to Australia. It is understood that the Austrian Government were also in negotiation for the horse.

ANGLING.

That Sydney Harbour still contains numbers of black-bream is manifest from the experience of a man at Miller's Point last week. Mr. T. Richardson states that this man caught five black-bream in a trap at the point, and that they ran to over five pounds weight each. He put one on the scales, and it dipped it at 5lb 4oz. Men who have recently tried the Hawkesbury grounds for the fish have found them fairly plentiful, although they are very shy of heavy tackle.

It is useless expecting black-bream to bite on any of the much-fished grounds unless the finest lines and gut be used. The bream have often been hooked or pricked with hooks, and not being great travellers, the experiences have made them extraordinarily wary. It is equally inadvisable to fish for them without berley. Very often they do not come near a boat until it has been still for an hour or two, and then the only way to keep them about is to use berley.

Trevally are plentiful just now, and the market supplies of them have been satisfactory. Too many little ones are smoked. When small they dry up quickly, and the flavour of the salt and smoking penetrates the flesh more than is necessary. Trevally or tailer under a pound weight should not be smoked.

Fishermen, naturally, are pleased to see that prawns are becoming more plentiful. Latterly their price has been prohibitive, but a good supply recently came in from a northern netting area, and the market price dropped.

The channel entrances of some of the smaller coastal lakes are showing signs of becoming blocked by sand-bars, but the tidal flow for some weeks has been so well maintained that in a month's time the sport inside the entrances should be worth spending money upon.

Fishing has ceased to be as popular in George's River as formerly. For one thing, it is over-netted, and the number of line fishermen's boats often exceeds the number of places on which they can be moored for black-breaming. On Saturday afternoons and other occasions when many people have the leisure to fish, they also find their sport interfered with by motor-boats. It is a common thing to hear of mooring ropes being cut by motor-launches in the river. The space for motor-boats is limited from the Owen's Reach up-stream, but as we move with the times there is clearly no right for the boat-fishermen to impede navigation with ropes. Some unpleasant incidents have already been recorded, but no legal test case has been decided. Nets that are being hauled in open waters may not be interfered with by either motors or ordinary boats.

SWIMMING.

THREE WORLD'S RECORDS IN ONE SWIM.

THE POPULARITY OF HEALY.

Particulars of the final of the 1500 metres Olympic Games Championship, to hand by mail, disclose a great performance by Hodgson, the young Canadian phenomenon. The competitors were Malcolm E. Champion and Harold Hardwick (Australasia), John Gatenby Hatfield (Great Britain), Bela von Las Torres (Hungary); and George Ritchie Hodgson (Canada). The Canadian was expected to win, but there were many who fancied that Hatfield would give him a great race. A fine start saw all get off together. Swimming a stroke of machine-like regularity, the Montreal champion immediately forged ahead, and at the 100 metres mark led by a couple of yards, doing the distance in 1m 12s. The other swimmers could make no impression on him, and he kept increasing his lead. At 400 metres he led by 10 yards, and at 800 metres by 20 yards. As he completed the tenth lap the officials announced that he had covered the 1000 metres in 14m 27s, which bettered the existing record held by Las Torres by no fewer than 79 seconds. Still swimming his easy over-arm stroke, the Canadian completed the 1500 metres in 22 minutes, about 40 yards in front of Hatfield. He continued his swim in an attempt to also beat the mile figures, and completed that distance in 23m 34 5-10s. Thus Hodgson had broken three world's records in one swim, the figures being as under:—

1000 metres, Hodgson, 14m 27s; old record, 15m 46s; difference, 1m 19s.

1500 metres, Hodgson, 22m; old record, 22m 48 2-5s; difference, 48 2-5s.

Mile, Hodgson, 23m 34 5-10s; old record, 24m 1 2-5s; difference, 26 9-10s.

Hodgson's times for each 200 metres were announced as follow.—200, 2m 35s; 400, 5m 37s; 600, 8m 40s; 800, 11m 32s; 1000, 14m 27s; 1200, 17m 35s; 1400, 20m 37s; and the full distance as mentioned above.

The race between the other starters for second place was a good one for about four laps, all turning together. However, just after turning for the fifth lap the Hungarian retired, and his example was soon followed by Champion. Hardwick tried hard to hold the Englishman, but had to drop behind after the eighth lap. Hatfield also finished within record time.

The sporting action of Cecil Healy in regard to the re-swim of the 100-metres race at the Olympic Games made him a most popular figure at Stockholm. The final of this event saw the following swimmers face the starter:—Duke Paoa Kahanamoku, and Kenneth Huszagh (United States); Cecil Healy (Australasia), Kert Bretting, and Walter Ramme (Germany). The "Dagens Nyheter" gives the following description of the race:—

> As they faced the water waiting for the starter's pistol at least two of the competitors were palpably nervous, and one, in the endeavour to anticipate the report, gave himself an unwished-for dip. However, they all got off to a fine start. The Hawaiian immediately got away at a tremendous pace, and at half way led by fully a yard from the others, who were bunched together. All using the famous crawl stroke, the five competitors of various nationalities were straining every nerve in their effort to get in front. At half-way an unfortunate incident occurred. Huszagh, who was swimming in the centre veered right over on top of Bretting, whom he momentarily impeded. The five swimmers still, however, kept on at top speed, and fifteen yards from the finish Kahanamoku had a clear lead of a yard, with Huszagh, Bretting, and Ramme close together, and Healy last. The Australian swimmer now came with a brilliant spurt, and, travelling faster than any of the others in a splendid finish, was just beaten by the Hawaiian by a few feet. Huszagh was third, and Bretting fourth. The Duke was tiring at the finish, and with a few more yards to go might have yielded first place. The time, 1m 3 2-5s, is not as good as recorded by him in the heat and semi-final, but is still a marvellous performance for the straight course, as is also Healy's, 1m 4 3-5s. The fine race had worked the spectators into a fever pitch of excitement, which found vent in an outburst of cheering. Healy's second was especially popular, and he found himself at the finish hoisted shoulder high by a crowd of Swedes. His sporting attitude in the matter of the re-swim of the semi-final, although it may have robbed him of the victory, has increased his reputation, and the recognition of it last night was well timed. Unfortunately a protest has been lodged by the Germans on the grounds of alleged interference with Bretting, but it surely cannot be allowed to interfere with first or second positions.

Evidently it was not wise to have sent the Australian swimmers to Stockholm so early, as the latest information from the team mentions that, besides the illness of Longworth, all the rest of the men were feeling ill-effects. Healy had been deaf for weeks, although the trouble was believed to have originated in Sydney. Hardwick had been so bad that a specialist was consulted, but the medical man did not anticipate anything serious. Boardman, however, was complaining of sore eyes. The whole trouble was put down to the water and the long stay at Stockholm. The real trouble with Longworth was an abscess behind the ear that necessitated an operation. He will, it is expected, not be able to go in the water until September. The Rose Bay champion had made himself very popular, among his many visitors being the English and American swimmers, also many Swedes. His illness was a great disappointment to the Australians, who thought that they would thus lose the teams' race, as Champion had arranged to leave the games before this event. However, he was persuaded to stay, and will leave the day after for Plymouth, to catch the boat for New Zealand.

The Sydney Swimming Club is first in the field with its annual general meeting, which has been set down for Tuesday next. The meeting is being held earlier than usual in order to also make an opportunity for the members to farewell Messrs. W. W. Hill, R. H. Hill, G. Pugh, J. Clarken, and A. R. Dunbar, members of the club, who are accompanying the Australian Rugby Union team to America.

LACROSSE.

The carnival of 1912 is over, and Victoria retains the honour of being the leading lacrosse State, and the first possessors of the championship cup. New South Wales gained third place. Since the last carnival held in Adelaide two years ago, lacrosse in this State has made great progress, and the fact that our representative team beat Queensland and Western Australia away from home is very pleasing. The majority of the members of the New South Wales team have returned home well pleased with their southern trip.

Each of the teams engaged in the carnival played five matches. Our representatives won three, the two lost engagements being against Victoria and South Australia. New South Wales met Western Australia on the 17th inst., the last day of the carnival, both teams were level, and they were playing for third place. New South Wales had the better of things in the first quarter. After half-time the Westerners showed rare form, and made the tally even. New South Wales, however, staved off the determined attack of the men from the West, and, using the extra man to advantage, transferred play to the other end, and scored, finally winning by 10 goals to 7. The game, from a spectacular view-point, was excellent. Both teams had improved since their games on the previous Saturday, their stickwork being sure and their tactics good.

An interested spectator of the W.A.-N.S.W. match was Dr. Graves Bennett, president of the New South Wales Association. He is holiday-making in Melbourne. Mr. Shappere, president of the V.L.A., was indefatiguable in his efforts to make the team's stay enjoyable. He entertained the captains and managers of the different teams at dinner prior to the conference, and he also invited the members to his house at Albert Park for musical evenings. At the South Yarra Lacrosse Ball 12 of the 16 New South Wales players availed themselves of the invitation to be present.

A conference of representatives of all the States of the Commonwealth was held on the 14th inst. The president of the Victorian association, Mr. Shappere, was elected to the chair. The New South Wales delegate brought forward the question of kicking the ball being allowed. The meeting was in favour of allowing the ball to be kicked. The meeting was also favourable to the following rules, which will be brought up at the next New South Wales Council meeting for consideration:—

(a) The ball is dead when the referee's whistle is blown for cessation of play for whatever cause, and no player shall move until the ball is again in play.

(b) No player while in possession of the ball or endeavouring to obtain possession of same shall be allowed to forcibly keep an opponent away with his free arm.

(c) The length of the ground be reduced to 110 yards.

On the question of the visit of an English amateur team, the Victorian and South Australian delegates did not favour the proposal, hence with the two leading lacrosse States not being keen on the venture, the matter was not seriously discussed. It was, however, decided to invite a team to play in Australia, but not guaranteeing any expenses, which is equivalent to a refusal.

It was agreed that the next carnival should be held in Sydney in 1914. In 1916, at the opening of the transcontinental railway, a lacrosse carnival is to be held in Perth.

BOWLING.

IMPLEMENTS OF THE GAME.

The present perfect stage of the grand old game of bowling has been attained through periods of evolution which have engaged the attention of the historian, and in respect of that most vital subject, the character of the bowl itself, the result of research by the chroniclers of the pastime is of engrossing interest to all its votaries. A somewhat desultory discussion which took place the other evening at the meeting of association delegates directs attention to the question in a general way, and a brief retrospect will perhaps be considered opportune. Passing prominence to the matter was raised by Mr. Whitehouse, one of the State delegates to the Australian council, who drew attention to the fact that recent importations from a firm of manufacturers of established repute were "loaded," or, in other words, weighted with lead.

It is recorded that in early days stone spheres were known to have been used in bowling, and were in vogue from the years 1200 to 1400 or thereabouts. A certain element of doubt has been raised, however, as to whether the game referred to is analogous with our present-day pastime. Some writers think that it had to do rather with some more strenuous form of athletic skill, and that "jactus lapidum" was nothing but "putting the stone," an almost literal translation of the Latin. Passing with long strides from the remote past to the immediate present, we reach the age of wood, still in lusty vigour, noting, however, that a period of "excelite" has arrived. As the majority of players know, this is a composition bowl, highly spoken of, and described as of equal density throughout, well-balanced, and proof against cracking and warping. Whether it will achieve equal popularity with the timber of ancient use time alone will prove; but it is undeniable that a degree of sentiment is wrapped up in a set of faithful old woods that is difficult to compensate by whatever perfect contrivance of modern ingenuity. It is not nearly so easy nowadays to secure bowls of lignum vitae of the old standard of excellence, particularly as regards weight and density, and it is just this trouble that is responsible for the recrudescence of "loaded" woods.

Messrs. Alcock and Co., the official testers to the Australian authorities, have declined to pass and stamp certain specimens which have recently come to hand, and this would appear to settle the matter as far as the unlucky owners are concerned, since such bowls could not be used in matches of any note whatever. The laws of the game demand that bowls shall be of a certain size and possessed of a bias at least equal to an approved standard. Weight and material are not mentioned in the laws adopted by the Australian council, but it may be accepted that such expert advisers as the official testers have solid reason for the rejections referred to.

The question of "bias" is that which has provoked the greatest discussion hitherto, but a rigid pronouncement of the means by which the requisite bias shall be attained does not exist. There are two ways of obtaining bias. One of these is by the use of lead, and the other by the accepted means of the lathe, but it is not evident that the former can unduly favour the manipulator. Increased demand, resulting from the rapid growth of bowling in different parts of the world, has strained the resources of the recognised makers, and the deficiency of heavy wood is apparently to be counterbalanced by artificial means, which, at any rate, are not novel. A similar dearth in the supply of the best briar root has been responsible for the increase in price of late years of the highest class of smoking pipes, and willow of the necessary maturity for the manufacture of cricket bats of special quality is a diminishing quantity. Some few years ago the sale of an old estate in England, on which grew a wealth of magnificent willows, relieved one of the best-known firms of cricket bat makers who were fortunate enough to secure the trees. The beauty and fascination of the game of bowls is associated inseparably with a jealous retention of recognised standards governing the all-important implements of play. And too much care cannot be exercised in their maintenance.

N.S.W. IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

Mail advices containing details of the matches in Scotland have filtered through somewhat irregularly of recent weeks, but the figures given below form a complete record of the performances of skippers as far as the thirty-first match inclusive. Of the games then played our representatives had won nineteen and lost twelve, and 2690 points had been scored by them against 2430 by their opponents, leaving a majority of 260 to the good.

Captain.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Points. For.	Points. Ag'nst.
Gartrell	3	1	—	89	67
Louden	9	4	1	313	244
Yeo	8	4	—	302	221
Scott, H. A.	9	5	—	294	258
Thorpe	15	11	2	602	546
Denver	9	9	1	387	369
Raffan	3	4	—	145	158
Strong	10	16	—	501	515
Scott, T.	1	—	—	24	11
Searle	—	1	—	18	20
Lewis	—	1	—	15	21
Totals	67	56	5	2690	2430

Among other items of interest it is gathered that Yeo, although still limping from his injuries in the brake accident of June 1, was bowling remarkably well again, and that Denver was rather seriously ill while in Edinburgh. The latter was obliged to have the opinion of a specialist, who told him he must give up playing for a time, owing to serious internal complications. A marked improvement took place shortly afterwards, although the patient was naturally alarmed, and since he resumed playing has shown no falling off in his form. The Glasgow greens have won the highest praise from the New South Welshmen, who state that there is no green in Australia of the superb quality of Titwood, Willowbank, Queen's Park, and other leading Glasgow clubs. Not only is the turf of the finest quality, but the dead-level surface and the resultant equal draw make bowling one long spell of enjoyment.

NOTES.

Additions to the ranks of State clubs are constantly recurring, and it is noted that the Haberfield Lawn Tennis and Recreation Club, Limited, was registered this month with 200 members, to acquire a bowling green, lawn tennis grounds, and clubhouse. The signatures to the registration are those of J. H. Hill, C. E. B. Fletcher, G. Clancy, H. V. Burgess, R. Mackenzie, F. White, and F. Kelynack.

The president, Mr. John Spence, has been busy during the past week visiting the clubs and awakening an interest in the rapidly-approaching season. Parramatta and Ashfield each welcomed an official team, and both clubs were ungracious enough to defeat their guests. The real object was abundantly achieved in each case, however, and the matches were marked by play of the keenest and conditions of the pleasantest.

The weather on Saturday was springlike, and the greens were all full, with friendly matches and club competitions in progress. Among the noteworthy items of the day were the majorities recorded by Waugh, of Petersham (32 to 7), against a Marrickville rink; that of Captain Nelson (41 to 9), for Randwick against Redfern; and of J. Davis (31 to 8), in the vice-president's trophy competition at Petersham.

Nominations for the forthcoming tour to Queensland close to-day, and those bowlers who have not yet experienced the delights of the northern capital at this season of the year should send in their names at once to Mr. Shadforth.

HOCKEY.

Neither Pilgrims nor Bohemians increased or diminished their chances of coming out on top for this season last Saturday, as both matches in which they took part ended in draws; in each both sides scored 2 goals. Pilgrims played Dalgety's, who the week previous had defeated Bohemians by 6 goals to 4. Bush and Allden scored for Pilgrims, and Alt and Davidson for Dalgety's. Alt and Davidson were also prominent in the match above-mentioned against Bohemians on August 17. Corona and Bohemians had a hard game, in which the honours were evenly divided.

On Saturday Pilgrims and Bohemians will meet to decide which is the better team. Their previous meeting ended in a draw, each side scoring 2 goals. Next Saturday's match will be played at the Sydney Cricket Ground No. 2, and is sure to be worth watching. Corona II. lost to Buccaneers on Saturday by 3 goals to 2. Glassop and Neich scored for Corona II., and Rothwell (2) and Clarke for the winners.

Buccaneers finished their season with five consecutive wins, which is satisfactory. Altogether, for a new club, they have had an excellent season, as out of 16 matches played they have only lost two, won ten, and drawn four. Rothwell and Clarke have been easily the most consistent goal scorers, and both should be heard of again in big matches. It is hoped that after such a successful first season the Buccaneers will be able to enrol enough new members next year to run two teams.

Dalgety's II. had no difficulty in defeating Ramblers by 5 goals to 3. This makes their eleventh win out of 15 matches played this season.

Hawkesbury Agricultural College, in spite of being worried by examinations in the morning, journeyed to Sydney, and put up a great game against Corinthians I. At half-time it looked as if they would be easily defeated, as Corinthians were then leading by 3 goals to nil. In the second half, however, they pulled themselves together, and scored 3 goals. Corinthians managed to add one more goal, and thus won by 4 to 3. Bosworth (3) and Savage scored for the winners.

Corinthians II. were defeated by Sydneians by 5 goals to nil. This makes the third win Sydneians have had over Corinthians II. this year. Preston (2), G. Street, and Carfral (2) scored for Sydneians.

In the country matches, Wheelmen and Kenmore played a draw of 2 goals each; and Arcadians were defeated by Gladiators by 1 goal to nil. Arcadians, a new club this year, did well to be only just defeated by their older and more experienced opponents.

The programme of matches, as published, is only made up to next Saturday, but as so many clubs have asked for extra matches the Imperial Oval has been engaged for the early part of September. Eight clubs have already been set down to play for September 7. Other Clubs who require matches on this and subsequent dates are requested to notify Mr. Lloyd. Also, clubs wishing to play in Goulburn on October 5 and 7, the latter date being Eight-hour Day, are requested to bring same up at the next meeting of the committee. This will be held on Tuesday next, September 3, and will be the last meeting of the committee, unless some urgent question arises, till next year.

BILLIARDS.

THE UNCERTAINTY OF FORM.

The showings made by Lindrum in the opening stages of his match with Harverson were very inferior to his display against Inman. Billiards is a game that demands from its exponents the close attention to details that may in any way affect touch.

George Gray's great success is due to the unswerving attention which he gives to practice every day, as well as to the principles of health, and the necessary rebuilding of the exhausted nerve force which an important match brings about. Frederick Lindrum does not attach so much importance to those essentials, and the consequence is that his form is not so reliable nor consistent as that of his brother-Australian. As he matures Lindrum will doubtless recognise the necessity for doing so.

The match which was arranged to commence in Sydney on September 9 between T. Reece and A. E. Williams has fallen through owing to the latter having a recurrence of an eye trouble which hampered his billiards in England a few years back. He had signed articles with Reece, and the latter had arranged to cut short his New Zealand engagements by two weeks, when an Adelaide eye specialist forbad Williams to take part in any more billiard games until an operation on his eye had been performed. Consequently a match which promised to be a strenuous battle has been cancelled, and Reece has suffered considerable financial loss in consequence.

A match between Gray and Lindrum may be the tit-bit of next year's Australian billiards. Gray would undoubtedly be the favourite, but there are many who are of opinion that if Lindrum were to pay greater attention to practice he would have a splendid chance of defeating the Queenslander. Certainly a match between the skilful pair of red-ball specialists would be certain to draw well, even if they devoted all their attention to the losing-hazard play. They differ so in their methods of manipulating the red ball that interest would be aroused.

The metropolitan amateur championship and the New South Wales amateur snooker championship have yet to be decided, and will fittingly terminate a season that has been full of interest. The snooker championship, especially, will be a novelty. The majority of the best amateur billiard players have displayed their skill in public competition, but there are quite a number of snooker players of much excellence who have not had the same opportunity. It is a different game from billiards, and, although the "good" is usually "pretty good" at snooker, good players of the coloured ball are often only moderate exponents of the three-ball game. The coming championship should classify them.

FIXTURES.

August 28-31, Lindrum v Harverson, 16,000 up level, afternoon and evening at Alcock's Tournament Hall, Sydney.

BOXING.

The latest white hope is a New Zealander, Sid. Fitzsimmons, the nephew of the famous Bob Fitzsimmons. The young fellow is being brought over to Sydney by Mr. Taylor, the man who brought Otto Cribb over here. He has made arrangements for young Fitzsimmons to be under the care of Sam. M'Vea with whose skill he was much impressed. Young Fitzsimmons, who, like his famous uncle, follows the trade of blacksmith, has not yet reached his majority. He weighs over 12 stone, and stands 6ft high. He has done a lot of boxing locally, and is known as a clever man with a tremendous punch in either hand.

Next Saturday's engagement at the Stadium should provide an exciting contest. Paul Til is one of the champion lightweights of France, being the first of a big group of French boxers who will appear at the Stadium during the season. He has a record of more than 200 matches, in the majority of which he has been successful. His opponent is Frank M'Coy, the young Victorian, who gained a narrow victory, on points, over Jack Read a fortnight ago. M'Coy on that occasion showed himself to possess qualities of both endurance and skill, for he won his match in the second half, after a tough struggle. Til himself was much impressed by M'Coy's merits.

According to Tom M'Carthy, a very high opinion is entertained of Hughie Mehegan by the sporting men around Los Angelos, who are all anxious to see him matched with Joe Rivers. They reckon that Mehegan must be some class by reason of the fact that he only lost on points to Clabby, to whom he was giving a lot of weight.

Mr. W. J. C. Kelly, of Spalding Bros., left for America by the steamer Ventura last Saturday as an envoy from Mr. Hugh D. M'Intosh. His mission is to return with Johnson, Jeannette, and Burns, and he has been authorised to engage other good-class boxers for Australia.

The Gaiety Athletic Club management has matched Tommy M'Carthy, the Chicago lightweight, with Jack Clarke, of Victoria. M'Carthy will be giving away over half a stone in weight. The date set down for the fixture is three weeks from yesterday.

Grover Hayes, the American lightweight, is leaving San Francisco by the Sonoma this week to box in Australia. Hayes has a remarkable record. Though just 25 years old, he has boxed 162 matches, and has been beaten only five times. His popular name in the United States is "the Battler." Britton, another lightweight, will leave with Crouse and Ross on September 4.

On September 30 there will arrive in Australia three more French boxers of repute, Bernstein, Balzac, and Truffier. Truffier is an eleventh hour selection, taking the place of Grassi. Grassi had been elected for Australia, but just before the time of departure he was beaten in a sensational manner by Truffier, of whom Leon See cables that the highest expectations are now held in Paris.

FIXTURES.

The Stadium: Saturday, August 31, Paul Til v Frank McCoy, [illegible].

Gaiety Athletic Club: Saturday, August 31, Will Sayers v Packy Power; Tuesday, September 3, Ed. Sullivan v Billy Cox, [illegible].

ABOUT THAT BRIDGE.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN.

> "It is proposed that the underground traffic shall fit in with the existing railway service. The city itself is intended to be honeycombed with underground railways, after the fashion of the London and New York services. . . . . . . Mr. Hay does not favour tunnels underneath the harbour, his idea being a bridge from Blue's Point, over which will run electric trains as they come down tunnels, and emerge from George-street, which will constitute one of the main arteries of the future. . . . . . Action will be taken when Mr. Hay's inquiries and report have been completed to give legislative authority for the scheme." (Recent Press Reports.)

That bridge across Sydney Harbour is going to make a big difference in the value of North Shore property. It won't be long before it comes—probably before you have paid the final instalment on your allotment. You will then have an asset worth many times its present value.

Apart from this, LINDFIELD is a most delightful place to live in. Elevated (300 feet), enjoying the purest air, and most picturesque surroundings.

HEART OF LINDFIELD ESTATE

is right at the Station, on both sides. It is only half an hour from Sydney by frequent train and boat service. The land is level and beautifully grassed. Just enough timber left to beautify your home should you wish to build.

SOME MORE HOMEDALE.

That you cannot have too much of a good thing is evident by the continuous demands which have been made on us for some more land like Homedale Estate, Hurstville. When it became known that we were putting on the market an extension of this fine property we had any number of inquiries from people anxious to secure lots before the Estate was thrown open for public sale. It is our wish, however, that everyone should have an equal chance of securing the best lots on this property, and the opportunity commences

TO-DAY.

For those unacquainted with "Healthy Hurstville," let us state that it is only some 9 miles from the city—somewhere about 20 minutes' journey. It has the best rail service of any town on the Illawarra line, as in addition to the ordinary frequent service many specials and all through trains stop there. Hurstville is a most healthy suburb owing to its splendid elevation, and also owing to the fresh sea breezes which sweep across from Botany Bay and the George's River.

HOMEDALE EXTENSION ESTATE

adjoins the old Homedale Estate, and is of similar quality throughout. The majority of the lots measure 66 x depths of 150 feet upwards. There are other blocks of one, two, and three acres, very suitable for poultry raising or similar industries.

The property adjoins the Public School, Post-office, etc., and is bounded on one side by the Kogarah Bay Creek.

A MOST IMPORTANT FEATURE

is the fact that the Kogarah-Tom Ugly's Point tram will pass right through the Estate, enabling residents to get right to the station in a few minutes.

PRICES FROM 10/ FOOT. BLOCKS FROM £25 EACH.

TERMS: FROM £1 DOWN AND 10/ MONTHLY FOR EVERY £30 PURCHASED.

AT HABERFIELD,
AT HABERFIELD,
"Sydney's Garden Suburb."

The man who can materialise, in his own individual case, the above phrase has gained what everyone seeks and covets—"A Happy, Healthy Home." Let him seek the realisation of his hopes and desires at Haberfield—he will find it there.

Haberfield—Sydney's Only Garden Suburb—is a real triumph of Suburb-planning, modelled upon the proved successes of worldwide effort in this direction. It is the embodiment of everything desirable in a home-place. It rigidly excludes every element which can be, in any way, harmful, distasteful, or obnoxious.

The pleasant design and attractive exterior of a Haberfield Home are set off to the greatest advantage by the clever planning of the suburb. To produce a healthy and beautiful suburb was the aim never lost sight of from the earliest moment. The result is the existence of an estate where the modern science of suburb-planning is seen to perfection.

Wide, tree-lined streets, and large, open spaces, together with the pleasant gardens surrounding the handsome homes, unite in purifying and cleansing the air. Fresh air is the first and soundest canon of good health.

The villas themselves are all of distinctive design—each differing from the others. The interiors are decorated and finished with close regard to the general scheme of the structure. The appointments throughout are modern and artistic. Each building is sound, weatherproof, well ventilated, and possessed of every necessary convenience.

Prices are from £780 upwards. If you only have Fifty Pounds to pay as deposit, we can deal with you at HABERFIELD. Our Easy Terms of repayments on a 5 per cent. basis will astonish you. In most cases the repayments are practically less than the property is worth on a rental basis.

Haberfield is reached by Abbotsford or Haberfield trams, from G.P.O. in 30 minutes, or by "through" train to Summer Hill in 10 minutes.

Take tram in George-street, and alight at O'Connor-street.

Visit this splendid suburb, and see for yourself what upwards of 3000 residents in over 750 homes are enjoying. It is easily open to you to join them.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL!
YOU NEVER CAN TELL!
No, you never can be sure how soon property values will go up. To-day you have a splendid chance to secure a really good investment; to-morrow the price may be up. That is because Sydney is growing so fast—faster than the builders can cope with. Round about Ashfield we have a number of choice properties for sale. To see them is to realise that NOW is the time to purchase.

ARABI HILLS, the most healthily-situated residential sites round Sydney, close to tram, churches, etc.—Spacious, well-built Brick COTTAGE, 5 enormous rooms, fibrous ceilings, kitchen, bathroom (with hot water), laundry, etc., two verandahs, slate roof, and every modern convenience, drained throughout. Land, 70 x 132 feet, and can never be built out in any way. Absolutely the cheapest proposition we have put before the public for years. Price, £725, on reasonable terms.
ASHFIELD HEIGHTS.—A spacious Brick COTTAGE, 6 rooms, breakfast-court, kitchen, laundry, and all offices, stone foundation, fibrous ceilings, etc., easterly aspect; price only £825. And others round this high and healthy part at various prices. This is a real bargain.
CROYDON.—In perfect order, 3 minutes from Rd. Gentleman's RESIDENCE, containing drawing and dining rooms, connected, breakfast-court, large kitchen and laundry, 5 charming bedrooms upstairs, large balcony, with views of all the country around; sacrifice at £900. Terms can be arranged.
PETERSHAM.—Commodious, well-built Cottage RESIDENCE, with grand views, high position, 6 minutes from station, 2 minutes tram, contains through hall, double drawing and dining rooms, sliding doors, 3 large bedrooms, kitchen, and all conveniences; worth more than the price—£900.
ASHFIELD.—The choicest Cottage RESIDENCE ever offered in this district. Stone foundations, with commodious drawing and dining rooms, 3 large bedrooms, side hall to smokeroom, kitchen, and all offices. Land, 48 x 227, in a select part, easterly aspect. Price £1100, and worth every penny. New property.
8 MINUTES CROYDON STATION, 2 minutes tram, in a beautiful block of land, 50 feet frontage.—A modern, double-fronted, Brick COTTAGE RESIDENCE, 3 large rooms and 2 bedrooms, all good sizes, in perfect order throughout; price £675.
HABERFIELD.—We can offer COTTAGE RESIDENCES from £725 upwards, in good parts, and well built; whilst at MALVERN HILL we have 4 new Cottages to offer, and one special snap to be built, of which we can show particulars.
ASHFIELD, 3 minutes from station.—Two commodious, single-fronted Brick COTTAGES, slate roof, 4 large bedrooms and kitchen, £550 each. We can arrange terms, from £50 deposit.
These are all sterling values, with big prospects of improvement. Call, write, or 'phone us about them soon.

"The Reliable Piano Depot,"
15-16 Q. V. MARKETS, SYDNEY.

THE KOHLER PIANO AT £50, has the most perfect tone of any Piano sold anywhere in Australasia to-day. Why? Simply because it was selected in Stuttgart by an expert, who thoroughly understood the constructing of Pianos—not Pianos of ancient make, but THE LATEST UP-TO-DATE. In less than two years the KOHLER will be sold not at £50, but at £80. Now is your time to purchase.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

THE CONSERVATION OF TIMBER.

The complaint from the Dubbo district that farmers were not allowed to secure the use of the grass on a timber reserve during the dry spell illustrates the difficulty that confronts any attempt at reafforestation. Regarding this particular case there is some misunderstanding. The Forestry Department is blamed for closing the reserve up to allow the young timber to develop, and ignoring applications for the right of agistment. The fact is that the department has not this power. It should have but has not. These reserves are at present under the control of the Department of Lands, and it has never shown any vital appreciation of the timber interests. The Forestry Department is consulted as to whether there is any objection from its standpoint when leases are dealt with, but that is all the voice it has in the matter. It is time that these timber reserves were under the control of the Forestry Department altogether, and farmers understood that the interests of forestry cannot be ignored. Where stock can be grazed in safety on forest lands no department would seek to prevent such a thing. It would be against its own interests. But in cases of young forests, where sheep would simply destroy the growth—sheep are fatal to young pine, for instance—a strong forestry department would have no option but to close up the reserves, whether the grass was wanted or not by outside stockowners. In a dry spell it would certainly be very aggravating to the latter to see grass of any kind wasting when they could find a good use for it. But that is a contingency for which the Forestry Department could not be blamed, and it would be suicidal if, on such occasions, the young timber is to be sacrificed to meet the interests of a few stockowners.

Right throughout the farmer and settler have been the enemy of the timber interests, and in the early stages of our development this could not be otherwise. "Men before timber" was a sound policy. But we have reached the stage when settlement must be accomplished without further waste of timber. Forestry is one of the most important questions affecting this country, in common with other lands, and the fact that forestry rights are practically unrepresented in our public life, as they carry no votes, makes it the more imperative that the Forestry Department should be given power to carry out its great work, unhampered by the passing interests of any individuals. We have to face this question honestly and admit that there are times when the demands of a handful of men would, unless there is some strong power to prevent, sacrifice, without scruple, young forests for the sake of a bit of feed for their sheep, or wipe out valuable timber country in order to secure a holding. The individuals are hardly to blame. They study their immediate interests, and only a limited section of humanity places common or national interests before its own. But that very fact is the reason why there should be some authority vested with ample power to protect the interests of the community against the inroads of a section.

STATE FORESTRY.

II.

Even the most cursory perusal of the Forestry Act will show that its administration is largely subject to the Department of Lands. Why that should be so is difficult to understand, because the Forestry Commissioners made no secret in their findings of the fact that much injury had been done to the forests under the management of this department. One extract alone from their report should be sufficient to show why this subjection should no longer continue. It is as follows:—

> From the mass of evidence given, we are forced to the conclusion that very grave injury has been done to the forest resources of the State, both by way of excision and the disposal of valuable timber lands, and by a regardless and unsympathetic system of administration; and it is with regret that we have to report that under the existing lands system of administration so little interest in the real welfare of our forests has been shown that steps should be immediately taken to dissociate the administration and control of our State forests from the Department of Lands.

Examination of the facts will disclose how far it has been dissociated. The administration is certainly under a separate Minister of the Crown, but when the Act was prepared it would appear to have been handed over to the Department of Lands for their concurrence, and there cannot be any doubt that it was the strong influence of that department that succeeded in retaining the power to lease and otherwise control the occupation of State forests. The administration has clearly been restricted in other directions to meet the views of the Lands Department. For instance, the Minister for Forestry is directed to classify the forest lands of the whole State, with a view of determining which shall be dedicated as State forests or reserved as timber reserves, and although he is provided in his Act with machinery for notifying timber reserves, he cannot recommend them to the Governor without the concurrence of the Minister for Lands, and what does that mean if the Department of Lands requires such land for settlement?

It is a matter of absolute certainty that the Minister of that department will withhold his concurrence. The administration is also subject to that department in other ways, but the two instances given are sufficient in themselves to show how reform in State forest management may be hampered and restricted. How baneful the effects of these restrictions are in actual practice may be gleaned from the comments in local newspapers regarding the disposition of that vast tract of coastal land known as the Cooloongoolook Brush, in the Bullahdelah district, containing some of the finest hardwood and brush timber in the State. This land has repeatedly been recommended for conservation for forestry purposes, but the urging of practical experts fell upon a deaf Ministerial ear. Some years ago portion of the land was made available for settlement under a form of tenure which gave the right of the timber to the tenant, and several blocks were taken up. I have been informed on credible authority that in three years one man has cleared £1300 from the timber on his block, and has expressed the intention of abandoning the holding when the remaining marketable sticks are cut out. Portions of this land may now be selected under another form of tenure that prohibits, in a measure, the predatory exploitations of this description, but that it is totally unfit for settlement is conclusively proved by the fact that there has been only one applicant for blocks since the removal of the right to indiscriminately remove and dispose of the timber on it. A vast area at Pilliga, only fit for forestry, is also to be sacrificed for so-called settlement, at the instance of the Lands Department.

If the doings of this Department of Forestry during the three years since it has been established are looked into, the public may gain some idea of the difficulties standing in the way of its administration. The annual reports of the department show that the forest service has been reorganised, and, judging by its business operations and the large increase in its revenues, there is reason to believe that this has been efficiently done. The same reports state that the classification of State forests is progressing under a procedure which seems to give the Department of Lands a large voice in the proceedings; and here the Forest Department appears to have met trouble, as no State forests, so far as can be learnt, have yet been proclaimed, and the effectiveness of the classification which is alleged to be progressing is considerably discounted by the fact that timber of inestimable value is still being consumed in smoke on the Dorrigo, the Comboyne, and many other places, while the disposal of valuable timbered lands under different forms of settlement is proceeding apace.

To such a notorious extent is this being done, that it has become a by-word in many parts of the coast, for the acquirement of timber land in this way is a regular traffic, and is, moreover, becoming a serious menace and a means of blackmail to those engaged in the timber industry. These are facts, and one need not go far afield to prove them; yet the public, probably through ignorance, and our Parliament, owing to legislative apathy, seem content to allow the dissipation of our timber wealth to proceed in this way without protest, and perhaps under the misbelief that we have now effective legislation and a properly equipped department to prevent it.

Surely it is a function of government to exhibit a little more patriotism in this matter of forest conservation, and to see that it be made a reality instead of a pretence. Or is it that the authorities are willingly leaving themselves open to the charge that they have abandoned timber conservation as a policy, because trees have no votes, and are, therefore, unworthy of political consideration? The facts afford rather strong grounds for believing that this in reality is the case.

It is truly time to insist that there shall be a full measure of reform in this timber question. Every intelligent forest officer knows only too well of the defects in the Act and its administration, and deplores that his department is unable to overcome them. Probably in no section of the Government business will there be found a body of officers more zealous or anxious to do the right thing, but they find that their hands are enmeshed in the irritating folds of red tape, and have to witness the sorry spectacle of the forests under their care being dissipated or sacrificed by a stronger power.

The forest question calls for the exercise of statesmanship. There is no political kudos to be gained by upholding the claims of trees, especially when their destruction meets the interests of certain individuals in high places, and who possess votes and influence. That trite saying that it is better to grow men than trees, always tripping from the tongues of publicists, conveys a fair idea of what are the average legislator's views are on the forestry question. The attitude of progressive countries like Germany or America contrasts strangely with our apathy in this matter. In the former trees are given a very high value, because in their extended experience as a nation the Teutons found that man and his industries cannot progress without them. In America, inaugurated under the statesmanship of Roosevelt, forestry and the conservation of indigenous trees is to-day one of the leading questions of public concern. The broad fact is that so far we have owned too many trees and too few statesmen; but as our forest wealth is diminishing fast, the time is ripe for the man or Government with sufficient statesmanship and patriotism to come forward and meet the situation. The wise treatment and conservation of our timber wealth is no party question; it is a matter of national concern.

PRICKLY PEAR.

HOW IT MAY BE DEALT WITH.

Interviewed with regard to dealing with the prickly pear, Mr. J. H. Maiden, Government Botanist, said:—"The prickly pear question may be tackled in several different ways: (1) Destruction of the pest pear by poison, by mechanical means, and also possibly with the aid of an insect, allied by the cochineal insect. (2) Utilisation of the plant in some way, such as famine fodder, for fibre, etc. (3) Utilisation of the fruit of this and allied species for human food. As regards No. 1, I adhere to my recommendation that we should have a local committee, in a pest area, to adjudicate on all methods for the destruction of pear, classifying them under (a) poisons, (b) mechanical appliances, (c) other methods. This committee should be appointed and supported by the Government, but it should by no means be a committee of Government officials. It should include local, municipal, and shire councillors, farmers and pastoralists, and other men who know practically what pear is. Pains should be taken to see that this committee is thoroughly representative and impartial, and it should inquire into all methods for pear destruction, inviting their authors to give practical demonstrations in infested areas. This committee should also conduct experiments on its own account. If ever there was a subject that should be thoroughly investigated by impartial men, it is this one. If, as the result of this inquiry, we find we can do nothing, let us sit down and die, if we find we have a weapon, let us be up and use it.

"There is no broad question in New South Wales which lends itself more to the charlatan and the quack, and the Government alone can take effective action. One of the steps to be taken is to punish any tenant or landowner who neglects to destroy pear in clean areas to be defined. It is vegetable smallpox, and I refuse to believe that legislation cannot do more than it does to stem this terrible pest. But legislation must be based on the report of a well-informed and impartial committee.

SPINELESS PEAR.

As regards spineless prickly pear, we have had such in New South Wales for many years, and I imported into New South Wales from Algiers, about a dozen years ago, a nearly spineless form, with the best fruit for eating that I have tested and tasted so far. I do not for a moment suggest that prickly-pear fruit will ever be comparable with the best products of our orchards, but the plants will grow in sterile soil and under conditions quite impossible for any other fruit. I am confident it will fill a place in the dietary of those people who, without it, are practically excluded from the enjoyment of fruit.

"Certain alleged spineless forms have been boomed in Australia with the ingenious methods of the commercial hustler. All sorts of claims have been made concerning them. So far, experiments to introduce the best kinds of prickly-pear (the so-called spineless) which belongs to the Opuntia ficus-indica group, have not been attended with much success, partly for the reason that very few experiments (and, in my view, not of a conclusive nature), have ever been made with them. Opuntias are living storehouses of water, which is accumulated and stored in little jelly-bags, a marvellous arrangement for the prevention of dissipation of moisture."

THE FIBRE AND THE SPINES.

Mr. Maiden further explained that the fibre in prickly pear joints (sometimes called "leaves") is the stiffening provided for the support of the plant, and cannot be eliminated beyond a certain point, and it is the presence of this internal woody frame-work which renders pear so indigestible. Claim has been made (by hustlers) that a pear has been evolved without fibre, and that it is useful as a vegetable, but, taken as a general statement, this is misleading. The young growths of many species contain but little fibre—as growth proceeds fibre develops.

Then as to the spines. The formidable spines, which in some species will almost pierce armour, are less dreaded than the minute spinules which, almost as fine as dust and quite light, fall on to one's flesh and clothing, and by means of their barbed tips (with points intended for penetration, and not for withdrawal, just like a South Sea Islander's spear) make the mouths of stock most painfully sore, so that they cannot bite. All pears, even the spineless ones, develop spines and spinules more or less. They have a minimum in our coastal regions, in our districts of best rainfall, just in the very districts where we don't specially want drought-resisting fodder.

WHAT THE WESTERN COUNTRY WANTS.

"What we want," said Mr. Maiden in conclusion, "is, in our western country of low rainfall and few creeks, a truly spineless form—one which won't produce spines in a dry environment, which will grow rapidly, which will not have much fibre to cause indigestion, and so on. I have been on the lookout for such a pear for a number of years, and when I find it will let the public know without delay."

TIMBER INDUSTRY.

CONDITIONS IN THE WEST.

DUBBO.—For several years past the timber industry has provided remunerative employment for large numbers of men in the various centres of the Dubbo district, and, although the drain on the forest has been heavy and continuous, the supply is by no means yet exhausted. Certainly there has been a big thinning out, and in some localities an absolute depletion of the best trees. This is especially the case in the original forest areas contiguous to the existing railways. In the past the men cut for the contractors and sawmill proprietors, who annually exported from the district thousands of tons of sleepers, and found it more profitable to themselves to keep the men engaged felling the trees within well defined country, little remote from the railways. Sleeper-cutters must now push further back, or migrate to other districts. The present Government, is now a direct buyer from the men. During the last few months there has been a great falling off in the supply of sleepers from this district. Mr. A. R. Samuels, district forester, Dubbo, was some time ago asked to suggest a means of keeping the supply up to the demand of the Government, and he recommended the construction of tram lines (wooden rails might be used as in New Zealand) from the railway stations to tap the best virgin forest country. This recommendation is now under consideration. Mr. Samuels has also recommended the reservation of 197,000 acres of forest in the counties of Gowen and Napier, and 51,920 acres in other counties, including Goonoo, the timber of these areas to be kept exclusively for railway purposes, and cut as required. All these reserves, if Mr. Samuels' recommendations are adopted, will be within reasonable distance of existing or proposed railway lines. The district forester estimates the extent of marketable timber on these areas of about 300,000,000 superficial feet of ironbark, 40,000,000 feet of box, and 2,000,000 feet of pine. He estimates that the proposed reserves should not be denuded of the present full-grown ironbark trees for at least 30 years. And if a judicial policy of clearing up and thinning out is observed, the forests should be everlasting.

Mr. Samuels strongly favours afforestation in certain parts. He states that valuable timbers have been ruthlessly destroyed, or scandalously wasted in the past. A timber-getter having a contract to cut, say, 20 feet logs, would fell large trees for the purpose, and after cutting out the required logs, would leave a considerable quantity of good marketable timber lying on the ground. But the Forestry Act of 1909 indirectly provides a penalty for such action. It stipulates that the holder of a timber-cutter's license shall be liable for the payment of the prescribed royalty on all marketable timber contained in the tree.

But it will be sometime before the mistakes and ruthless destruction of the past are compensated for. Take the case of the country between Nyngan and Cobar, a distance of 81 miles. All serviceable timber in these parts during the last 25 years has been cut, chiefly to meet the mining requirements of the Cobar district. Young trees and saplings were also destroyed in the process, and those that escaped have made little or no growth owing to the thickness of scrub or seedlings. As a result of this short-sighted policy, timber for the Cobar district has now to be hauled all the way from Nyngan. But with an eye to the future, Mr. Samuels has recommended that an area of 10,240 acres in the parish of Drouin, county Cowper, between Nyngan and Cobar, shall be reserved for afforestation purposes. He holds that the proper care, thinning out, etc., of our forests is essential at the present time, as the great question of the timber supply is becoming more and more acute each year.

ARE YOU THINKING ABOUT A NEW PIANO?

It is to you whom we wish to speak. You have decided to purchase a Piano—you investigate, and find yourself confronted with a pretty big proposition. Perhaps a dozen or more different makes have been submitted to you, each backed up by apparently worthy and reputable statements.

A Piano is not usually bought more than once in a lifetime, so it is of vital necessity to make certain of all the qualities of the instrument before you purchase it. If you would allow us to demonstrate we are confident in being able to satisfy you on every point which you know a piano must possess to give life-long service and true satisfaction.

THE CELEBRATED

The "ALLISON" PIANO has a sweet, rich tone which is the admiration ofall who hear it. It is the product of a British Firm, and none but highly skilled workmen are employed in its production.

We shall be pleased to demonstrate this beautiful instrument at any time, and can honestly assure you of its unequalled good qualities.

Full value will be allowed for your old instrument, and we can arrange very easy terms if you desire.

ALL WOMAN TALK—"FAT."

Get a number of society women together and you will be surprised how almost invariably the conversation gravitates to the subject of—Fat. People who travel will tell you that whether they visit London, Paris, Rome, or St. Petersburg, always, as in Australia, the conversation tends towards "fat." All are interested because those who are fat wish to become thin, while those who are thin fear they may become fat. All womankind it would seem has organised into an army of fat fighters, and thanks to "Formettes" how easily victory may be theirs. "Formettes" are the only known, tested, and acknowledged remedy for reducing fatness. They are pleasant little herbal tablets, that permanently remove excess fat without dieting or exercising, and without causing wrinkling or sagging of the skin. They strengthen the system and allow you to eat what and how much you like; and not only do they reduce weight, but are a splendid and unfailing remedy for heart troubles, indigestion, shortness of breath, dyspepsia, sick headache, and innumerable other complaints from which overweight men and women suffer. Thousands of people can tell you of the benefit they have derived from taking a course of these wonderful little tablets after every other remedy had been tried without producing any good effect. Formettes are sold by all chemists and most stores through the Commonwealth at 5/3 per carton—Anthony Hordern and Sons, Washington Soul, Pattinson Bros., chemists, Wholesale Elliott Bros., or direct from R. H. Hombell, chemist, 260 Clarendon-street, South Melbourne.—Advt.

IN MEMORIAM.

BINGHAM.—In sad but loving memory of our dear son, Edward Ernest, who departed this life at 17 Carlton-crescent, Summer Hill, on August 28, 1911, aged 33.

Do not ask us if we miss him,
There is such a vacant place,
Can we e'er forget his footsteps
And his dear familiar face.
Time has passed and still we miss him,
Words would fail our love to tell,
But in heaven we hope to meet him,
Jesus doeth all things well.

Inserted by his loving mother, father, and his only child, Clarence.

BINGHAM.—In sad but loving memory of our dear brother, Edward Ernest, who departed this lifeat 17 Carlton-crescent, Summer Hill, on August 28, 1911, aged 33.

Dear is the grave where our brother is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never will fade;
Roses will wither, eyes cease to see,
If others forget you, never will we.

Inserted by his loving sister and brothers, Ethel, Walter, Arthur, and George.

BINGHAM.—In sad but loving memory of our dear brother, Edward Ernest, who departed this life at 17 Carlton-crescent, Summer Hill, on August 28, 1911, aged 33.

Out in the lonely graveyard,
Beneath the lonely sod,
There lies my brother sleeping,
Resting in peace with God.

Inserted by his loving brother and sister-in-law, William, and Gertrude Bingham.

BINGHAM.—In sad but loving memory of our dear brother, Edward Ernest, who departed this life August 28th, 1911.

In the bloom of his life death claimed him,
In the pride of his manhood days;
None knew him but to love him,
None mentioned his name but with praise.

Inserted by his loving brother and sister-in-law, Walter and Ivy.

SCANES.—In memory of my dear mother, Mary Ann Scanes, who departed this life August 28, 1875.

So far away from sight or speech,
But not too far away for thought to reach.

Inserted by her loving daughter and son-in-law, J. and L. Gray.

SMITH.—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Sarah Smith, who passed to a higher life at Bend-street, Concord, on the 28th of August, 1906, aged 73 years. Inserted by her loving daughter and son-in-law, Alfred and Alice Mullins, and grandchildren, Albe, Eric, Kathleen, and Vera.

STONE.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Martha Stone, who departed this life August 28, 1909. Inserted by her loving sons and daughters-in-law.

SUMNER.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Joseph Sumner, who fell asleep August 28, 1906.

Like ivy round the withering oak,
When all things else decay,
Our love for you will still keep green,
And never fade away.

Inserted by his loving parents, brothers, and dear little sister.

SUMNER.—In loving memory of my dear nephew, Joseph Sumner, who was called home at the early age of 15 on August 28, 1906.

I, who loved you, sadly miss you,
Though I know that God did best
When He eased your pain and suffering,
And He laid you down to rest.

Inserted by his loving uncle, Frank Hill.

MR. HANNA'S TRANSLATION.

Mr. Hanna's appointment as a member of the Public Service Board is a matter for congratulation. No body is in greater need of reinforcement than the board; and the Civil Service as a whole stands to gain materially by the new move on the part of the Government. We are the more concerned to express an approval which, we are sure, will have the community behind it, because the temptation has been to make a political appointment. "Spoils to the victors" is still the motto of a substantial section of the Labour party in both Commonwealth and State, and it would not have been surprising had some prominent supporter or leader been given the comfortable salary which goes with a seat on the Public Service Board. But the Government has recognised that it owes a duty to Civil servants and to the country by sending Mr. Hanna up to the vacant post. He has given many years of strenuous life to the State, and as Under-Secretary to the Works Department has shown a vigour and resource which have proved of incalculable value in difficult situations. It is undoubtedly to the higher permanent officials of the Public Service that the State looks for successful administration. Their ability, experience, and hard work represent an abiding asset in the flux of politics, and upon them depends that continuity of control without which State enterprise would be impossible. Especially in these days of enlarging activity on the part of the State is it essential to have the best men at the head of departments. On such showing, therefore, the Public Service Board becomes more and more important. Upon its shoulders must rest very largely the choice of officers to fill onerous positions, and as it succeeds or fails in its appointments so does the Government find its work made comparatively easy or rendered intolerably heavy. Mr. Hanna deserves the translation which is now notified, and the very ability displayed in one post makes him the more suitable to carry the greater responsibilities of the other.

But what of the Works Department? It is clear that the Government has done well with one appointment, only to leave itself a heavy burden elsewhere. In finding a new Under-Secretary for the Works Department it must demonstrate to the community in a very special way its own fitness to keep going. No portfolio carries so much with it under existing circumstances as the one in the hands of Mr. Griffith, and no public servant has more to do and account for than the Under-Secretary of his department. The appointment of Mr. Davis seems a very good one, and not only the officer chosen to replace Mr. Hanna, but the enlargement of his duties and remuneration must be held to be an earnest view which the Government holds of the position. Mr. Davis has had a long experience in the Public Service of this State, and his professional status is high. His recent experience in London will also serve him well. It seems that both the new appointments are excellent, and the Public Service of this State and the Government are to be congratulated on them both.

STEEL WORKS AT NEWCASTLE.

Not long ago it was rumoured that the Broken Hill Proprietary Company was contemplating the establishment of large steel works on the coast of New South Wales, and was engaged in considering the claims of various places to be the scene of the new enterprise. The thing most essential to the success of such a foundry is an abundant supply of coal close at hand; and if iron ore is not also in situ, then hardly less important is it that there should be adequate shipping facilities in the neighbourhood. There are several ports on our coast which possess these advantages to a greater or less degree, but upon the whole Newcastle and its environs are most favoured in this respect. Newcastle's fame as a coal port is notable, and while, from the point of view of the navigator, its harbour leaves much to be desired, it can accommodate under ordinary conditions vessels of considerable size. It is hardly unexpected, therefore, that Newcastle is to be the site of the projected undertaking, and, if report speaks true, operations will be commenced at an early date. Those responsible for the scheme are determined that it shall be on a large scale. Three millions is the sum which, it is estimated, will be expended in construction and equipment, and when the works are in full swing they will provide employment for thousands of men. The impetus which they will give to the development of Newcastle will be enormous, and that city should congratulate herself upon the fact that she has been chosen as the home of what may become a gigantic industry.

While Newcastle will be directly benefited by the proposal, the whole State as well should profit thereby. It has been suggested in certain quarters that it may mean a check to the prosperity of Lithgow, but there is, after all, little reason for anxiety on that score. It is absurd to suppose that in a place like Australia there is no room for two such steel works. Lithgow has done worthy service in the past, and will, no doubt, continue to do so, but the output from her foundries is not equal to the demands now made upon them, and we should remember that these demands will soon be considerably greater. To take steel rails alone, the quantity of these which will be required all over Australia is enormous. Already we have to import most of those we use from abroad, and we are forced to pay an exorbitant price for them, in addition to the heavy item of freight. All over Australia new railway lines are being built, and old ones duplicated. The transcontinental line alone will need thousands of miles of rails, and when the one from south to north comes to be commenced it will involve the use of as many more. Indeed, there is every prospect of the various Governments—both Federal and State—being insatiable and lucrative customers for many a year to come. But it is not only in the railways that there is a demand for this commodity. It will be wanted for our navy, for agricultural and manufacturing machinery, and, indeed, for the thousand and one purposes which have caused the last century to be aptly described as "the age of steel." At present the greater part of what we use is imported, but it is ridiculous to suppose that we cannot make it as well as others, or, when everything is taken into consideration, as cheaply. Indeed, while it is difficult to see how the proposed works at Newcastle can injure Lithgow, it is safe to prophesy that they will become a most valuable national asset, and mark an important advance in the development of Australian industries.

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

It is not always possible to sheet directly home the evil effects of Labour legislation; but now and again we can do so. A conspicuous case in point is the sugar industry, which has been brought into a most disastrous plight wholly and solely by the folly of a political party. There are large portions of Australia eminently fitted for this industry. Perhaps no country in the world could grow cane to better profit. But the application of one shibboleth or another threatens extinction to the industry. Ever since the beginning of the Commonwealth it has been in jeopardy. There are large areas where white labour in the canefield is next door to impossible. The Commonwealth chose to decree, however, that only white labour should be allowed. In the early days of federalism there was still a little intelligence left, and some attempt was made by the bounty system to meet a difficulty that had been artificially created. But no one who knows anything of economic history could possibly doubt that a bounty-fed industry was bound to be a failure. It has proved so in the present instance. Unnatural conditions have been forced upon the sugar-grower, and he cannot contend against them. It would have been bad enough if he had merely been compelled to employ only white labour. That alone is an almost impossible handicap, as anyone who has had any practical experience of northern canefields must know. But that it seems was not enough. We must go further, and determine by statute law what wage the white labourer is to receive. This is mere economic nonsense. The fatal mistake Labour administrations make is that they see only one-half of the economic problem. It is right to protect the worker to a reasonable extent. But how is it that no one seems to feel it a duty to protect the producer who risks all he has in employing that same worker, or the consumer who has to buy the product, plus two artificial imposts?

Political Labour has pretty well reduced itself to absurdity over the sugar industry. Although it was not directly responsible for a bounty system which has saddled the whole continent with a tremendous handicap, that handicap is in the main due to its influence. It now promises to wipe out the industry altogether by imposing impossible labour conditions. The existence of the bounty is an excuse for intervening with the natural law of supply and demand so far as labour is concerned, and the conditions arbitrarily laid down make it almost impossible to carry on. The deputation, headed by the Queensland Treasurer, which interviewed the Minister for Customs, and the almost simultaneous protest from our own sugar-growing areas, are only two specific instances of a very widespread unrest. The economic fallacy, of course, lies in the fact that it is impossible to fix wages independently of the selling price of the commodity. This is the whole trend of Labour legislation, but it is foredoomed to failure. Whatever the deserts of Labour may be, and however right it is to conserve them, the fact remains that an industry depends for its existence on the capital invested in it; and if conditions are imposed such that no fair return on capital can be expected it is obvious that it will not be invested. This is where Labour cuts away the ground it stands on. The sugar-growers say that it is quite impossible for them to pay the increased rates for labour now demanded. They do not ask us to take that statement on their bare word. On the contrary, they are ready, with very convincing evidence in support of their argument. Yet nothing seems to serve. The deputation referred to got no satisfaction from the Administration, and could hardly have expected to do so. But no more glaring example of the strangling of an industry by legislative incompetence could well be quoted.

A FEDERAL HISTORIAN.

We are glad to welcome the appointment of Dr. F. Watson as the editor of "The Historical Records of Australia." He thus becomes official historian to the Commonwealth, and the work which was suspended in New South Wales in 1901 will now be continued and its area widened so as to embrace all the States. Dr. Watson brings, we believe, considerable personal enthusiasm to the task which he has undertaken, and his experience at the Mitchell and Sydney Public libraries should be valuable to him in acquainting him with both the archives which have already been collected, and the lacunae which remain to be supplied. It is now over twenty years since Sir Henry Parkes was instrumental in securing the publication of the archives of this State, and seven volumes were published between 1890 and 1901, when the view was taken that the matter was one for the Commonwealth as a whole. The early history of Australia is, of course, the history of New South Wales, and the work of any Australian historian will always be very largely devoted to an examination of the early records of this State. An important part of Dr. Watson's duties will, therefore, lie in continuing the publication of the "Historical Records of New South Wales," and in co-ordinating and adding to the archives which have been brought together in the libraries, museums, and other institutions in Sydney. By virtue of the new historian's office he will, no doubt, be able to arrange that the despatches and other State documents which are at present withheld from publication, and even from inspection, will be available for use by responsible persons in completing the historical records of the Commonwealth. Like the art connoisseur and dealer, who has a note of the whereabouts of every chef-d'oeuvre not in public galleries, he will make it his business to become acquainted with the location of important documents which are still in private hands, and endeavour to ensure that their contents, at all events, are made known to the historian of the period or the place to which they relate. Perhaps, also, it is not too much to hope that the Federal historian will, in the name of the people of Australia, help to bring back to these shores those records of our past which have found their way either to general collections in England, or into the possession of individuals. Their proper resting-place is in the land to which they relate, or from which they were taken.

Dr. Watson has a unique opportunity in many ways. Australia's history under the white man's rule is not too old that its records cannot be rendered easily accessible, and with a reasonable amount of organisation and money it should not be difficult to do for the five other States what has in part been accomplished for New South Wales, notably by Sir Henry Parkes and by Mr. Mitchell. We have not had the complications of race and colour which South Africa and Canada have experienced in their development. Our political and economic evolution has been unique. It may be that as the years roll on we shall have taught the world little of lasting utility, either from our achievements or our failures. But we prefer to think that the progress of a continent of great magnitude and almost unlimited resources, peopled by white men, and possessing political institutions, and an industrial organisation, which are paralleled in no other part of the world, must be of interest both to our contemporaries and our successors. Whilst, therefore, Dr. Watson will devote much attention to searching into the days of long ago, and revealing the secrets of the beginnings of our country, he will not neglect the present. A well-organised system of collecting documents of current interest should be of inestimable value to the future historian. In particular, we would draw attention in this connection to the Northern Territory, the new Federal capital, and such general movements as industrial legislation and the incidents attached thereto. To-day is yesterday's to-morrow, but also to-morrow's yesterday.

MR. NIELSEN'S POSITION.

It appears that there is some doubt whether, after all, Mr. Nielsen's pair is secure. We trust it is not. There is no question of the suitableness of Mr. Nielsen for the appointment of Commercial Agent in the United States. On the contrary, we believe him to be capable of doing very useful service for the State in that capacity. But he cannot have it both ways. Nor can the Government. He cannot under the Constitution be a salaried member of Parliament in Australia and a salaried public servant in America. The position is unanswerably wrong. Mr. Nielsen is still a salaried member of Parliament. He is also en route to America under commission from the Government, and with salary and travelling expenses duly apportioned him. Manifestly he should have ceased to be a member of Parliament before he become eligible for further office under the Crown. As Commercial Agent, or merely as a nondescript official in training for the post of Commercial Agent, he is worth his salary. But it should be his only salary, as similar emolument is the only salary of, say, the Commercial Agent in the East. There is no justification at all for an anomalously twice-salaried occupant of the San Francisco post. The Government has committed a grave error of judgment in its effort to placate Mr. Nielsen. But that is no reason why the Opposition should be invoked to ease the position. Already a pair has been provided for Mr. Nielsen far beyond the bounds of legitimate arrangement of the kind. The Government's desire now to extend the operation to the limit of Mr. Nielsen's second sojourn in the United States has no reasonable claim upon the House. It is obvious, of course, that the pair would help the Government materially, and that the absence of it would go perilously near disturbing its already precarious advantage in numbers. But even with the added importance of Mr. Speaker Willis hovering in the background as a too tangible effect of the impasse, we are strongly of opinion that is a lesser evil than the sacrifice of a principle. The Opposition has already done all that could justifiably be asked of it in respect of a pair for Mr. Nielsen. To extend that pair for another indefinite period would be to surrender far too much. The call of the Government is, no doubt, a call of need. But the Opposition has its rights—and the country, for that matter (not to speak of Mr. Nielsen's disfranchised constituency), is deserving sometimes of consideration.

The "Sydney Mail."—In this week's issue of the "Mail" Mr. Julian Ashton criticises the annual exhibition of the Royal Art Society. His tone is one of disappointment, and he complains that there is, generally speaking, an absence of that joyousness about the display which is inseparable from an exhibition of good work. Mr. Frank Walker, president of the Historical Society of N.S.W., does justice to the memory of William Evans, the explorer, in an illustrated article on "The Second Crossing of the Blue Mountains." It was Evans, he declares, who gave practical effect to the discovery by Blaxland, Wentworth, and Lawson of the passage across the mountains. The first of what promises to be an interesting series of articles on the history of the drama in Australia is published. It goes back to the days of Governor Phillip, and the present instalment brings us up to the visit of Griffiths and the Tornings in 1842. The growing town of Temora is specially dealt with. This issue contains some notable illustrations, among them being an admirable full-page photograph of a tourist train rushing through a deep cutting, the smoke effect being very striking; an excellent full-page portrait of the late General Booth; and a fine sketch by Mr. Muir Auld of the brilliant scene at the recent ice carnival. There are portraits of the late Dr. Houison, the late Rev. J. Kinghorn, Mr. Rigby (the waiter in "You Never Can Tell"), the bridal group at the marriage of Mr. James Gordon and Miss Gladys Bowker, several sporting pictures, a remarkable photograph of a rabbit waggon at Yass, and a view of the Murrumbidgee River near Wagga. The regular features of the paper are as entertaining as usual, and on the page devoted to "Australians in the Foreground" there is a special sketch of Mr. W. H. Wood, M.L.A.

A Correct Reply.—The Premier was reminded in the Assembly yesterday of a statement he made at the end of last session with regard to the appointment of new members to the Legislative Council. Mr. Price (Liberal) said: "On the last day of last session the Premier said no further appointments would be made to the Upper House. Would he be good enough to state who supplied him with that information?" "The statement I made on that occasion was absolutely correct, and made by me deliberately," answered the Premier with a smile. "I stated no appointments would be made to the House that session." "And it was the last night of the session," added a Liberal member.

Mr. Nielsen's Appointment.—"Has the hon. member for Yass suddenly left for America?" asked Mr. Wade in the Legislative Assembly yesterday in allusion to Mr. Nielsen's departure for America. Other information was sought relative to that gentleman's movements. There was an anxiety to know whether he would be absent during the whole of the session, but the greatest interest was taken in the question of his remuneration. "The facts of the case are as I stated them publicly yesterday," gravely replied the Premier. "The hon. member for Yass has gone away, and the public have been informed. Whether he will be away the whole of this session it is impossible for me to state until he gives definite information with regard to the offer made by the Government. As to his remuneration, that at present is exactly as it was when he was appointed on his last visit."

Worst Service in the World.—Some hot language about the telephone service is used by Mr. Nesbitt, the Town Clerk of Sydney, in his annual report, which was presented to the City Council last night. Mr. Nesbitt says that the service is "incomparably the worst in the world," that it is "effete and decrepit," and "obsolete and antiquated." In the course of his tirade, which is remarkable for its variety of invective, he says:—"It is universally recognised that the telephone service in Sydney is absolutely 'rotten'—a word to which exception has been taken, but to which I unhesitatingly adhere as peculiarly appropriate under existing conditions, as there is only one other word in the English language capable of describing the service which is given. One would naturally think that measures would be taken to improve the service, though hope deferred maketh the heart sick; but month after month and year after year goes by and there is not the slightest visible indication in the direction named. While large and costly improvements may be in contemplation and under consideration with a view to being completed at some distant date, possibly with the advent of the millennium, when funds will no doubt permit, surely the attention of the responsible authorities should be directed to remedying one of the most brain irritating, nerve racking, and profanity producing of all the multitudinous faults which at the present time, and for years past, have characterised the telephone service of Sydney. If an ordinary individual was guilty of obtaining money in the manner in which the Commonwealth Postal Department obtain it he would be charged, and properly charged, and no doubt convicted for obtaining money by false pretences." Mr. Nesbitt then goes on to point out the advantages of the automatic system, and recommends its adoption.

Government and Schools of Art.—An announcement of the Government's intentions in regard to schools of art was made in Parliament yesterday in the answers to questions. The Minister for Public Instruction (Mr. Carmichael) stated that it is not intended to reduce the subsidies. A new system, not necessarily involving reduction, will be instituted, under which, in order to make the Government aid more contributory to the literary purposes of the institutions, the present policy of paying maintenance subsidy on the contributions of members and on the money raised by other means will be discontinued, and all future subsidy will be paid in respect of money expended in the purchase of books and upkeep of the library. It is proposed to apply the new system to all institutions, but not to continue it, after three years further assistance, to those which should be self-supporting.

A Sporting Record.—With the departure of Mr. G. W. Graham, an old-time Wallaroo footballer, for America with the New South Wales Rugby Union team on September 7, an interesting record will be established in the annals of Australian sport. This will be the first visit of an Australian football team to America, and the interesting feature in Mr. Graham's presence with the team is that he, when a boy, accompanied the first team of cricketers to England in 1868. He went with his father, who was an athletic enthusiast. This famous team was composed entirely of aboriginal players, and excited great interest in England. Mr. Graham's father was manager and part promoter of the venture. At a later period, in 1882, Mr. Graham was a member of the first Union Rugby team to visit New Zealand, and he took part in the matches against the leading New Zealand teams, which, prior to the advent of the New South Wales players, were regarded as invulnerable. On that occasion the Australians won four out of the seven matches, and New Zealand lost its reputation as the land of unconquerable sportsmen.

Snakes Re-appearing.—With the advent of summer come the snakes from their winter sleep. One of the first of the season was a venomous black snake, which was shot with a pea rifle the other day in the bush near Eastwood, by ex-Gunner Gordon. On measuring the reptile it was found to be 3ft 6in in length.

PERSONAL.

Mr. W. J. Hanna (Under-Secretary for Works), who has had a long and honourable career in the Public Service, has been appointed to the vacant seat on the Public Service Board. As a result of the appointment there will be a rearrangement in the Public Works Department. Instead of an Under-Secretary, in future there will be a Director of Works, who will have larger powers and draw a larger salary than the Under-Secretary. The new appointment has been given to Mr. J. Davis, formerly Under-Secretary for Works, and at present inspecting engineer for the State in London. Mr. Davis will shortly leave London for Sydney to take up his new appointment.

The Executive Council yesterday approved of the appointment of Mr. W. Blacket as King's Council, with rank and precedence next after Mr. T. Rolin, K.C.

Mr. R. R. P. Hickson, formerly president of the Sydney Harbour Trust, will leave Sydney to-day by the Levuka, on a visit to Suva, in connection with the harbour works being carried out there.

Councillor D. V. Hennessy, of the Melbourne City Council, was present at last night's meeting of the City Council.

Mr. T. Jessep, chairman of the N.S.W. Fruit Importers' Association, and of the Fruit Exchange, will leave by the Levuka to-day on a two-months' visit to Fiji.

PANAMA CANAL.

CANADIAN PROTEST.

THE FREE TOLL PROVISION.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.

The Cabinet is preparing to register a vigorous protest against the Panama Canal Bill.

The Borden Government will co-operate with the British Government in pointing out that at the present time United States vessels are able to use Canadian waterways and canals connecting the great lakes without payment of tolls.

British Columbia, it is contended, is vitally affected by the new legislation, because American ships sailing from New York to San Francisco and passing through the canal toll-free can continue the voyage to Vancouver, get cargo there, and return toll-free to the Atlantic seaboard, consequent damage to Canadian interests being obvious.

The Canadian Cabinet is reported to be planning retaliatory measures.

WAITING FOR THE TOLLS.

TO BE TESTED IN THE COURTS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.

Mr. A. Mitchell-Innes, British Charge d'Affaires in Washington, has not made any move, in the absence of the Ambassador, Mr. James Bryce, in connection with the Panama Canal legislation.

It is pointed out by the Embassy officials that, as 18 months must elapse before the question of tolls becomes practical, urgency is not necessary.

President Taft is still willing to allow foreign shipowners to test legally their rights to use the canal on even terms with American ships, but it is pointed out that such a contingency will not arise until one British ship has protested against the actual payment of toll after using the canal. The case would then go to the Circuit Court, an appeal afterwards being made to the United States Supreme Court.

Meanwhile the opponents of the legislation as it now stands are fairly confident of eliminating, during the interval, by amending legislation, the objectionable features of the present law.

GERMAN COMMENTS.

THREAT OF RETALIATION.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.

Newspaper comments regarding the Panama Canal Bill largely coincide with the British comments, and refer to the serious injury German shipping is threatened with.

The "Tagliche Rundschau" states that if the United States Government does not reconsider its decision it will be Germany's duty, in conjunction with others, to consider the question of retaliation.

MR. HARCOURT'S RETICENCE.

In the Federal House of Representatives yesterday afternoon Mr. Kelly asked the Prime Minister if the Commonwealth Government had received any communication from the Imperial Government on the matter. Mr. Fisher replied:—"Two communications of importance were sent asking that we should be informed of any particulars that the Imperial Government wished to convey to us. His Majesty's Ministers have not thought it wise to give those particulars yet; but I suppose that we shall get them in good time. We asked to be associated in any protest that they might make." It will be remembered that the Federal Government asked by cable for information from the Colonial Secretary as to the Panama Canal Bill as long ago as May 3, and the terms of the resolution of the Federal Parliament protesting against discriminatory tolls were also cabled some weeks ago. No reply would appear to have been received to either of these communications, and some explanation will doubtless be forthcoming as to this apparent neglect on the part of the Imperial authorities.

WHAT IS COASTWISE TRADE?

The instance adduced in the above cable is an excellent illustration of what may happen under the interpretation given to coastwise shipping by the United States law. Another may be given. An American vessel starting from New York, might convey American goods and passengers to Australia by way of the Panama Canal, reload with Australian merchandise, and return to New York via the Canal, and still come within the definition of coastal traffic. Assuming the Canal dues to be at the rate of 6s a ton, and the American ship to be of 10,000 tonnage, the American vessel would receive a preference of no less than £6000 on the double journey over British ships covering the same route. The text of the United States navigation laws which relate to this matter makes it clear that so long as an American ship commences and finishes the voyage at American ports it comes within the category of the coastal trade, whether it calls at foreign ports in the course of the voyage or not.

THE AMERICAN LAW.

The following sections of the Navigation statutes of the United States, which were originally passed in the year 1817—nearly a century ago—and have been revised in recent years, make the position clear:—"No merchandise shall be transported by water under penalty of forfeiture thereof from one port of the United States to another port of the United States, either directly or via a foreign port, or for any part of the voyage, in any other vessel than a vessel of the United States. But this section shall not be construed to prohibit the sailing of any foreign vessel from one to another port of the United States, provided that any merchandise other than that imported in such vessel from some foreign port, which shall not have been unladen, shall not be carried from one port or place in the United States to another.

"No foreign vessel shall transport passengers between ports or places in the United States either directly or by way of a foreign port, under a penalty of two hundred dollars for each passenger so transported and landed."

HOW CANADA IS HIT.

It is true that these provisions of the American law prohibit foreign ships from participating in the coastal trade of the United States, and thus, prima facie, the free passage of American ships through the Panama Canal simply confers an added benefit to an existing monopoly. A single instance will, however, at once show the illusory character of this position. Whereas a Canadian vessel travelling from Halifax via New York and San Francisco to Vancouver would not be permitted to convey either goods or passengers from New York to San Francisco, and, in addition, would have to pay heavy tolls through the Panama Canal, an American vessel could both engage in the United States coastwise trade and pass free of dues through the Canal. Again, an Australian ship conveying Newcastle coal or Tasmanian apples through the Canal to South American or United States ports would have to pay tolls, whereas an American vessel with similar cargo from California would escape.

MR. THOMAS'S DEFINITION.

Last Wednesday, in the Federal House of Representatives, Mr. W. H. Kelly asked the Minister for External Affairs for the official definition of a ship engaged in the coastal trade of the United States under American law. Mr. Thomas's reply was as follows:—"There appears to be no statutory definition of coasting trade in the United States; but that expression as used in the American Shipping Acts appears to be construed as extending to all trade between ports under the jurisdiction of the United States." The only exception to this construction is the Phillipine Islands, which have not yet been included in the domestic navigation laws of the United States for this purpose. On the other hand, Hawaii, Samoa, Alaska, Porto Rico, and other possessions of the United States, are all treated as home ports, and foreign ships may not trade between any of them and a port of the United States under the general prohibition with regard to coastal trade.

In further answer to Mr. Kelly, Mr. Thomas stated that the registered tonnage of vessels belonging to the mercantile marine of the United States for the year ended June 30, 1911, was 6,720,313 for the coastwise trade, and 863,495 for foreign trade, thus showing that no less than 88.6 per cent. of the total American mercantile marine is engaged in the so-called coastwise trade, and could use the Panama Canal free of tolls. Mr. Thomas also stated that the tonnage of American and foreign vessels entered in the above-mentioned period at all ports in the United States from foreign countries was 9,692,770 for American vessels, and 32,982,219 for foreign vessels, showing that foreign vessels entered at American ports bore a percentage of 77.2 of the total. The importance to foreign shipping of the regulations which have been made by the United States with regard to the Panama Canal is, therefore, manifest.

FEDERAL HISTORIAN.

DR. F. WATSON.

A NEW APPOINTMENT.

The Federal Government has filled the position of editor of "The Historical Records of Australia," by the appointment of Dr. F. Watson, of this city.

For a considerable time Dr. Watson was in charge of the Mitchell Library, and subsequently was acting principal librarian of the Sydney Free Public Library.

Dr. Watson was nominated by the trustees of the Free Public Library for the position of librarian, but the Minister for Education made an appointment from South Australia.

THE N.S.W. RECORDS.

In 1890 the publication of the archives of New South Wales was commenced on the initiative of the late Sir Henry Parkes, and was continued until the year 1901, by which date seven volumes had been published. These volumes included the major portion of the original records up to and inclusive of the year 1811, connected with the discoveries of Captain Cook in Australia and the foundation and administration of the affairs of the colony of New South Wales, which at that time was virtually synonymous with Australia. The further publication was then discontinued by the State Government, as the undertaking was rightly considered more within the sphere of the Commonwealth than of the State, covering as it does papers connected with the origin and first beginnings of all the Australian States.

After various unforeseen delays the Commonwealth has decided to continue the publication periodically, the Library Committee of the Parliament of the Commonwealth being entrusted with the oversight of this important work. This committee has long recognised the importance of the project, and to the enthusiasm of the chairman, Mr. Charles M'Donald, is largely due the realisation of the immediate commencement of preparations for continuous publication.

ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS.

In the publication of the records a new departure is by no means being made. All civilised countries are now impressed with the importance of the care and preservation of national records, the keynote and foundation of the history of a country and from time to time calendars and excerpts are published of State papers to serve as a guide for the student of history and the original documents are made available for examination.

In Australia, however, an exceptional and unique opportunity arises. For the first time in the world's history, it becomes possible to publish almost the entire original records connected with the civilised history of a country, for in Australia these records have neither become too voluminous nor too scrappy to prohibit this happy result.

THE ROMANTIC PAST.

Athough it is only 124 years since Governor Phillip landed, the records of the country teem with romance, covering the trials and tribulations of the founders sent to settle 2000 miles from the nearest civilisation, the courage and daring of the early explorers, the birth of the first partner in the British Empire by the introduction of responsible Government into a Crown colony, and, above all, the creation of the Commonwealth. The story of the achievement of these results, the method and the workers, must, indeed, have a great influence on the means and methods of the future.

In the records, also, are scientific data of great value; facts concerning the extinct races of Tasmanian and Victorian aborigines and the almost extinct New South Wales aborigines are there, which will be of assistance in the elucidation of their origin and migration; facts relating to the introduction of all known infectious diseases into virgin soil, and their subsequent geographical distribution, and records of meteorological and other sciences. Data like these are not of mere Australian, but of world-wide importance.

FEDERAL SESSION.

BUDGET DEBATE CONTINUES.

MR. IRVINE'S CONTRIBUTION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Business opened in the House of Representatives this afternoon with the resumption of the Budget debate. It was the intention of the Government to bring this interesting matter to finality on last Friday, but as members of the Labour party have suddenly shown a desire to take part in the debates, Ministers have been forced to allow more time than they were going to. It is strange to hear so many speakers from the Ministerial side of the House on any subject, but doubtless the near approach of the elections may have something to do with it.

To-day's debate was opened by Mr. Mathews and Mr. Sampson, two Victorians, who in turn defended and attacked the Government. Neither of them made much impression on the House, which was sparsely attended. The next speaker, Mr. W. H. Irvine, however, infused plenty of life into the chamber. He started off in the most commonplace manner by discussing the State debts question, and in this connection he neither blamed nor praised the Government for what it had done or had not done. Ministerialists seemed quite taken back by Mr. Irvine's attitude towards them, and they helped with friendly interjections. In fact, they might all have been on one and the same side for all the heat of argument that was engendered.

This state of calm lasted for about a quarter of an hour, and then Mr. Irvine dwelt on the Budget figures. These, he said, had completely mystified him by their complexity. It took hours of close scrutiny to make anything out of them. He said that when they were laid bare, anyone who returned to Australia after an absence of 12 or 15 years, would say, "Surely these are people to whom history teaches no lessons." He went from finance to administration, and severely criticised the Government for its adoption of Yankee methods. Without a doubt the Government was in the hands of the trades-unions. This announcement seemed to annoy the Ministers, who were particularly vehement in their denials of such a thing. Mr. Roberts, the Hon. Minister, was apparently most hurt at such a suggestion. Mr. Irvine grappled with the baby bonus question, and declared that there were many other occasions during peoples' lives when bonuses would be of more assistance to them than at birth, particularly in the case of the death or the long illness of the breadwinner. He thought that the ladling out of such payments from the public Treasury would not tend to preserve the individual independence of the race.

Perhaps the feature of the speech was Mr. Irvine's plea for more expenditure on defence. He put in a strong appeal for special assistance being given to Great Britain to help her defend herself. The Commonwealth, he thought, should help share the responsibility of defending England, the same as New Zealand and Canada had done.

The evening was occupied by Mr. Groom, Mr. West, and Mr. Bruce Smith. Mr. Smith delivered a telling speech against the Government, dealing principally with its action in regard to the finances. The debate was adjourned.

INDUSTRIAL PEACE BILL.

QUEENSLAND LEGISLATION.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The Premier stated yesterday that the Industrial Peace Bill would be under consideration in the Assembly this week, despite the absence of Mr. Barnes and Mr. Bowman.

Mr. Denham said that under the notice which he had given the first part of the bill would require to be reported on Wednesday next, and the final portion on September 18. Mr. Bowman had given notice of a sheaf of amendments which were almost as big as the bill itself. Mr. Bowman would, if he were able, abolish industrial boards, and substitute a kind of Court, with a President, whose salary would be fixed by the Governor-in-Council, and two assessors, at £750 each, the Court having power to appoint two other assessors in dealing with technical matters. The amendments also provided for preference to unionists, no regard being paid whatever to the position of those who did not belong to unions.

Mr. Denham said the Government would not accept such amendments. To do so would mean to entirely alter the character of the bill.

THE MASSACRES.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

MANY TOWNS PILLAGED.

THE POWERS TAKE ACTION.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 27.

An official report of the Kochana massacre shows that several officers, a large proportion of the garrison, and three civil officials actively participated in killing the Bulgarians.

Latest news from the frontier tends to confirm the report that the military destroyed 11 villages in the Beltana district.

An apparently inspired statement declares that many Albanian tribesmen, when dispersing homewards, pillaged the rifle depots at Prizrend, Diakova, Spash, Nitrovitza, and Sienitza, and seized altogether 17,000 rifles.

Albanian opinion at Constantinople is sceptical regarding the participation of the King's soldiers in the alleged massacres at Bielopolje and Sienitza.

The Governor of Berat telegraphs that the Albanians are dispersing quietly, and are returning to their homes.

The Valis of all the European provinces have been instructed to apply to all throughout the various districts the concession made to the Albanians. There are indications that the same measures will be introduced at Anatolia and Cettinge.

The representatives of the great Powers have made energetic representations to the King and Government of Montenegro in connection with the frontier troubles, and the King has replied that he will do nothing contrary to the wishes of the Powers.

The King further states that Montenegro is unaggressive, and is only protecting herself from Turkey's attacks as an independent State. She is unable to any longer tolerate in her territory the Turkish frontier fortifications, which are seriously violating her integrity and disturbing quiet life on the border.

King Nicholas expresses the hope that the Powers will settle the dispute in the interests of order and peace.

FLOODS IN ENGLAND.

TRAINS HELD UP.

WHEAT FIELDS RUINED.

LONDON, Aug. 27.

More rain has fallen during the current month than in any August within living memory. Severe floods have occurred in Wales, and several children were drowned at Rhondda.

The floods have severed Norwich from railway communication. The express is held up at King's Lynn, and other trains are at a standstill, the heavy rains extinguishing the engine fires.

The branch railways to Mundesley, Sheringham, and Cromer, in Norfolk, have been closed.

The valley of the Nen is flooded, and Thrapston has been transformed into an island.

Corby tunnel is inundated.

Tuesday's rainfall totalled six inches at Norwich and two inches on the eastern coast.

A wheat expert from Bristol motored through the wheat districts, and found every bit showing out badly, irretrievably damaged.

Conditions are equally bad on the Cotswold hills and in the vale, due to several days' rain, with higher temperature.

TRADE RECIPROCITY.

CANADA AND AUSTRALIA.

SIR GEORGE REID'S MOVEMENTS.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.

Sir George Reid, High Commissioner for Australia, is expected here shortly, and it is expected that he will meet Mr. G. E. Foster, Minister for Trade and Commerce, to discuss the question of trade reciprocity between Australia and Canada.

The negotiations, if opened, will be continued when Mr. Foster goes to Australia in the winter.

Sir George Reid is at present touring the maritime provinces, and investigating the general conditions there, especially in regard to immigration.

EMPIRE DEFENCE.

AUSTRALIA'S PART.

EYES ON THE PACIFIC.

FUTURE POSSIBILITIES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.

The "Times" eulogises the lead given by Australia and New Zealand to other Dominions in the matter of practical measures for defence.

"Australia," the journal remarks, "has now embarked upon an important naval development for reasons that are different from Canada's. Canada, desiring mainly general security against war, inasmuch as her security is absolutely dependent upon that of the Empire as a whole, is naturally inclined to close co-operation with the British Fleet in European seas. Australia, on the other hand, looks first to the Pacific, and the balance of power there. Her first consideration is the reverse of Canada's. It is security against direct attack."

The "Times" then utters a warning in connection with the argument that the Australian Fleet will remain Imperial, because it will become so immediately in the event of war. It argues, firstly, that the movements of the Australian Fleet may in themselves produce war, and if the Empire as a whole has no voice in the movements of the fleet, it cannot accept the responsibility for any consequences those movements may entail. Secondly, if Australia conducts her own policy in the Pacific—a policy over which other Imperial statesmen have no control—she will be committing other partners of the Empire to liabilities they cannot limit or foretell.

"These conclusions," it is added, "have admittedly no immediate bearing on Imperial relations, inasmuch as they are based on conditions that do not exist at present, but it is essential to look forward, as Mr. Borden proposes, and provide the gradual accommodation of Imperial relations to Imperial needs. The problem is not simple, and progress can only be tentative."

COMPULSORY TRAINING.

LONDON, Aug. 26.

Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, speaking at Brentwood, Essex, said that compulsory military training would not be adopted by the people in Great Britain until the electorate was as patriotic as Australia and New Zealand.

MOROCCO.

ADVANCE ON MARAKESH.

PRETENDER'S FORCE SURPRISED.

TANGIER, Aug. 26.

General Mangin, who is proceeding to Marakesh with 4000 troops, surprised one of the encampments of the Pretender El Hiba in the vicinity of Suket Arba, which was routed at the point of the bayonet.

Native advices state that El Hiba has quitted Marakesh, and that he is travelling in a northerly direction.

It is also stated that Kaid El Glawi, who is friendly towards the French, handed several Frenchmen over to him, El Hiba promising to furnish an escort to the coast.

PARIS, Aug. 27.

France has remonstrated with Spain, owing to the Spanish Consul's report of the agents of El Hiba and the fact that Spanish proteges are conducting an active contraband traffic in arms.

El Hiba's force of 6000 men are well equipped. The tribesmen include many of Mulai Hafid's French-trained soldiers who deserted in April.

The French are anxious as to the fate of their compatriots entrusted to the care of El Hiba's soldiers.

Many of the newspapers are urging drastic action, even to the extent of providing an extra 20,000 men as reinforcements.

SEDITION IN EGYPT.

ANOTHER PLOT DISCOVERED.

CAIRO, Aug. 26.

The authorities in Alexandria arrested a man who recently arrived from Constantinople. He had in his possession documents inciting the Egyptians to rebellion, and praising Wardani, who was executed some time ago for the murder of the then Premier.

A search which was made in a printing office in Cairo revealed the existence of similar documents.

CAIRO, Aug. 27.

Three arrests have been made in Cairo in connection with seditious placards violently appealing to the Egyptians to rise against the British occupation.

The Alexandrian prisoner, who arrived recently from Constantinople, is an Egyptian Nationalist.

AMERICAN PRESIDENCY.

SOCIALIST CANDIDATE.

MR. KEIR HARDIE'S SUPPORT.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.

Mr. Keir Hardie, M.P., has arrived from England on a tour of Canada and the United States.

Plans have been made for him to speak at many meetings in support of Mr. Eugene Debs, the socialist candidate for the United States Presidency.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S CAMPAIGN.

President Taft will start campaigning for the Presidency in a few days.

FALLING BIRTH-RATE.

IN ENGLAND AND WALES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.

The birth-rate in England and Wales for the quarter ended June 30 was 3.7 below the average of the ten preceding second quarters of the year, and the lowest recorded for any second quarter.

The death-rate was 1.7 below the average of the ten preceding similar periods, and was also the lowest on record.

UNITED STATES SENATE.

ADJOURNED TILL DECEMBER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.

The United States Senate has adjourned till December, after a fierce fight over the General Deficiency Bill (referring chiefly to pensions to war veterans), and Senator La Follette's demand for an investigation of the Penrose charges against Mr. Roosevelt being acceded to. The General Deficiency Bill was adopted.

President Taft has left the capital on a holiday.

BROKEN ELECTRIC CABLE.

WOMAN AND CHILD KILLED.

LONDON, Aug. 26.

A child, attracted by the sparks, approached a broken electric cable in Dingwall. The mother rushed to its rescue, and both were killed.

A second woman who endeavoured to render assistance was injured, and is in a critical condition.

TO BE COURT-MARTIALLED.

THE BLACK SEA FLEET.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 27.

As a result of the inquiry into the recent unrest among the sailors of the Black Sea Fleet, 300 marines have been landed and ordered to be court-martialled.

RECEIPTS FROM TEST MATCHES.

LONDON, Aug. 26.

The "Pall Mall Gazette" states that the Australian cricketers received approximately £780 from the gate takings for the test matches against the South Africans, and £2130 for the test matches against the Englishmen, the Oval leading with £1120.

The figures quoted above must, in the circumstances, be considered satisfactory, as abnormally wet weather prevailed throughout the test match engagements. From the latest advices received by the Board of Control, it was gathered that the total takings of the tour up to July 15 amounted to £4200, and that the expenses of the whole tour were expected to be in the vicinity of £4500. The final financial statement, according to the official estimate, should return a dividend of between £150 and £200 to each man.

The test matches of the 1909 tour returned the following amounts to the Australian team:—

First match	£572	12	0
Second match	1255	12	0
Third match	1038	15	3
Fourth match	7242	9	9
Fifth match	1343	4	6
Total	£5452	13	6

GERMAN EMPEROR ILL.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.

An official announcement is made that the German Emperor has experienced a stiffening of the muscles of the neck, followed by a shivering fit and a general feeling of indisposition, accompanied by a swelling of the right side of the neck.

An examination disclosed a swelling of the gums, and great pain in the muscles.

The general condition of the Emperor has since improved. The feverishness has disappeared, and the inflammation is decreasing. There is, however, still considerable pain in the muscles.

The Emperor has been obliged to abandon attendance at parades, and must be careful of himself for a little while longer.

LONDON, Aug. 27.

According to the Berlin correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph," the official document relating to the German Emperor's illness mentions the tonsils instead of the gums.

LATE GENERAL BOOTH.

A ROYAL WREATH.

"REGARD AND HIGH ESTEEM."

LONDON, Aug. 27.

The wreath sent by the King and Queen in connection with the late General Booth measured 4ft in diameter, and it was placed at the head of the coffin at Clapton.

The wreath consisted of arum lilies, orchids, and lilies of the valley, with a purple bow ornamented by sprays of palm, and was inscribed: "A mark of regard and high esteem."

A wreath was also sent by the United States Ambassador.

THE NEW CHINA.

AMALGAMATION OF PARTIES.

NATIONALIST PARTY FORMED.

PEKING, Aug. 26.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen has inaugurated the amalgamation of Tung Ming Hui and four other parties.

The new party will be called Kuo Ming Teng, or Nationalists. It comprises two-thirds of the Advisory Council, who are pledged to the policy of absolute party Government, and have adopted Dr. Sun Yat Sen's proposal to construct a network of railways within the next ten years.

WOMEN'S FASHIONS.

CLERGYMAN'S DENUNCIATION.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 26.

The Rev. G. Morill, in his sermons, has denounced women's fashions in such a manner that his church is crowded every Sunday. He shows slides for the purpose of endeavouring to prove that the styles at present in vogue are immodest. He says that the original skirt was a fig leaf in the Garden of Eden, and that apparently women to-day are returning to a somewhat similar fashion in Minneapolis.

Society women have vigorously retorted to the pastor's strictures, and have told him in effect that the Church is not the place for fashion lectures.

UNKNOWN LABRADOR.

COUNTRY OF SURPASSING BEAUTY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.

Advices have been received from the exploring expedition in the unknown parts of Labrador, led by Henry Bryant.

The expedition has reached parts of Labrador hitherto untrodden by white men. The interior of a supposed barren and uninhabitable country has been found to be really of surpassing beauty, but unsuited to agriculture.

The Indian carriers deserted after a few days, and the expedition was compelled to return in consequence of an injury to a member of the party.

"WORST IN THE WORLD."

LUMPERS CRITICISED.

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

Last night Captain Hodgens, of the British ship Hilston, offered some very outspoken criticism of the Fremantle lumpers. He declared: "They are the worst in the world. While I want to be strictly fair in everything I am saying about the Fremantle lumpers, I feel that I can, without the slightest reservation, make the statement that they do not accomplish within 50 per cent. of the labour performed by working men in any other portion of the world."

FISHING PARTY'S ADVENTURE.

COFF'S HARBOUR, Tuesday.

While schnapper fishing in a motor-launch a party from Coff's Harbour had an awkward experience. When they were about to start on their homeward journey the engine refused to work, and the launch drifted between Coff's Harbour and the Bellinger Bar. The party made a torch with some old rags, saturated with benzine, and lit it. Captain Allen, who was returning from Nambucca with his tug, saw the light, and brought the party safely to Urunga.

ARNST'S DEFEAT.

THE BETTER MAN WON.

A MAGNIFICENT STRUGGLE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, July 30.

Yesterday Richard Arnst (N.Z.) was beaten on the Thames for the Sculling Championship of the World by his challenger, Ernest Barry. There was no doubt whatever about the beating, and Arnst, good sportsman that he is, offered no excuse or explanation. "I was beaten by a better man," he said afterwards, "and Barry has my hearty good wishes. He is a fine sculler." As a matter of fact, there has never been any doubt in the minds of those who had seen both men, that Barry is much the more finished oar-man, and as it happened, the day was one on which a man whose skill, neatness, and finish had all the advantage. The result of the race makes one doubt very much if Arnst will ever scull for the championship again. He said he will think the matter over during the holiday which he and Mrs. Arnst are taking at Boulogne. Some of his friends and backers appear to take it for granted that Arnst will make an attempt to regain the championship, but what Arnst himself says is that no doubt his friends mean well, but he feels he wants a rest. "I may give up sculling," he said to one of his interviewers, "it is terribly hard work," and, although some do not take him at his word, ones personal opinion is that he means what he says. It is pretty well known that his interests at present lie largely in pigeon shooting, and his ambition is, I know, to pull off the championship at Boulogne and Monte Carlo. To bring himself down from his normal weight to sculling weight, had been a task far bigger than those who have not seen him can well realise. It is enough to depress any man, and one could see that Arnst was depressed by it; and he can well be forgiven if he thinks the game hardly worth the candle. He had to pull down his weight by 30lb in three months by sheer hard work. It was a tremendous job, and I doubt if Arnst was ever confident about the result. Mr. Guy Nickalls, the famous Oxford "blue," and others who saw Arnst on the Zambesi, all appear to believe that the suddenness which he had to reduce his weight has been too great a strain.

DETERIORATED FORM.

I do not think there were any good judges who saw him start yesterday, who thought he was up to the form he showed on the Zambesi in point of strength, and as for oarsmanship, the water which he ran into was such as to put any man's skill to the most searching test, where Barry passed Arnst; but it seemed such another day as that on which the boat in the Cambridge and the Oxford race sank last April. Several of us had intended watching the race from Hammersmith Bridge; we crossed the bridge, but seeing the white horses and rollers tumbling down Chiswick just above, we went to that point instead. It was clear that if anything happened either of the boats it would be at that point in the course. The river there takes a sweep to the south, and the wind was blowing down, full against the tide. However, the race was rowed only a little before high water, and as the tide slackened the water became somewhat smooth. Still it was a problem what would happen to the boats when they reached this stretch. The time when they were due had long since passed, and yet there was no sign of the boats. It turned out afterwards that Barry had come out on time, but Arnst, who had won the toss, had put back twice to have his oars attended to, as he found them soapy. This delayed the start for 10 minutes, during which time Barry was waiting in the rain, with a sweater thrown over his shoulders. Arnst was not, however, to be blamed for this delay, and Barry made no fuss about it. Arnst chose the southern side, where the shore protected him for the first half of the course. A start was made at once by mutual consent, and eight minutes later there was a stir in the crowd at the beginning of Chiswick Reach, and the boats shot into our view under Hammersmith Bridge.

THE RACE.

Arnst had led from the start, and had drawn clear in the first half-mile. At the mile he had led by one and a half lengths, and a little further on he had actually been two lengths ahead. But at this point Barry spurted, and Arnst found that he could not shake him off. He said afterwards, "Although I had not had a really hard race to Hammersmith, I found I could not increase my pace as I anticipated." It was just at this point, when Arnst was leading by about half a length, the boats plunged into the rough water in Chiswick Reach.

As the two shells went into it they looked like cruisers going head on into a heavy sea, cutting through the water, pitching and plunging from wave to wave in a manner one had never imagined possible for racing skiffs. Although Arnst was leading, the difference between his work and Barry's was most marked. The heavier man's boat rolled considerably, whereas the waves seemed to make little difference to Barry's style. He was sculling lightly and neatly. Although to those Australians who had seen Arnst defeat Pearce, it seemed even here, that the champion must be rowing well within himself. It was clear that Barry was wonderfully undisturbed, and uncomfortable doubts as to the result began to make themselves felt.

Doubts were soon over. A little above this the river takes a turn, and here, for the first time in the race, Barry was able to run into smooth water before his opponent. Barry's pace at once showed. Whilst Arnst was still floundering in the sea, Barry shot ahead, and Arnst, when he followed him into the smooth water, was too far behind to make victory possible. By a really splendid spurt he managed to get within two lengths of Barry, and then stop, completely rowed out. Just short of the winning point Barry rowed fast, and then dropped over his oars and hid his face in his hands. A little later Arnst paddled up to him and shook him heartily by the arm. Barry was right when he said afterwards, "I met a thorough good sportsman in Arnst, and I shall never forget his magnificent spurt near the finish."

Both men were steered by their trainers, who followed them in the bow seats of two nine-oared boats, which were rowed for the occasion by seven men.

NEW FERRY WHARFS.

REARRANGEMENT AT CIRCULAR QUAY

At the end of this week a start will be made to demolish the wharf on the south-western corner of the Quay, which has been in the occupation of the E. and A. Company. Only one more oversea vessel is to be allowed to berth there.

As soon as the wharf is clear of oversea traffic, the work of enlarging the ferry accommodation will be undertaken. The sheds on the E. and A. Wharf are to be demolished, and new ferry wharfs, pontoons, and buildings similar to those already erected at the Quay will take their place as speedily as possible.

It is expected that in a month or two the Lane Cove Ferry traffic will be removed to the new wharfs, and those at present occupied by this service, will be used by the Parramatta River boats, and the present Parramatta wharf will be handed to the Lavender Bay boats.

It is anticipated the whole of the remodelling work of the ferry service will be completed in time for the Christmas traffic.

A WAIHI ENGINEER.

VINDICTIVE UNIONISTS.

AUCKLAND (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Owing to a member of the Enginedrivers' Union at Waihi, which the Federation of Labour refuses to recognise, being taken on at the Talisman mine, at Karangahake, the whole of the miners came out on strike. To-day, the man, finding he was the unwilling cause of trouble, at once left the district, whereupon the strikers declared to resume work.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

STATIONS IN OPERATION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

On Saturday the Acting Postmaster-General, Senator Findley, received a telegram from the expert (Mr. Balsillie) saying that the Brisbane wireless station will commence commercial operations on September 20.

MR. WILLIS.

MASTER OF MINISTERS AND WAITERS.

DELICATE POSITION.

The subject of the Speaker's powers in respect of the officers of the House has been under consideration by the Government, and the outcome is that Mr. Willis is to have the power of life and death, so to speak, over the waiters, messengers, and minor officers of the Assembly.

An Executive minute was passed yesterday placing the officers named under the supreme control of the Speaker in the Assembly, and under the supreme control of the President (Sir Francis Suttor) in the Council.

The opinion of the Attorney-General and the Minister for Justice, who inquired into the Speaker's powers, is understood to have been pretty definite in regard to the matter now placed beyond question by Executive minute.

The other question at issue—what powers the Speaker has over the "Hansard" staff, the clerks, and other officers—is at present the subject of a conference between the Speaker, the President, and the Government. Developments will be awaited with interest.

Mr. Willis does not look very kindly upon the waiters, and they will not derive much comfort from the announcement that he is to be their supreme lord. Recently speaking of the waiters in the House, the Speaker said: "They are thoroughly demoralised. They do not recognise my authority. I am frequently submitted to impudence, and my authority is always ignored."

SPEAKER SUPREME.

The Executive minute blunts the shaft of the Refreshment Room Committee about to be discharged at the Speaker, and incidentally relieves Mr. Morrish, who is a member of it and also connected with the Waiters' Union, of a rather awkward dilemma. The Refreshment Room Committee passed a resolution calling upon the Speaker to appear before it and substantiate his charges against the waiters. Mr. Willis can now with truth reply: "You have no right to question my actions; I am supreme."

The present political outlook shows the Government at a disadvantage. It was thought that no difficulty would be experienced in getting a pair for Mr. Neilsen upon his departure for America. The Nielsen affair was secret and sudden. Up till last night no pair had been secured.

Mr. Briner (secretary of the Independent party) said that if the Government wanted a pair it would have to get it from the direct Opposition; and Mr. Nobbs (whip of the Liberal party) declared that the Liberals had not given the Government a pair, and were unlikely to.

The strength of the parties with Mr. Nielsen away is:—Labour, 45; Liberals and Independents, 43. The Speaker makes up the full strength of the House. Two is therefore the majority of the Government while Mr. Willis remains in the Chair. Should he through any disagreement step down from the Chair, and join the Independents, the Government, after providing a Speaker from its own side, would be without a majority.

Outstanding among the features of the situation is the immense advantage gained by Mr. Willis. The Government can no longer talk big to the Speaker. At any time until a pair be obtained Mr. Willis has the option of wrecking the Government.

As the question of the control of the other officers of the House has yet to be decided, and something definite has also to be done about Mr. Willis's estimates, there may be interesting developments. On the face of things, it looks like a win all along the line for Mr. Willis.

THE POLICE COURTS.

NEW ARRANGEMENTS.

PRACTICALLY ONE CITY COURT.

The business of the Metropolitan Police Courts is to be carried out from Monday next on an entirely new plan.

This will apply more particularly to the Central and Water Courts, but some of the suburban courts will also be affected.

There appears to be a tendency on the part of the authorities to have only one city court, instead of two, and the first move in this direction is based on the new order of procedure.

The magistrates' roster at the present time provides that Mr. Payten shall have charge of the Summons Division at the Water Police Court, in addition to presiding at the Paddington and Kogarah Courts. Mr. Barnett is the presiding magistrate at the Summons Division of the Central, and he is also in charge of the Glebe.

Under the new arrangement all magistrates will be placed on equal footing, so far as the division of work in concerned, and they will take their turn at the several courts as was formerly the custom. The work at the Central is to be enlarged. A summons and two charge Courts are to sit each day. At the present time all summons cases coming from that part of the city north of Park-street, go to the Water Police Court, and all offences, constituting charge cases, which occured north of King-street, also go to this Court. But from Monday next all city cases, summonses or charges, which occur south of Hunter-street, will be dealt with at the Central Police Court, leaving only shipping cases and the arrests made within No. 4 police district to be dealt with at the Water Court. The Water Summons and Charge Courts are to be converted into one court, which will meet daily, and as soon as the magistrate has finished the business of the Court, which is expected to be very light, he is to proceed to the Central Court, and open the second Charge Court, in that building. On Tuesdays, however, there is to be only one Charge Court sitting at the Central Police Court, as the other charge room will be required for the Small Debts Division.

In order to assist the stipendiary magistrates, the chamber magistrate at the Central will sit each morning at 9.15, and dispose of persons charged with simple cases of drunkenness, so that when the stipendiary magistrate takes his seat on the Bench at 10 o'clock, he will be able to proceed without delay with the more important cases. All traffic cases, no matter in what part of the city the offence occurs, will in future be dealt with at the Central Court, and it is the intention, it is believed, to send all cases in which the Crown Law Office is concerned on to the Central Court, irrespective of where the offence was committed.

AGED 105.

CLOSE OF A STRENUOUS CAREER.

CARCOAR, Tuesday.

There died on the 21st inst at Tea Tree Springs, near Lyndhurst, one of the oldest residents of this district, and probably the oldest man in the State, in the person of Owen Drady, at the age of 105 years and 5 months. Drady retained all his faculties to the last, his sight failing him only just before he died. He was born in the city of Cork on March 12, 1806. He came to New South Wales in 1832 in the Clyde, and shortly afterwards settled at Grubbenbung. At that time there was no post-office at Carcoar, and Drady used to walk to Bathurst each week for the mail, a distance of 40 miles, returning the following day. Prior to coming to Australia he was with General de Lacy Evans in the Spanish expedition, and belonged to the 10th Regiment of foot, nicknamed the "Holy Boys," and commanded by Colonel O'Connell.

PICTURE SHOW TURN.

ITALIAN SUSCEPTIBILITIES OFFENDED

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

Jules Garrison, a performer at a picture entertainment, has incurred the extreme displeasure of the Italian residents of Fremantle. It appears that last week Garrison put on a sketch in which he used the term "dirty dago." This offended the susceptibilities of the Italian fishermen, and they appealed to the management. A meeting was held, and a large number attended the Saturday evening performance with the avowed object of creating trouble. The management, however, decided to delete the piece objected to, and trouble was averted.

A HUGE COMPANY.

ANTHONY HORDERN AND SONS.

CAPITAL OF £2,500,000.

The business of Anthony Hordern and Sons has been formed into a limited company, its creation being rendered convenient for family considerations, as well as owing to the expansion of its operations. It is not a sale in the ordinary sense—that is to say, there is practically no change of proprietors, the present principals holding the great majority of the shares, the participation of others being confined to a few of the managers and professional advisers of the firm.

The company will acquire and take over as a going concern, as from August 31, 1912, the business of universal providers carried on at Sydney, London, and elsewhere, under the name of Anthony Hordern and Sons.

The capital is £2,500,000, and the signatories to the memorandum and articles of association are Messrs. Samuel Hordern, Anthony Hordern, Lebbeus Hordern, J. Felix Booth, R. S. Gillett, J. H. Harris, Thos. Read, and Vero Read, all of Sydney, the first six constituting the board. Mr. Samuel Hordern will be the governing director of the company.

The office of the company is registered at Sydney, the solicitors being Messrs. Read and Read, Castlereagh House, city.

RISE OF A GREAT FIRM.

The original Anthony Hordern, founder of the firm, and great grandfather of Mr. Samuel Hordern, the present manager and proprietor, came to Australia with his wife and family in 1821. He started in business in a modest way in King-street in 1831. About 10 years later the business was transferred to George-street North, and then, in 1856, it was firmly established in the Haymarket, in the building now occupied by Messrs. Nicholson and Co. The second Anthony Hordern, son of the founder, carried on the business, and in turn passed it on to his sons, Samuel and Anthony. Under the brothers' management the firm grew, and the adjacent buildings in the Haymarket were taken up by the firm. On the death of Mr. Anthony Hordern in 1886, the complete control of the business devolved upon Mr. Samuel Hordern, and from then on its growth was phenomenal. The Palace Emporium at the Haymarket was built, and the business grew to be the largest of its kind south of the line. The last change in the location of the business was in September 11, 1905, when the New Palace Emporium was opened on Brickfield Hill. Mr. Samuel Hordern continued sole proprietor of the business until his death in August, 1909.

From then his son, Mr. Samuel Hordern, has managed the business, which has steadily grown, until to-day it has outgrown even the vast store space on Brickfield-hill. A tender for £50,000 has been accepted for the building of another story on the Emporium, and the raising of the tower an additional 40ft. This will provide an additional three and a half-acres of floor space, making the shop area about 19 acres. The new firm will acquire the whole of the present business, with the freehold of all the buildings, and so become the perpetual owners of their own premises. There will be only 20 shareholders in the new company.

SECRETARY'S FEES.

ROWDY TRAMWAY MEETINGS.

OFFICERS RESIGN.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Further disorderliness occurred at the adjourned meetings of the members of the Victorian branch of the Australian Tramways Employees' Association to-day. Morning and evening meetings were held at the Guild Hall, Swanston-street, for the convenience of men working on the different shifts. The business was to consider the report and balance-sheet of Mr. Walter J. Andersen, the professional accountant, who had made a special investigation into the financial position of the association. Mr. Anderson's statement alleged a debit of £230 0s 10d against the late secretary, Mr. G. L. Prendergast. It was shown that Mr. Prendergast had paid himself £153 6s for services in conducting the case of the association in the Arbitration Court, until he was relieved by the general secretary (Mr. A. C. Warton). Of this amount £113 was disallowed. It was set forth in the balance-sheet that Mr. Prendergast had overcharged the association £93 7s for Arbitration Court attendances.

The discussion resembled that which took place a week ago, and eventually it was decided: "That the executive of the Trades Hall Council be requested to go into the whole matter of the balance-sheet with the auditor, Mr. W. J. Anderson, and report with its recommendation to the general body of the members in the interests of clean unionism." It was also agreed that the officers and members of the managing committee should resign, as they had forfeited the confidence of the members. Two members of the committee then submitted their resignations as officers.

SHORTAGE OF HOUSES.

RAISING THE RENTS.

A constituent has written to Mr. T. S. Crawford, M.L.A. (Marrickville), to the effect that 15 months ago he took a house at 11s per week. The rent has been increased steadily every few months, until it is now 20s a week. Not a penny has been spent on the place during the tenancy. Now the owner is about to kalsomine one of the rooms, and the agent has informed the tenant that the rent is likely to be 25s upon its completion. The constituent states that no other houses are available.

"Will the Government push on with the building of houses at Daceyville?" asked Mr. Crawford in the Legislative Assembly yesterday, "and will a bill be brought in to deal with the abnormal rise in the rents of dwelling-houses? Decent people who have always paid their rent have been served with notices to quit unless they are prepared to pay exorbitant increases."

"We are pushing on with buildings at Daceyville as fast as we can get material. If I could get more material it would be a question of putting on more men," said the Treasurer in reply. Notice in regard to the second part of the question was requested.

"Is it a fact that the Housing Board has called for competitive designs for cottages at Daceyville?" asked Mr. Cohen.

"Yes, it is a fact," said the Treasurer (Mr. Cann).

"That's the way you are hurrying," retorted Mr. Cohen.

KILLED IN A PIT.

MINER'S FATAL MISTAKE.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Harry Whiting, aged 33 years, a married man, living in Lindsay-street, Hamilton, and employed as a miner at Sea Pit colliery, met his death at that pit to-day owing to the unexpected explosion of a charge. Deceased was working in a stone drive, together with Isaac Davis. They charged two shots, and each lit one. Deceased informed Davis that he did not think his shot had struck. Davis replied, "Well, we had better get out of this." Both men retired from the drive, and waited until the shot lit by Davis went off. Deceased then said he would go back and light the other one. About 10 or 15 seconds later the second shot exploded. Deceased was evidently endeavouring to relight the fuse when the shot went off. He was found lying on his face, with his head terribly shattered. Death had apparently been instantaneous. Deceased was well known in mining circles, having at one time been a member of the delegate board for the Colliery Employees' Federation for several years.

SPLENDID GOLD YIELD.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The steamer Matunga, which arrived from Papua this morning, brought news of a large gold yield at Keravukum, Woodlark Island. The owner is a Mr. Melish, who is travelling overland to Sydney. It was stated that from 197 tons of quartz 1049oz of gold were obtained. At two previous crushings over 600oz on both occasions had been obtained from the same mine.

WHALING.

N.S.W. COASTLINE TO BE TESTED.

LARGE INDUSTRY POSSIBLE.

An effort is to be made—before proceeding to the Southern seas, as originally intended—to establish the Norwegian whaling industry, at either Jervis Bay or some other outport along the New South Wales coast. This, however, will be subject to there being no objection on the part of the Government.

The Norwegian Consul, Mr. Olav E. Pauss, made this statement on Monday afternoon, on board the whaling factory steamer Loch Tay, on the occasion of his invitation to representative men to inspect this vessel, in conjunction with the whaling gunboat Sorrel. The party included Mr. S. Mills, Collector of Customs; Mr. D. G. Stead, of the Fisheries Department; Mr. W. W. Froggatt, Government entomologist; Mr. G. W. Williams, of the Explosives Department; and others. Captain H. H. Egeness showed the visitors all over the vessels and explained their appliances, after which Mr. Stead proposed success to the company, expressing the opinion that it would be possible to find profitable employment off the Australian coast. Other speakers supported the toast.

Mr. Olav E. Pauss, in responding, concurred in what Mr. Stead had said, and hoped that an opportunity would be afforded for testing this coast. Application had, he said, been made for an area in Jervis Bay, but the operations need not necessarily be confined to that spot. The establishment of the industry should, in his opinion, only go to the Southern Seas if found unprofitable on our coastline. The operations would mean a great deal to the State. Apart from the oil extraction, there would be subsidiary products, which would be most useful for the tanning industry, as food for cattle, or as a fertilizer for the soil. This material would be available at first cost price. The class of whales to be sought would not be those of the primitive kind, such as were driven in by the killers to Twofold Bay, Eden, but would be of a larger description, averaging from 90 to 100 feet long, which travelled usually from 10 to 20 miles away from the shore. If these whales were captured as they migrated from the southern to the northern seas, or vice versa, it would assure the factory being established in Australian waters. This would mean a great deal to New South Wales. He mentioned that the Loch Tay carried a staff of 90 men, while each of the three whaling boats had 10, making in all 120, and he predicted that it was reasonable to suppose that in course of time these men would form themselves into small co-operative bodies, to work the industry suitable to local conditions.

Mr. Morton, M.L.A., will be interviewed today by Captain Egeness on the question of the establishment of the industry.

COUNSEL'S DIGNITY.

MR. LOXTON WITHDRAWS FROM COURT.

F. D. BROWN BANKRUPTCY.

The examination of Frank Denison Brown, late general manager of the Singer Sewing Machine Company in Australasia, whose estate was sequestrated on July 5, was resumed yesterday before the Registrar in Bankruptcy, Mr. Salusbury.

Mr. Loxton K.C., and Mr. Wilfred Blacket, instructed by Mr. Arthur Aitken, appeared for the Singer Company, a proved creditor, and Mr. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. Manning, instructed by Messrs. W. R. and F. B. Jones, for the bankrupt.

The bankrupt, in his evidence, said his speculation in a stud farm at Kiandra would have been successful if he had been allowed to realise on the stock in the ordinary way. It was untrue that he had sold the same horses twice to the Singer Company, excepting in those cases where the animals sold had proved unsuitable, and they were exchanged, and then the animal that had been turned down, having changed in disposition, was brought into use again. His own horses were kept at Kiandra, Randwick, and Mount Horeb. Those at Randwick were occasionally used by the Singer Company without charge. At some parts of the year there might be as many as 15 horses at the Randwick stables. The general average was ten. Sometimes he paid for the forage—sometimes the company. There might be entries in the books showing that in 1911 the company paid £507 for forage for Randwick, and in the following year £625. But the company's horses were also housed there.

Mr. Loxton: You wrote a sentence in one letter from India in which you referred to "a big job" in which you would "make a name for yourself." You said yesterday that this referred to the business of the company. Now did this not refer to the horse speculation you had in view in that country?—No, emphatically, no, said the witness.

Now did you not write to Mr. M. D. Russell fully, referring to this horse project?—I did write to Mr. Russell regarding the purchase of ponies in Wales, while I was in India.

Mr. Loxton read an extract from the letter but Mr. Gannon objected, as the original was not produced.

Continuing, the witness said he supplied certain information to Russell, and offered him a salary to take certain horses of his to India to sell. If the project had succeeded he was prepared to give him a partnership in the trade.

The Registrar asked for the production of the letter to which reference had been made.

Mr. Loxton declined at first to hand up the copy till he considered the matter, but later on agreed to produce it.

The Registrar declined to accept the brief copy. He asked whether the original was not available. He saw a set of papers handed to the counsel, and he saw one letter which he concluded was the one in question. He now asked counsel to inquire from his junior counsel for that document, and, if he knew nothing of it, that the request be passed on to the solicitor instructing.

Mr. Loxton said there was no such document, as far as he was aware.

The Registrar: I distinctly saw one I took to be it.

Mr. Loxton rose heatedly. He objected as a King's Counsel to be charged in effect with making a statement that was deliberately untrue. Such a thing was unheard of in the Courts. He had never seen the original. "I now call upon you, sir," he said, "to apologise to me and to the Bar generally for the insult offered."

The Registrar said he saw a letter handed to Mr. Loxton by the junior counsel, and Mr. Loxton had said, in reply at the time, that he wanted the typed copy. He had never said anything that could be construed to mean any aspersion upon Mr. Loxton's conduct of the case. "But as to apologising to you, sir, I must decline. I might have been under a misapprehension. My object in asking that the inquiry be passed along from counsel to solicitor was to have the matter cleared up to see if that original were available. It is important to the case. If that was not the letter which I saw handed round, where has that letter gone? If that is not the letter I thought it was, what is it? Also, what has become of the wanted original? Was it ever in existence? If it is in the Court, then I say distinctly on public grounds it should be produced."

Mr. Loxton rose to speak.

"Will you kindly sit down?" said the Registrar, calmly. "I think I am perfectly entitled to ask for the letter—not merely to request it be produced—but I require it to be produced."

Mr. Blacket explained that the letter the Registrar had seen in cross-examination was not the letter the Registrar thought it was. The copy of the brief was taken from the original, which was brought to the office by Mr. Wickham, from which a copy was made, and then the original was taken away. "The original, I can assure you, Mr. Registrar," he said, "was never in this Court, and the one you thought was that original was another letter."

The Registrar: "That is just where the mistake has arisen, then. I thought it was the letter which appeared in the brief. That is where I fell into the mistake. I thought the original was here, and that there was an attempt made to keep it back."

Mr. Loxton rose angrily, and demanded apology. "It is," he declared, "the first time in the history of New South Wales that a King's Counsel, who has given his word of honour, has been called into question for any statements made in the court. The intimation from the Bench that I should pass on the inquiry as to this letter is unheard of. I ask for an apology, sir."

The Registrar (who remained cool): "Very well. The whole matter is perfectly public. What Mr. Loxton asks me to do I most distinctly decline to accede to."

There was a pause. Mr. Loxton then jumped to his feet and exclaimed, "Then if you decline to apologise, I must withdraw from the case. I return the brief. I feel I cannot, out of respect to the bar, and to my own dignity, continue. I withdraw," and he left the room.

Mr. Blacket took charge, and proceeded with the cross-examination of the witness, which was adjourned till September 2.

CYCLONE.

HAVOC AT GRENFELL.

HOUSES WRECKED.

GRENFELL, Tuesday.

A terrific cyclone, immediately followed by hail and rain, burst upon Grenfell just before 6 last evening.

Sheets of iron and portions of verandahs were flying 50 and 60 feet high. There must be over 1000 sheets of iron in the streets. Over a score of chimneys were broken off or badly thrown down.

A number of houses were completely wrecked. The skating rink lies flat on the ground. Permewan, Wright, and Company's store was blown flat, while Tunney's produce store is a complete wreck. Scores of residences were unroofed, while all the blacksmiths' shops are more or less wrecks.

Black's flour mill suffered very severely, thousand of pounds' worth of flour being exposed to the heavy rain after the cyclone had blown the roof off. The flour will have to be redressed.

The Municipal Council is easily the worst sufferer. The streets are literally cut to pieces. It was not the quantity of rain, but the torrents, while it lasted. It will take over £1000 to repair the damage, and the council has not the means to do this. Fully 100 of the best trees planted in the streets have been blown up by the roots. Some were 25ft and 30ft in height. Grenfell was proud of its street trees, and now all the best have gone. The bigger the tree the surer its fate. The loss of the trees is a shock to the town. Buildings can be rebuilt, but trees take years to grow.

Brick buildings are generally safe, except the roofs and chimneys. Fortunately no lives were lost, although many were injured, but not severely. One man was blown through the plateglass window of a shop and got a shaking. Many women and children fainted. Telephone and telegraph lines suffered, and scores of sheets of iron are now hung on them, like clothes on a line. Big iron tanks were rolling all over the streets, and windows were broken in all directions. Almost every well-grown tree in the park is blown down. The Town Council is asking for some slight assistance from the Government to repair the worst places in the roads. Assistance is being given to the poorer persons affected, but mostly the people affected are not the very poor.

SHORT DURATION.

The cyclone that was experienced in Grenfell on Monday evening only lasted about three to five minutes, but thousands of pounds worth of damage was done, and it is remarkable that no serious personal injury was sustained.

Harry Wood was in Permewan, Wright, and Co.'s office when the building collapsed. He was struck, and for some hours lay unconscious.

Nathan Woodhouse was in his blacksmith shop when the cyclone struck his building. Woodhouse was pinned to the ground and his leg injured.

Jack M'Leod was getting his tea in the kitchen, and went with his wife into another room. Immediately the chimney crashed through the iron roof, then through the lining boards on to the table, at which they had been sitting.

A little child named Barrett was hit with a falling brick on the side of her head, but a few stitches were all that was necessary to relive her.

W. Rothwell, who was blown through W. Mendham's plateglass window, was cut very severely.

The Commercial Bank lost all their verandahs. White and Dwyer's commercial sample rooms were utterly wrecked, and the kitchen of the Church of England residence was blown over the residence. A number of other houses were totally unroofed, while many dams were burst. Probably the greatest loss, however, is the street trees, some of them over two feet in diameter, which were blown down like twigs, more particularly the pepper trees.

Telegraph communication was temporarily made this morning, via Cowra. The lines via Young and Forbes will require two days' work to put them in order. Over 120 telephone subscribers were cut off. The streets are in a terrible state, and it will take thousands of pounds to repair the damage.

The council has been advised that the Government have given a special grant of £200 towards putting the streets in order. The Mayor is, however, taking local subscriptions to help any in distress. The Premier has forwarded his sincere sympathy with the sufferers.

MR. BURGESS ADVISED.

Mr. Burgess, M.L.A., received a private wire yesterday stating that an alarming cyclone had passed over the town, wrecking various structures, unroofing houses, uprooting trees, and doing immense damage in other directions.

The wire added that fortunately there had been no loss of life in spite of the severity of the disturbance.

TO RELIEVE DISTRESS.

GOVERNMENT SENDS £200.

Upon receipt of the wire, advising him of the conditions at Grenfell, Mr. Burgess immediately proceeded to the Chief Secretary's Office and laid the matter before Mr. M'Gowen.

It was represented that a good deal of distress was likely to result from the visitation, and the Premier told Mr. Burgess to wire the town that £200 would be immediately available to relieve any cases of hardship.

OF LOCAL CHARACTER ONLY.

The divisional officer of the Commonwealth Weather Bureau explains that these tornadic squalls are features occasionally associated with weather conditions similar to those which have prevailed during the past few days; that is, the flat barometric readings, together with the close mild atmosphere, were favourable to squalls of local character.

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD.

MR. HANNA APPOINTED.

TRANSFER FROM WORKS DEPARTMENT

"Is it true, as reported, that the Under-Secretary for Public Works (Mr. Hanna) has been retired, and appointed to the Public Service Board," asked Mr. J. Storey (Labour) soon after the Legislative Assembly met yesterday.

The Minister for Works replied—"I desire to say that the Cabinet came to the decision that there was no other man with so wide a knowledge, with so long and honourable a record, in the Public Service, who could fill the position as a member of the Public Service Board. In the interests of the public service, believing he was the most capable man, they offered it to him." (Government cheers.)

"You wanted to get rid of him. Why don't you give the real reason," came from the Opposition benches.

"Is it a fact that while Mr. Hanna was in England the Minister suggested he should retire, on account of increasing years?" asked Mr. Wade. "If that is so, is he a fit person to appoint to the Public Service Board?"

Liberal members cheered this question, and Mr. J. Miller (Independent), facing the Ministerial benches, called out, "You said you would get rid of him some time ago. Now you are rid of him."

FEDERAL RETURNS.

TO BE FURNISHED YEARLY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The question has been asked whether returns must be furnished by taxpayers under the Federal law, who have neither bought nor sold land during the past year, and who adhere to the values stated in their original returns. The Federal Commissioner of Land Tax explains that section 15 of the Act provides that every taxpayer shall, in each financial year, in the prescribed manner, and within the prescribed time, furnish returns showing his ownership of land as at the 30th day of June then last past. There is a proviso in this section "that unless required by the Commissioner, taxpayers may, in lieu of full returns, furnish supplementary returns, showing any variation in ownership or value." There is nothing in the law relieving the taxpayer from the necessity for furnishing the annual return, which must be either the full return or a supplementary.

SIXTH TEST.

AUSTRALIANS MAINTAIN REPUTATION.

ABORTIVE STRUGGLE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

MANCHESTER, July 31.

Although the dismal weather of Manchester has prevented anything like a trustworthy judgment being passed on the merits of the Australian and English teams, still the Australians came away from it satisfied to this extent, that so far the Australian Eleven, in spite of all its critics have said about it, has shown every bit as well in the test matches, both against Africa and England, as the phenomenally strong English Eleven against whom they are pitted.

There is no doubt about the strength of the English Eleven which took the field this week. One is perfectly satisfied—and indeed so were the English papers—that no stronger side could have been chosen. For the first time the team included a fast bowler, Hitch, and Haigh, whom the Australians found so deadly in Yorkshire, was also played. Hayes was left out, but, with such a 12 to choose from, the man left out was bound to be a strong man, whoever he was.

The Manchester wicket was wet, but never sticky; on the second day it was difficult, simply because the top had been knocked off it, and also it was almost impossible for the batsmen to stand up. Indeed, although the crowd was impatient with the long wait to 5 o'clock before play started on the second day, still the wicket was even then scarcely fit to play on.

The Australians only did fairly well to get England out for 203. It seems to be a side composed of excellent first change bowlers—there were six of them, any one good enough to come on as first change in the strongest side ever put in the field, but none quite good enough to "go through" a side as bowlers like Turner or M'Kibbin or Saunders have often done in the past. The one bowler who, as the English newspapers thought might have been dangerous on this wicket, had to retire to the pavilion with a chill—and that was Macartney. Hobbs and Rhodes, who started, could not indulge in their usual pastime of stealing runs, because the ground was so heavy that the field was close in all the time. It was with a score of only 2 on the board that the mistake was made which had considerable effect on the English score. Rhodes cut a ball from Whitty very hard to Hazlitt at point. It rose to about the level of Hazlitt's chest, and he got both hands to it, but it was too hard to hold. It was not a bad miss, but it was an expensive one, because at this time Rhodes had not scored, and he went on to make nearly half the runs of his side. It was one of the best innings Rhodes has ever played, and it is only a few years ago he was played solely for his bowling, and used to be sent in to bat last, and considered pretty bad at that. Although the batting was very slow, and even Rhodes was uncertain at first, still it was always interesting, because every run had to be fought for. Rhodes was beaten when he had made 19 by a break back into his wicket, and two wickets for 38 looked pretty good for the Australians. However, Fry, although he started most painfully, managed to get through 19 before he was caught in the deep-field by M'Laren, who was substitute for Macartney. It was then that Whitty dropped the worst catch of the day, an easy one sent him by Hearne. Woolley and Foster never became settled, indeed Rhodes was the only man who did. He reached 92 by nightfall, but then down came the rain so heavily that no play was possible until 5 o'clock next day. When everyone was hoping that Rhodes would reach his hundred he slipped, and played the ball on to his wicket. All the remaining batsmen, exept Barnes, tried to hit, but were out for an additional 19 runs.

As in the previous test match, England's only chance was to put Australia through twice, and accordingly her best chance was to get two or three good Australian wickets in the 40 minutes remaining, whilst the light was bad and the pitch unplayable. However, Kelleway and Jennings again came to the rescue. Jennings played with great confidence—quite as confidently as Rhodes; watching Kelleway nearly gave one the "blues," but he was there when stumps were drawn. It was interesting to see how Fry managed his bowlers. He did not use Barnes at all, but began with Foster and Haigh. Foster sent down a very short one, which surprised Kelleway, and nearly had him caught. Fry took Foster off after that first over and put on Woolley, who looked really difficult, getting up at times nearly straight off the pitch, and making Kelleway play several risky strokes.

However, by the end of the day Australia was practically safe, whatever happened, and as it turned out no more cricket was possible, the match being abandoned next day through rain.

FISH TRADE.

MUNICIPAL CONTROL.

In the Assembly last night the Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) gave notice of his intention to move for leave to introduce a bill for the municipalisation of the fish trade.

This bill embodies a good many of the recommendations contained in the report of the Royal Commission on Food Supplies.

Under the bill the Sydney Municipal Council will have large powers. It may, if it thinks fit, wipe out all existing private agencies, and establish municipal agencies in their stead.

The whole of the fish trade from the time the fish is landed till it reaches the consumer will be regulated by the council. It may establish depots for receiving and cleaning and packing along the coast, and it may establish agencies in the suburbs.

Hawkers of fish will have to be licensed by the council, and it may insist upon the class of vehicle used by the vendor being of a certain pattern for the preservation of cleanliness. The council may, if it thinks fit, not entrust the sale of fish to hawkers, but cause it to be sold in widespread municipal depots.

The degree of municipalisation rests with the City Council. It may go as fast or as slow as it pleases in the direction of municipal socialism.

"ABSOLUTELY IDIOTIC."

CITY COUNCIL DISCUSSION.

The proposals for giving the City Council such powers as would give it an absolute monopoly of the supply and distribution of fish in the metropolis were discussed by the City Council last night.

Alderman Griffin said that some of the recommendations were altogether too drastic. He strongly disapproved of the proposal that the consignment of fish to private agents for sale in Sydney be no longer permitted.

Alderman Meagher moved that the scheme be referred to the general purposes committee.

Alderman Griffin seconded the motion.

Alderman A. M'Elhone said that some of the recommendations, which were based on the interim report of the Food Supply Commission, were absolutely idiotic. Why should the council attempt to run a monopoly in fish any more than in pigs and ducks?

Alderman A. Kelly said that there was a "stinking fish" party—(laughter)—in the council that was up against all progressive movements.

Alderman English said that there would be no trouble in securing a sufficient supply of fish, if the council got a couple of trawlers. (Laughter.)

Alderman Meagher's motion was carried.

LATE MR. JOHN MACLEAN.

Mr. John Maclean, who died at Braelochaber, Shirley-road, Crow's Nest, North Sydney, on Sunday, was for many years identified with the South Coast district. As a young man, he engaged in farming at Gerringong, and in the early seventies entered upon journalistic work, joining the "Kiama Independent." In 1878 he established the "Shoalhaven Telegraph" at Nowra, and conducted it until about 12 years ago, when he removed to Sydney. He was subsequently in the N.S.W. Taxation Department, where he remained until the introduction of local government. During his residence in Nowra, Mr. Maclean took a prominent part in municipal matters, and for a time occupied the mayoral chair. He leaves a widow and several children.

DEATH OF MRS. ISAACS.

Mrs. Rebecca Isaacs, mother of Mr. Justice Isaacs, died at her residence, Auburn, Victoria, yesterday. She was in her 90th year.

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Speaker took the Chair at 3 p.m.

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

Mr. Matthews (Vic.) asked the Minister for Customs whether, in view of the chronic discontent and the dissatisfaction exhibited in the sugar districts, he would abolish the excise duty and bounty, so as to allow the industry to continue unaided and uninterfered with by the Federal Government.

The Minister for Customs replied that this would require an amendment of the Act, which he was not in favour of at the present time.

DRILLING THE CADETS.

Mr. Howe (N.S.W.) asked the Minister representing the Minister for Defence if he was aware that some area officers had no fixed dates for the training of youths, as a result of which cadets were subjected to great inconvenience.

The hon. Minister, Mr. Roberts, said that he was not aware of any area officer having failed to give notice of parades. Instructions had been issued that parade lists were to be compiled for at least three months, and notice of these given to the lads and others interested.

THE SUGAR BOUNTY.

In answer to Mr. Higgs (Q.), the Minister for Customs said he was not aware of any intention on the part of the Government to increase the import duty or bounty on sugar. The Government had no constitutional power to compel mill-owners and refiners to pay an increased price for white-grown sugar.

UNIVERSAL TRAINING.

Mr. Higgs inquired whether the Government would take into consideration the question of amending the Defence Act so as to exempt from compulsory drill those boys whose parents had conscious scruples, such as those displayed by the Society of Friends, against their sons being trained.

The hon. Minister (Mr. Roberts): Earnest consideration has been given to the matter. If action were taken as suggested it would be a reversal practically to the voluntary system, which has been found inadequate.

NAVAL BASES.

Replying to Sir John Forrest (W.A.) the hon. Minister Mr. Roberts said that as Port Stephens (N.S.W.) £15,000 would be spent on surveys, boring, and engineering work in connection with the naval base. The sum of £60,000, the balance of the amount of £75,000 on the Estimates, was required to meet progress payments, dredging, and dredging plants generally.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.) inquired of the Prime Minister whether any decision had been arrived at regarding the payment of interest on the value of the property known as the Governor-General's residence, Sydney; if it was not a fact that the property was the gift of the Imperial Government to the people of New South Wales for Government House purposes; if the Government was being asked by Victoria for interest on the Federal Government House, Melbourne; and whether the Government, if required, proposed to pay interest to Victoria on the value of Melbourne Parliament House, now being used for Federal purposes?

The Prime Minister: A communication from the Federal Government is now in the hands of the Government of New South Wales. I am not aware of the conditions under which New South Wales acquired the property. It is not the intention of the Government to pay interest to Victoria on the value of Federal Parliament House.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY. SLEEPERS.

Mr. Bruce Smith was informed by the Minister for Home Affairs that both karri and jarrah timbers were to be used for sleepers on the transcontinental line. The preservative treatment applied to these woods in Western Australia had established their resistant qualities to white ants and fungus diseases. Arrangements had been made to have portion of the karri sleepers subjected to the treatment.

THE BUDGET.

The debate on the Budget was resumed.

Mr. Sampson (Vic.) said that Mr. Scullin should not have been put up to reply to Mr. Deakin's speech. A sane, responsible Minister should have told the House whether the Government was opposed to the imposition of revenue duties. The position taken up by the Government was that it would not give protection until the people gave it power to introduce the new protection. That amounted to flying in the face of the mandate of the people, who had turned down the Government industrial proposals at the referendum. The Government had been in power for over two years, but had done nothing towards taking over the State debts.

Mr. Irvine (Vic.) said the power given by section 105 of the Constitution enabled the Commonwealth to take over the State debts, but the States were responsible for the interest, the Commonwealth merely becoming brokers for them. If that was the case, the Commonwealth had little or no interest in the matter. However, the Commonwealth, if it was to progress, must become a large borrower. Then it was important to them to know how they could establish themselves satisfactorily on the London money market. He was not one of those who thought the Commonwealth could borrow better than the States at present. He had come to the conclusion that the Commonwealth could not get better terms than New South Wales, if she went on the market. The security of the States depended on the law of supply and demand. If a consolidated amount of stock was established, it would give the Commonwealth a better position on the money market, and enable her to get slightly better terms. Canada had found that out. The Constitution did not suggest that the taking over of the debts should restrict the borrowing by States. He would leave the States free to borrow what they wanted. If the Commonwealth succeeded in getting consolidated stock it would be in such a position as would force the States to borrow through it.

Mr. Smith (Tas.): Why not force the States to come in from the start?

Mr. Irvine: Why should they be forced in? He found a difficulty in properly analysing the Budget, by reason of the involved state in which the figures were placed before them. If a man came to Australia who had not been here for 12 or 15 years he would say, "Surely these are a people to whom history teaches no lessons." The Government was not acting honestly as the stewards of public affairs. He would warn members against Yankee methods in administration. When a Government gave employment as rewards to those who put them in office they were introducing new and sinister methods. The trades unions openly acknowledged the fact that they came together to make demands in connection with their employment. They had gone beyond that, and succeeded in putting a Government in power which was tied down to them. If there was any doubt about the question before, it was settled now by the Government saying to officers that preference should be given to unionists.

MATERNITY BONUS.

Dealing with the maternity bonus, he said that it was claimed by the Labour party that it was not a political move. There was no member of the House that would deny that the conditions of the mother would not be improved by the receipt of £5; but there were many conditions that would want improving more than those connected with childbirth. He was inclined to think that funeral expenses would come harder upon a family than a birth.

Mr. West: The difference is this—when you die someone will bury you, or you will become offensive. (Laughter.)

Mr. Irvine: The problem that was demanding much thought in many countries was how to help people who can't help themselves, and thus preserve that individual independence which was a strength to the race. Were all hardships to be met by doling out allowances?

Mr. Riley: Yes, as long as the present system exists.

Mr. Irvine: The Post Office was being carried on with a remarkable degree of slackness. In the two years, 1909-10, 1910-11, the increase in the revenue was 12.9 per cent., while the increase in salaries was 24.5 per cent. In the coming year the revenue was expected to increase 24 per cent. above 1909-10, while the salaries were expected to increase 38.3 per cent. No reason had been given for this tremendous increase.

Mr. L. Smith: They are paying a living wage.

STATE SOCIALISM.

Mr. Irvine: The people of the country were entitled to more explanation than a few platitudes. The end and object of the Government was State socialism, and they knew the more men they put on the nearer they got to that condition of affairs when all should be Civil servants. Not one of the party could deny that their object was State socialism. The Labour party was faced with the obligation to show that they had done something towards State socialism. He warned the Government that the Northern Territory could not be settled solely by putting a large staff of officials there. What was being done by Australia in the way of naval defence was insufficient. He was sure that the people of Great Britain were looking towards Australia and Canada for help in defending the Empire. The supremacy of Great Britain depended on the fleet. They must not shut their eyes to the fact that if Great Britain was reduced in sea power the position of Australia would be precarious. A gradual hustling progress would be started by other Powers, and in the course of half a generation the people of Australia would be holding their own in largely populated portions man for man. The people of Australia had a greater interest in the commerce of the sea than did the people of Great Britain.

The Minister for External Affairs: Do you think we are not spending enough this year?

Mr. Irvine: Not half enough—not a third enough. The Commonwealth ought to join with Canada and New Zealand, and show that she was ready to help to defend the Empire. The pressing national importance of the defence of the Empire ought to make them husband their resources. If they were ever going to meet the pressing defence necessities of Australia they should observe economy.

Mr. Groom (Q.) said that the Ministry seemed to be piling up expenditure, without any regard to the future. It had to be remembered that in this time of prosperity the people were taxed right up to the hilt—as high as any prosperous nation.

Mr. West (N.S.W.) claimed that the increased expenditure in connection with the Post-office was justified. The increase of facilities in the country districts carried out by the Government must mean increase in expenditure.

Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.) said that the Chamber had ceased to be a deliberative body. Things were crystallised and fixed up outside, and Ministerialists knew just how they had to vote. No heed was to be given to what the future might hold—it was the policy of the spendthrift. The Government was guilty of vindictive taxation and reckless expenditure. The land tax was not forgotten—it was lying like a piece of lead on the chest of the people. Referring to naval defence, he said that if the big ships of Australia were never going to leave Australia to help the fleet of Great Britain he would oppose the building of the unit.

ADJOURNMENT.

The debate was adjourned at 10.40 p.m. till to-morrow.

MILLIONAIRE FIREMEN.

CHICAGO GOLF CLUB.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.

Three millionaires acted successfully as firemen in suppressing an outbreak of fire which partially destroyed the palatial clubhouse of the Chicago Golf Club.

Ex-Judge Payne, and Messrs. Evans and Sawyer climbed on to the roof, where they cut a hole, and were able to deluge the interior with water.

After the fire had been extinguished, the millionaires subscribed £10,000 in order to rebuild the clubhouse at once.

FIGHTING IN TIMOR.

REBEL STRONGHOLD STORMED.

LISBON, Aug. 26.

The Governor of Timor, with a small force consisting of infantry and bluejackets, stormed the rebels' stronghold, which they captured at the point of the bayonet, after ten hours' fighting.

The Portuguese losses were insignificant.

LONG-DISTANCE WIRELESS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.

Long-distance wireless plant is now in operation between the Mare Island navy yard and the station just completed at Pribyloff, Alaska, a distance of 3100 miles. The service is perfect.

HYDRO-AEROPLANE RACE.

PARIS, Aug. 27.

In the hydro-aeroplane race from Saint Malo to Jersey (some 15 miles from the west coast of France) and back four of the competitors finished.

Several of the machines fell into the sea.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

LONDON, Aug. 27.

Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has paid a visit to Immingham, near Grimsby, with a view to investigating its suitability for a naval base.

Dr. George Morrison has been married in London to Miss Jeanne Robin, of New Zealand.

The Board of Trade has directed the attention of shipmasters to the fact that it is a misdemeanour not to proceed to the relief of a vessel in distress in a case where it is possible to do so.

The fund for the relief of the family of Mr. Lindsay Campbell, the Australian airman, who was killed recently while making a flight, amounts to £50. A further appeal is being made.

The trustees of the Felton Bequest have purchased Wilfred von Glehn's picture "New England" for £250.

The death is announced of Dr. Andrew Wilson.

[Dr. Andrew Wilson, who was 52 years of age, was lecturer on physiology and health to the George Combe Trust and Gilchrist Trust lecturer. Educated at the Dollar Institute, Edinburgh Royal High School, and Edinburgh University, he was appointed lecturer on zoology and comparative anatomy at the Edinburgh Medical School when only 24 years of age. He was formerly the editor of "Health," and published many works on health science, as well as zoology, evolution, and natural history. He was an extensive contributor to magazine literature and to the "Illustrated London News," "Lloyd's Weekly," and "Science Jottings."]

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.

Freddie Welsh, ex-lightweight champion of Britain, has been matched to fight 12 rounds with Ray Temple, of Milwaukee.

MR. HOLMAN AS AGENT-GENERAL.

A REPORT CONTRADICTED.

"In view of the suggested retirement of the Agent-General, and the appointment of the Attorney-General to the position, will the Premier lay on the table of the House copies of all papers, not confidential, which have passed between London and the Premier's Office?" asked Mr. Price (Liberal) in the Legislative Assembly yesterday.

"I want to give the suggestion in that question an emphatic denial," declared the Premier. "Those statements are absolutely without any foundation. No communication of any kind has gone to the Agent-General in the direction suggested." Supporters of the Government greeted the statement with cheers.

"CHILD CONSCRIPTION."

STRONG CONDEMNATION.

"A rally for freedom" was the theme of a meeting held at the Congregational Hall, Woollahra, on Monday night. Rev. F. B. Cowling presided.

The chairman said the object of the gathering was to protest against the compulsory clauses of the Military Defence Act. As the law now stood, a boy had to attend these parades, no matter whether he or his father objected. He hoped that, by the extension of this movement, pressure would be brought to bear on the Federal Government to amend the Act.

Mr. Firth, representing the Australian Freedom League, explained the principles of the organisation.

Lt.-Col. Onslow, M.L.A., claimed that the compulsory system was objectionable. The people of Australia had never been consulted in the matter. It was cowardly for the Government to pass by the young men of 20, and make compulsion apply to boys. The Act was one of unparalleled political hypocrisy. (Cheers.)

Rev. A. Rivett regarded the compulsory clause as un-British and undemocratic.

Mr. Varney Parkes, M.L.A., condemned the system upon economic grounds.

Mr. Hedsober moved that the system of compulsory training was an outrage on the principles of British freedom. The motion was carried with acclamation.

E. M. Evans, of [illegible], writes, pointing out the danger through children returning to school too soon after [illegible], and thereby spreading disease, especially measles. The present school inspection was inadequate in this respect.

GAS DEPUTATION.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

"NOT A LEG TO STAND ON."

The Minister for Education (Mr. Carmichael) yesterday made available the official shorthand notes of the Stock Exchange deputation which recently waited upon him regarding the Gas Bill now before Parliament.

Messrs. Davis and Mullins comprised the deputation.

At the outset it was made clear that members of the Stock Exchange had very little interest in the Gas Company.

Mr. Davis said that they concurred with the desire to regulate the supply and distribution of gas. But the bill might be more fair as regarded those who had put capital into those ventures, without in any way altering its value. They took it for granted that the Government had no desire to unduly press upon the people who had embarked in these enterprises, which had served their purpose.

The public, Mr. Davis added, had hitherto had implicit faith in privileges conferred by Act of Parliament, and once that feeling of security was destroyed the whole fabric of confidence would fall to the ground. Where rights and privileges had been granted by a Government, it rather shook the confidence of the people if it found that another Government was likely in any shape or form to remove any of those rights or privileges.

The Minister remarked that Mr. Davis seemed to think that privileges granted by any Parliament should be continued indefinitely.

Mr. Davis said that it was not usually wealthy people who invested in gas shares. They were mostly bought by the trustees of widows and children, and by men of small means, who wanted an assured income. There had been no increase in the dividends of the Gas Company for 40 years.

The Minister: No; but there has been no decrease.

Mr. Davis held that by reason of this steadiness the shareholders had thought that their money and dividends would be always safe.

The Minister: Being a monopoly, their prices cannot be regulated by competition, and they must be regulated by Act of Parliament. The object of the bill is to be fair to the companies, while regulating their operations.

Later the Minister asked: "Do you definitely make the suggestion that I should allow them sufficient dividends on paid-up capital to permit of a 5 per cent. dividend being paid on the market price of the shares?"

Mr. Davis: Something to that effect.

PUBLIC INTEREST.

The Minister: First of all, there is the general public to be considered. In regard to the shareholders who have bought in at a premium, there is some considerable hardship. But I am meeting that to a certain extent. I am prepared to allow them to pay a dividend on their full premium capital.

Later the Minister added: "You are concerned about the investor. I am concerned about the general public. On looking into things, I find that this Gas Company has, for the last 50 or 60 years, charged a comparatively exorbitant price for its gas."

Mr. Mullins: That is a very hard thing to say and to prove.

The Minister: "You will find that they have accumulated a quarter of a million out of money that should have been devoted to reducing the price of gas to consumers long since dead. They have not a leg to stand on."

Proceeding, the Minister said that in Great Britain the maximum dividend allowed by law was 10 per cent. Here they had been declaring 15 per cent, and the balance of the profits had been paid into their hidden reserves. These hidden reserves belonged to the public.

"You asked me to allow them," added the Minister, "not only 5 per cent. on their capital invested, but also a similar amount on their hidden reserves which belong to the general public, and, further than that, 5 per cent. on the speculative value of their shares."

Mr. Davis said that during the coal strike the company wrote off £20,000 from their reserves, and didn't raise the price of gas.

The Minister: But they paid their 15 per cent. dividend all the same.

Mr. Davis said that the company had written off in all £70,000 from its reserves, which were less than they were 25 years ago.

The Minister said that if there had been a Gas Clause Bill, which there ought to have been when the Gas Company had £100,000 of share capital, the whole of the other capital got since would have been limited to a 10 per cent. dividend, as was the case under English Acts to-day. That was evidently considered a reasonable dividend to pay. They had always paid it in England, and built up reserves besides.

"I am not inclined," the Minister added, "to do what you ask."

Continuing, the Minister said that the Gas Company would be able to pay a very reasonable dividend if it reduced the price of gas. All those things—the reserves and the money that was paid in—would assist the company to bring the price of gas down to a reasonable thing.

Mr. Mullins said he looked upon the Act as a good deal too severe, and he believed its restrictions would hamper the gas companies in the future.

The Minister said that 3s 9d was the maximum price under the bill. If at any time the company found it was not able to "make a do" at 3s 9d, it had only to come to the Minister and say, "We cannot make a profit at 3s 9d, and we want you to fix it at a higher rate," and the rest was definitely fixed. The only elasticity allowed was to increase the price of gas. That was the principal reason why it was put in. There was no reason for decreasing it."

SECOND READING OF THE BILL.

During yesterday afternoon's sitting of the Legislative Assembly, Mr. Wade asked when the second reading of the Gas Bill would be taken. The Premier replied that he proposed to take it to-day after the third reading of the Banks Amalgamation Bill. "As the Minister in charge will take about an hour and a half for his speech, I think that counsel will be heard on Thursday," he added.

"ECONOMIST" CHARGES.

MR. GRIFFITH IN REPLY.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) yesterday made the following reply to the criticism of the Sydney correspondent of the "Economist" regarding his works policy:—

"The correspondent referred to says that I have announced that I am going to spend £5,000,000 or £6,000,000 a year over and above the present expenditure on public works. That simply is not true.

"I said that the expenditure on public works would for some years to come be between £5,000,000 and £6,000,000. This intelligent correspondent also points out as a proof of extravagance that the business undertakings of the State for the current year cost £640,000 more than the previous year. Of course, everyone knows that if your public services earn more money they must spend more to earn it; and, as the increased revenue from the public services highly exceeds the increased expenditure, I personally regard the figures as highly satisfactory.

"Concerning the day-labour system, I have recently obtained a definite report from Mr. J. D. Simpson, who was for some years a contractors' engineer, and subsequently himself a railway contractor. After a very careful investigation, he reports that on all the lines he has visited the men are doing just as good work for the department as they ever did for the contractor."

CROWDED TRAINS.

TROUBLE IN THE SOUTH.

STANDING ROOM ONLY.

LOCKHART, Tuesday.

Continued over-crowding of trains on the Southern line is creating a good deal of inconvenience and irritation to the travelling public. Passengers, to reach Lockhart, have to travel south by the Melbourne express, a train which is always crowded. The fact that the Lockhart show opens to-day caused the usual number of passengers to be more than doubled, and from Junee on to The Rock the corridors of cars of the express were crowded. Many passengers, although their tickets entitled them to a seat, had to stand because of all seats being occupied.

A big exodus took place at The Rock, and people were bewildered when the train for Lockhart drew into the station to find that only an ordinary carriage was attached. The result was a wild rush for compartments, in which ladies and children had a bad time. In vain the station officials were appealed to, but they explained that there were no extra carriages available. Considerable indignation prevailed. The journey to Lockhart was a decidedly uncomfortable one. Passengers were packed 10 and 12 in a compartment, when an extra carriage would have prevented this overcrowding. On Monday morning a similar scene took place.

QUEENSLAND.

BANK'S INCOME.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Judgment upon an interesting and important point under the Income Tax Acts has been delivered by his Honor Sir Arthur Rutledge. The question for decision was raised on appeal by the Bank of New South Wales against an assessment by the Commissioner of Income Tax. In 1909 the bank decided to increase its capital from £2,500,000 to £3,000,000 by the creation of 30,000 new shares of £20 each. These were issued to shareholders at a premium of £5 a share. It was decided that the amount of the premiums (£125,000) should be applied in the augmentation of the reserve fund. The Commissioner, treating that money as profits made by the bank in the ordinary course of its business, levied income tax upon it. The bank, appealing from this contention, took up the position that premiums on shares sold under these circumstances were not taxable profits or income, but in the nature of an accretion to the capital. The matter for determination, therefore, was whether the amount derived from the premiums on these shares was income liable to taxation, or merely accretion to capital, and not liable to assessment.

His Honor held that the premiums were business profits, and the fact that the shareholders decided to apply them to the augmentation of capital did not alter their original character. He, therefore, confirmed the assessment, and allowed the costs of the Commissioner, which he fixed at 35 guineas.

NEW RAILWAY OPENED.

The Allora to Goomburra railway was officially opened by the Minister for Railways in the presence of about 2000 people.

CASUALTIES.

A PUBLIC SERVANT'S END.

An inquiry into the circumstances attending the death of David Law, 42 years of age, a Public servant, who died at the Royal North Shore Hospital on August 19 last, was conducted before Mr. H. S. Hawkins (City Coroner) at North Sydney Courthouse yesterday.

Mary Louisa Law, residing at Blue's Point-road, stated that deceased returned to his home on the afternoon of the date in question considerably under the influence of liquor. He had been drinking heavily for several weeks, and when she remonstrated with him about his excesses he replied that he was not much use, and would soon end it. He took a bottle of poison from his coat pocket, and then asked her for a will form. Subsequently he went into his bedroom and locked the door. About a minute later she went to the door, and knocked. When her husband opened it he was making a noise as if he were sick. She tried to get him to take an emetic of mustard and water, but failed. Dr. Brierley was called in, and he at once ordered her husband's removal to the hospital, where he died about an hour after admission. A verdict of death by poison self-administered was returned.

REVOLVER WENT OFF.

Early yesterday Mrs. Lily Dunn, 23, was in the act of putting away a revolver at her residence in Henrietta-street, Chippendale, when one chamber exploded, the bullet piercing her left arm. The Civil Ambulance took her to the Prince Alfred Hospital, where she was admitted by Dr. Tibey.

A STONEMASON COLLAPSES.

Just before 8 a.m. yesterday the Civil Ambulance took a stonemason, David Reid, 60, of 129 Campbell-street, Surry Hills, to the Sydney Hospital, where Dr. Furber pronounced his life extinct. Reid, it appears, was engaged in cleaning out the City Mission Hall, at the corner of Liverpool and Sussex streets, when he collapsed.

FALL FROM A VEHICLE.

MUDGEE, Tuesday.

Joseph Rochester, of Appletree Flat, was driving a vehicle when the reins broke, and the horse became unmanageable. The vehicle collided with a fence, and Mr. Rochester was thrown out, sustaining a fractured skull. He was brought to the Mudgee hospital.

JEWELLER'S DEATH.

MOSSVALE, Tuesday.

An inquiry was held by the police magistrate (Mr. G. H. Galbraith) on the body of Mark Levy, aged 40, jeweller, and a visitor from Sydney, who was found this morning just on the point of death with his throat cut. Evidence was given that his only trouble was bad health, with loss of sleep. A verdict was returned that deceased died from a wound inflicted by himself.

FELL FROM SWING BOAT.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

Roy Byrne, 14, fell from a swinging boat at the British Mine picnic on Saturday, and sustained a severe injury to the skull. He had a narrow escape from being killed. Portion of the scalp was lifted like a lid.

CHLORODYNE POISONING.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Louisa Sage, who, with her sister, took chlorodyne yesterday, died in the Melbourne Hospital to-day.

SURVEYOR FOUND SHOT.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The police have received a report to the effect that F. V. D. Hodgson, employed as a contract surveyor by the Lands Department, and who was engaged in the survey of Kilcoy Estate was found dead in his tent, with a revolver wound in the forehead and a revolver lying alongside the body.

CESSNOCK HOSPITAL.

FOUNDATION STONE LAID.

CESSNOCK, Tuesday.

The ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the Cessnock District Hospital attracted a large gathering at the hospital site on Saturday afternoon. Mr. F. Flowers (Chief Secretary) had signified his willingness to lay the foundation stone and motored to Cessnock, accompanied by Messrs. J. H. Cann (Treasurer), and A. Edden (Minister for Mines), J. Estell and Wm. Kearsley, M.'s L.A. A section of the hospital is now being erected by the Government on the day labour system, the Government and the hospital committee each finding £1000 for the work. Messrs. M. Baillie (president), Wm. Kearsley, M.L.A., and Rev. V. Clark-Duff (secretary) addressed the gathering. Mr. Flowers then laid the foundation stone amidst applause. In the course of an address he said that population was the greatest asset to the State, and health the greatest asset to the people, so it behoved the State to look to its people's health. Hospitals were of national importance, and in such movements all political and sectarian feeling should be cast aside. He did not desire that there should be any patchwork in connection with the Cessnock Hospital. The district was a rich one and with great possibilities, and he was prepared, on behalf of the Government, to advance £2000 if the committee could procure another £1000, and by this means the hospital could be completed before the workmen left; he also wished a maternity home to be established in connection with the hospital in accordance with the importance of the district.

The president of the hospital committee immediately accepted the terms on behalf of the committee.

The sum of £156 was laid on the stone, and a collection was also taken up, which caused the Ministerial party to remark that the president had apparently taken on an easy task in guaranteeing £1000.

MAYOR OF WAVERLEY.

At a meeting of the Waverley Council last night Dr. Lamrock was unanimously elected Mayor of the municipality, vice Alderman Campbell, who resigned. The new Mayor has been a member of the council for a little over three years.

"Robur" differs from other Teas upon several points.

"Robur" is purer than some, stronger than others, nicer than most, and the price which grocers charge for each of the four Grades is so close to cost as to make it (quality considered) the best value in Tea procurable anywhere.

Besides you will find full weight of

Leaf in every Package of "Robur" whilst in other Teas the wrappers are sometimes weighed in as Tea.

The "ROBUR" Tea Co.,

Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Perth.

P.S.—For general use we recommend "No. 1" Grade. It has a delightful flavour, and it is wonderfully saving tea to use.—Advt.

Very little change has taken place in the pressure distribution over Australia. The eastern "high" still occupies the greater part of the Tasman Sea, with but small alteration in the central position and values.

The western "high" is still quite nondescript in character, but has expanded, so that its eastern edge reaches now to about Broken Hill. This eastward movement of the "high" has contracted somewhat the monsoonal tongue of low pressure lying along the western border of Queensland, or between there and the Territory.

The "col," or neck of relatively low pressure between the two neighbouring "highs," has also contracted, but still occupies a considerable area of Central Australia and the South-east States, where flat barometrical conditions rule.

Over Southern Victoria and Tasmania is the Antarctic "low," which has been displaced southward by the advancement of the western "high."

Ocean Forecasts.—Squally and rough between Cape Borda, Hobart, and Gabo Island.

THE WEATHER.

LIGHT TO MODERATE RAIN.

BRIEF SQUALL IN THE CITY.

The weather in the city yesterday was marked by intermittent cloud and sunshine until about 2 p.m., when the clouds to the west and south-west assumed a very thundery appearance, with intensifying conditions. A sharp thunderstorm, with a violent west-south-westerly squall, passed over from the south-west at 3.30 p.m., yielding 8 points of rain from a few steady driving showers. The strength of the thunder squall reached 50 miles per hour at 3.40 p.m., from the west-south-west. The temperature fell suddenly from 68 degrees to 56.2 degrees in a few minutes before 4 p.m.

The combined influences of the tropical and Antarctic depressions have again operated over New South Wales, and caused light to moderate rain generally, except on the North Coast. It was very scattered, however, in the west and in the SE corner. Thunder was associated with the rain, and some of the falls were heavy on the central tableland and SW slope.

The heaviest amounts were:—Grenfell 146 points, Carcoar 132, Bathurst 161, Dandaloo 111, Rockley 95, Cowra 92, Trangie and Crookwell 82, Blayney 77, Wellington 74, Dubbo 70, Nundle 75, Narromine 75, Yass 65, Quirindi 63, Taralga 65, Cudal 62, Hill End, Orange, and Goulburn, each 60.

The wheat area again benefited almost generally, with falls that were chiefly light to moderate.

At Grenfell (on the SW slope) a tornadic squall occurred at 5 p.m. on Monday, and totally wrecked several houses.

Yesterday it was cloudy to overcast, and threatening generally, with misty rain at places along the highlands, central coast, and at a few places in the SW.

Temperature yesterday was somewhat lower generally than Monday, excepting in coastal districts, where a slight increase has occurred. The highest readings on Monday were:—Mogil and Mungindi, each 83 degrees, Collarenebri 82, and Lismore, Grafton, and Camden Haven, each 80 degrees.

Details of the rainfall to 9 a.m. yesterday are as follows:—Adelong 2 points, Albury 7, Bannockburn 14, Barraba 15, Barrington [illegible], Bathurst 161, Bendemeer 10, Bingara 1, Blackheath [illegible], Blayney 77, Boggabri 17, Bowral [illegible], Braidwood 10, Bulahdelah 10, Bundella 13, Bungendore [illegible], Burrowa 20, Camden 38, Cape Hawke [illegible], Carcoar 132, Carrathool 5, Casino 20, Cobar [illegible], Coolah 15, [illegible], Cootamundra [illegible], Cowra 92, Crookwell 82, Crookhaven [illegible], Cudal 62, [illegible], Dandaloo 111, Darlington Point [illegible], Delegate [illegible], Dubbo 70, Dungog 5, [illegible], Gabo Island 8, Germanton 4, Gilgandra [illegible], Glen Innes [illegible], Gloucester 24, Gosford 12, Goulburn 60, Grenfell 146, Grenfell 146, Greta [illegible], Grong Grong 7, [illegible], Gunnedah [illegible], Gundagai 27, Gunning [illegible], Henty 13, Hill End 60, Hillston 6, Hungerford [illegible], Inverell [illegible], Jerilderie 4, Jerry's Plains 7, Jervis Bay 11, [illegible], Katoomba 32, Kiama 27, Kiandra 1[illegible], [illegible], Kurrajong 16, Lawson 28, Louth [illegible], Manilla 15, Manning Heads 3, Marrickville [illegible], Merriwa 20, Molong [illegible], Moruya [illegible], Moss Vale [illegible], Mount Hope [illegible], Mount Victoria [illegible], Mudgee [illegible], Murrurundi [illegible], Muswellbrook [illegible], Narrabri 7, Narromine 75, Nundle 75, [illegible], Newcastle [illegible], Nowra [illegible], Orange 60, Pambula 5, Parkes [illegible], Parramatta [illegible], Paterson [illegible], Penrith 37, Picton [illegible], Port Stephens [illegible], Quambone [illegible], Queanbeyan [illegible], Quirindi 63, Raymond Terrace 13, Riverstone [illegible], Rylstone [illegible], Scone [illegible], Singleton [illegible], Springwood [illegible], Sydney [illegible], Sutton Forest [illegible], Tamworth [illegible], Taralga 65, Temora [illegible], Tenterfield [illegible], Tibooburra [illegible], Tocumwal [illegible], Trangie 82, Tumbarumba [illegible], Tumut [illegible], Ulladulla [illegible], Uralla [illegible], Urana 15, Wagga Wagga 10, Walcha [illegible], Walgett [illegible], Wellington 74, Wentworth [illegible], Wilcannia [illegible], Wollongong [illegible], Yass 65, Young 50.

WHEELERS AND MINERS.

ATTEMPTS AT RECONCILIATION.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The Newcastle Labour Council is still endeavouring to bring about a more amicable position between the Wheelers' and Shiftmen's Union and the Colliery Employees' Federation, and a further conference between these three bodies was held to-day.

Trouble was threatened at the start, when Mr. D. Watson, president of the federation, said that he did not regard the members of the Wheelers' and Shiftmen's Union as unionists.

Mr. J. Searle, secretary of the Wheelers' and Shiftmen's Union, gave reasons why the members of his union had broken away from the federation.

The conference ended in a friendly spirit, although no definite conclusion was arrived at. The wheelers' representatives said there would be no trouble so far as they were concerned. Their idea was to have neither strikes nor lockouts.

LATE ALDERMAN J. HARRIS.

A bronze memorial tablet, to commemorate the services rendered to the city by the late Alderman John Harris, who was a member of the City Council from [illegible] to 1911, and Mayor for five terms, was unveiled in the vestibule of the Town Hall last evening by the Lord Mayor (Alderman Clarke).

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

STOCKS AND SHARES.

Dullness was the dominant feature of yesterday's 'Change, and weakness was shown all round. Australian Gas receded, and after a sale at £14/18/ other sellers came back from £14/17/6 to £14/15/. All banks in which business was done showed lower rates. In steam shares, Sydney Ferries was stronger on quotations, with no sales. Newcastle Steam sold higher, but there was a decline in Union of New Zealand. Arthur Cocks was higher, and so was Burns, Philp. Colonial Sugar had a fall of 20/. Goldsbrough, Mort appreciated. Fresh Food and Standard Waygood had quittance each at lower rates. Hetton Coal declined. Variations on late sales were:—

FINANCIAL.

COST OF PROTECTING SUGAR.

The representatives of the Queensland Government are asking the Commonwealth for an increased bounty, that in place of three-fourths of the excise now received the sugar-growers employing white labour should receive the whole excise £4 per ton of sugar. If this demand is acceded to it will mean that on a yield reduced by 41 per cent. the bounty to be paid will be within £7000 of the bounty of £541,259 last year. Owing to the small yield of the canefields the amount of imported sugar it is estimated will be trebled in 1912-13 as compared with 1911-12. The totals of imported sugar, of Australian sugar, and of the bounty paid in each of the last five years, together with the estimates for 1912-13, may be given thus:—

	Imported Sugar. Tons.	Australian Sugar. Tons.	Bounty Paid. £
1908-9	18,836	187,095	477,100
1909-10	78,957	137,179	403,132
1910-11	23,385	198,661	630,208
1911-12	40,761	187,168	541,259

(Estimate.)

But the bounty paid by no means represents the sacrifice which Australia makes to support the sugar industry. That bounty is a return to the grower of only a part of the production of the Customs and excise duties, which may be given as follows:—

	Customs Duty on Imports.	Excise Duty on Australian Sugar.	Total Duty.
1909-10	473,745	548,716	1,022,461
1910-11	139,728	794,645	934,373
1911-12	244,663	748,670	993,333

(Estimate.)

In 1911 the total number of persons, white and coloured, engaged in the industry was 31,654, and, as we may set down the extra sum paid by the consumers on account of the duty at £1,018,000 (2¼ per cent. on to the duty), it is found that the Commonwealth is paying £32 for each of these 31,654 employed in the industry. Or if we take white labour only, 29,776 persons, the amount which the Commonwealth is paying on account of each of them is £34. This is not intended as an argument against the White Australia policy, but merely to give the people the opportunity of knowing what that policy and what the cost of protecting the sugar industry really is. Of the whites engaged in the industry, 25,739, according to the figures for 1911, were engaged in Queensland. In 1905 the white labour employed in the industry in Queensland consisted of 16,000 persons. The total white labour for Australia in that year consisted of 23,162 persons, and both white and coloured 32,114. In that year, then, the cost to the Commonwealth of each sugar-worker was £22/10/, and of each white worker £27. Thus in five years the cost per worker increased by £9/10/, and per white worker by £7. The difference in the increases is due to the greater proportion of white workers in the latest year.

ANTHONY HORDERN AND SONS, LTD.

The firm of Anthony Hordern and Sons has been transformed into a limited liability company with a capital of £2,500,000. The change has been made for family reasons, and on account of the extension of operations. As regards capital the new company will rank next to the Bank of New South Wales, £3,000,000, and the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, £3,000,000. Further particulars are given elsewhere.

MANLY GAS INCREASE OF CAPITAL.

An extraordinary meeting of shareholders of the Manly Gas Company, Ltd., was held yesterday, when the resolution passed at the meeting on August 12 last, viz., that the capital of the company be increased to £120,000, by the creation of 30,000 new shares of £1 each, was submitted for confirmation as a special resolution, and was unanimously adopted.

AUTOMATIC TELEPHONES (AUSTRALASIA), LIMITED.

The first annual report of the above company, covering the period ended August 31, states that during the year the company received a contract for the installation of the automatic telephone system at Geelong, and this installation is complete and satisfactory. It was taken over officially on June 27. The profit will be included in next year's figures. A contract for equipping the Victorian railways with 300 automatic telephones is being executed. Tenders have been submitted for Balmain, Glebe, and Newtown. It is mentioned that since taking over the National Telephone Company, the British Government has ordered several equipments from the holders of the British rights of the Automatic Telephone, and have recently placed an order for 5800 lines for Leeds, England. The profit and loss account shows a credit balance of £3/9/11. The capital is £30,000, sundry creditors amount to £2437. On the assets side goodwill is accountable for £5000, the Automatic Electric Company of Chicago has £10,500, payment for material in advance in terms of the agency agreement, stock and work in progress is of the value of £4264, and cash amounts to £12,676.

S. HOFFNUNG AND COMPANY.

At the annual meeting of S. Hoffnung and Co., held in London recently, it was stated that an Australian board of directors had been formed, consisting of Mr. Albert Nathan (chairman), Mr. Maurice Nathan, and Mr. Leslie Barnett, any any member of the London board resident or on a visit to Australia will be ex-officio a member of the Australian board.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CAMPAIGN.

The council of the Sydney Chamber of Commerce will start on a vigorous campaign next week to increase the membership. During the past six months the increase has been gratifying, but the council had felt that much more might be done in that direction by organised effort, and to that end has appointed a membership committee, consisting of all the members of the council, viz.:—Messrs. H. Y. Braddon (president), A. Gordon Wesche (vice-president), G. A. Parkes (hon. treasurer), A. A. C. Cocks, M.L.A., J. Russell French, Walter Keep, John H. Kitchen, C. E. D. Meares, J. Maitland Paxton, David Reid, E. H. Rogers, Jas. M. Sandy, F. W. Stoddart, John Wheeler, and F. E. Winchcombe, M.L.C., together with the following members of the chamber:—Messrs. R. K. Allport, E. G. Dawes, Alban Gee, R. W. Gillespie, G. S. Littlejohn, A. M'Neil, A. H. Nathan, and C. Churchill Tucker. Each member of the committee has been given 10 nomination forms, and these he is expected to return with the names of new members. If expectations should be fulfilled about 200 names should be added to the roll. In addition members of the committee are expected to make a canvass for new members by letter.

MELBOURNE STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the Melbourne Steamship Company, Ltd., was held to-day at the offices, King-street, Melbourne. Mr. D. Y. Syme presided, and in moving the adoption of the report said that at present there was a falling-off in trade, but it was to be hoped that this was but temporary. The delays at Newcastle were getting serious, as instead of ships getting away within 48 hours they were detained sometimes for more than a week. These delays caused serious loss. The report was adopted. Mr. D. Y. Syme was re-elected a director.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Imports into Germany for the five months of this year were of the value of £210,805,000, an increase of £20,450,000 compared with the same period of last year.

Exports of domestic produce amounted to £171,916,000, an increase of £14,270,000.

Imports into France in the five months amounted to £134,224,000, a decrease of 12 millions sterling, while exports increased by eight millions sterling, to £106,874,000.

Bookkeeping Machine Company of Australasia, Ltd., has been registered with a capital of £10,000 in £1 shares, the objects being to acquire the business of the Bookkeeping Machine Company of Australia, now carried on by Ellis Davies, also the Elliott Fisher Co.'s agencies, etc. The directors are Messrs. Ellis Davies (managing), A. C. J. Wood, and David Bertram.

W. H. Metcalfe and Co., Ltd., with a capital of £10,000 in 2000 cumulative shares and 8000 ordinary shares of £1 each, will acquire the business of W. H. Metcalfe and Co., manufacturers of paints ferol, ferol paints, printing ink, varnishes, etc. The directors are Messrs. W. H. Metcalfe and J. B. Clark.

Bryan Bros., Ltd., has resolved to wind up. Messrs. H. B. Allard and G. D. Blanks have been appointed liquidators.

A dividend (the 76th) of 1/8 per share has been declared by the Broken Hill Water Supply, Ltd., payable on October 1. The transfer books close on September 18.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Most grocery lines were in good demand yesterday. Canned fruits sold readily despite the high prices. Peaches were particularly sought after. Orders were booked at from 11/ to 11/6 per dozen tins. Stocks of evaporated apricots were practically depleted, and those merchants fortunate enough to possess supplies were obtaining rates which showed a considerable advance on the opening figures. For Four Crown /10½d was asked, Three Crown /10, Two Crown /9, and One Crown /7½ per lb. Plain was unprocurable. Symington's large bottles of coffee essence were scarce. The market was bare of dates, and the arrival of the new season's goods was anxiously awaited. Higher prices were quoted for capers, olives, and walnuts for forward deliveries. The position of salmon would not be discussed. It was evidently a sore point with distributors. Advices from the sardine fisheries of Europe stated that the outlook was not favourable, and that values were strong. The total pack from all quarters had been decreasing for several seasons, and consequently there had been no opportunity for supplies to accumulate, so that many of the leading brands were almost unobtainable. At time of writing it was early in the season, but the opinion was expressed that unless conditions greatly improved the coming season would again be one of poor selection and high quotations.

There was no interhouse trading in oils, although retailers reported that sales were well maintained. Linseed oil moved out in average quantities at the published levels. A cable from Calcutta indicated that the seed had moved up 10/ per ton. Holders of turpentine were weak, and what were designated "cheap parcels" were freely offering. Whitelead commanded a fair amount of attention.

Heavy chemicals were good property. Bluestone was in firm hands, and £26/10/ to £27 was the best price at which an ordinary parcel could have been secured. Of course a big lot might have been picked up 10/ less. Lump borax was quoted at from £23 to £24 per ton. The same price would have been accepted for powdered. As is well known the drop in soda ash took effect as from the beginning of July; but as shipments have been delayed owing to strikes and various other causes, it is not thought that these cheap supplies will be available much before the middle of September. The reduction, when it does come, will be a considerable one, amounting to nearly £2 on current spot valuations. Taking into consideration the season of the year carbide met with an excellent inquiry. As a general rule the demand slackens off with the approach of summer; but as it is anticipated that the oversea rates will advance during the next couple of months merchants are apparently taking advantage of the present cheap quotations. Cream of tartar was considered good holding, 95 per cent. at from /10 to /10½, and 99 per cent. at /11 per lb. Rosins were quiet and unchanged.

Another increase of £1 per ton in the wholesale price of sheetlead was announced by the manufacturers. Full rolls were not to be had under £24/5/ per ton, while for cut rolls 25/3 per cwt was demanded. The Australian-made wire netting was clearing in small lots at the enhanced value. Stocks of imported brands were light. A brisk trade was passing in cement for forward deliveries, sales of shipments to arrive being put through at from 14/ to 16/ per cask. On spot anything from 16/ to 17/6 was wanted.

An auction sale occupied the attention of tea men. The catalogue put forward consisted of 730 packages of Indians and Javas. Competition was by no means brisk, and only 500 packages were placed. It would appear from various reports which are from time to time made available, that the Calcutta market is not nearly so firm as is stated. One letter received yesterday, dated July 26, set out that at that week's sale there was a poor selection, for with the exception of some good Darjeelings the teas on offer consisted almost entirely of ordinary medium and common grades; and mark for mark the quality was almost, without exception, inferior to what was usually seen at that season of the year. The demand was mainly for medium kinds. Commonest were quiet and easier. Lower grade mediums were also in buyers' favour. Good medium descriptions were asked for and were rather dearer. Good liquoring teas were in strong demand, and firm at previous rates. Another advice stated that values were fully ½d lower than at the corresponding period last season.

Jute fabrics were again featureless. Inquiries were few, even from the country. Wool packs sold in small lots for immediate delivery at 3/3½ usual terms. Calcutta was quoting 5/10 c.o.f., for season's shipments of cornsacks. This price would show a cost to the merchant of about 6/2. Holders, therefore, who were asking 6/2½ or 6/3 delivered were quite within the bounds of legitimate trading. It was stated, however, that there was one operator who was willing to sell at 6/1½. Bran bags were in strong hands at 5/4. Telegrams from Melbourne indicated that that market was firm at 5/7½. Only three weeks have elapsed since bran bags ex Sangola were selling in the Southern capital at 4/3, slings.

TRADE WITH WARSAW.

Intimation has been received by the Minister for Agriculture to the effect that Mr. J. Neufeld, of Warsaw, Russian Poland, in communicating with the Commonwealth Government, expresses the opinion that Australian butter could be disposed of in Warsaw in the winter months from October to the end of April.

Mr. Neufeld also states that much business might be done with extract of meat, and that he will be pleased to correspond with firms on the subject.

BREADSTUFFS.

NEW WHEAT DULL.

The only change in the local wheat market yesterday was a slightly easier feeling in new season's delivery. Sellers were offering various quantities for delivery from January to March at 3/11, but there were no buyers. Merchants are evidently fast coming to the conclusion that new grain at about 3/11 is far better selling than buying. Nobody appeared to be troubling about old wheat. Holders were asking 4/5 alongside, but as the only people in need of grain at the moment are a few speculators who are forced to cover, very little actual business was transacted. Shippers and millers continued disinterested. Private cables stated that the damage by rains in England and France was considerable. Our own cables also stated that Mark Lane was firm at from /3 to /6 advance.

There was no movement in flour, which was quoted at £10 per ton.

ARRIVALS BY RAIL.

Wheat and Flour.—The receipts of wheat and flour by rail at Darling Harbour and the suburban railway stations for the week ended August 27 were:—

	Wheat, Tons.	Flour, Tons.
Week ended August 27	3460	1127
A week ago	3896	861
A year ago	6355	997
Two years ago	10,807	1014

The totals for the statistical year, which started on December 1, 1911, compared with those of the corresponding period of the three years, are as follow:—

	Wheat, Tons.	Flour, Tons.
1912	365,379	22,096
1911	444,739	32,185
1910	400,564	19,157
1909	209,957	17,835

Comparison of the Prices.—The mean prices now ruling for wheat and its products compare with those of a year and two years ago as follow:—

	Yesterday.	Last year.	2 years ago.
Wheat, per bushel	£0 4 5	£0 3 5¼	£0 3 11
Flour, per ton	10 0 0	8 10 0	9 17 6
Bran, per ton	5 10 0	5 0 0	3 15 0
Pollard, per ton	6 0 0	4 10 0	3 15 0

In the case of wheat, the price is the average given by shippers.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 293 tons of wheat and 156 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

Unless otherwise specified, prices are for distributing lots only.

TEA.

Mr. Claud J. Gant, acting on instructions received from Messrs. Claude Healy and Co., offered at public auction 730 packages of Indian and Java teas. Competition was rather slow, but nevertheless 500 packages were cleared at full rates.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Wheat 4/3½ to 4/4, parcels for forward delivery quoted at higher rates. Flour advanced 5/ to £9/10/; bran, unaltered, £5/15/; pollard, advanced, 5/ to £6/10/; oats, steady, New Zealand 3/1 to 3/3; maize quiet, 4/2; peas dull, 4/; seed lots to 4/4; chaff firm, £4/10/ to £5/10/; hay, £6 to £6/10/; sheaves, manger, £4/10/ to £5; chaffing, 80/ to 90/; straw, Victorian, 35/ to 40/; Tasmanian 55/ to 62/6; potatoes steady, red soils, Snowflakes £11/10/ to £12, Carmens to £12/10/ for seed; onions scarce, £18, some sellers asking higher; butter unchanged, 1/1 to 1/2; eggs fell /1 owing to increased supplies, now /11 to /11½; best brands of bacon advanced to /10 for sides and /11½ for middles.

Tea, fair inquiry, but only moderate offerings. Cornsacks 6/1 spot, 6/2 to 6/3 forward; branbags firmer, 5/7½ spot, 5/6 ex next steamer; woolpacks, 3/2 spot and September delivery, 3/ October delivery; wire netting is in good demand.

In the live stock market to-day 27,000 fat sheep were yarded. The opening sales were practically unchanged, but in consequence of the proportion of good and prime qualities proving ample for requirements, the market became irregular, with an easier tendency, prices gradually receding to fully 1/ per head under last week's improved rates. The decline in values was still more pronounced in the middling and inferior descriptions, the closing sales being the weakest. Quotations: Prime crossbred wethers from 25/ to 29/, extra from 30/ to 32/6, and a few higher, with odd sheep to 50/; good crossbred wethers from 21/ to 24/, seconds from 16/9 to 19/, inferior from 15/; prime crossbred ewes from 21/ to 25/, extra prime and heavy from 27/ to 31/, good from 17/ to 19/6, second from 13/ to 15/9, inferior from 10/6 to 12/; prime merino wethers from 23/ to 26/, extra from 29/ to 32/9, good from 18/ to 21/6, second and inferior from 11/; best merino ewes from 17/9 to 20/6, good ditto from 14/ to 16/6, second and inferior from 8/. Fat lambs: 6000 were penned. About 800 spring lambs came forward, including a couple of drafts of exceptionally prime quality, which sold at prices ranging from 17/6 to 21/9, good from 13/6 to 16/, others from 8/6 to 10/6. In summer lambs, the market was a reflex of that for sheep, the demand of both trade buyers and graziers being inactive at lower rates. Prime sold at from 15/6 to 18/, extra to 21/6, good from 13/9 to 15/, second and inferior from 9/ to 11/6.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

Wheat was firm at 4/ to 4/1 for farmers' lots, and 4/1½ for milling parcels nominal, 4/3½ to 4/4 f.o.b. nominal. Flour was firm but quiet at £8/12/6 to £8/17/6 f.o.b., and £9/5/ to £9/10/ for bakers' lots, delivered. Bran and pollard were firm at 1/2½ to 1/3¼ delivered, and ½d less f.o.b. Oats were practically cleared up. Good feed Algerians were quoted at 3/4 ex store. Peas were quiet at 4/ to 4/1 f.o.b. Chaff was steady but quiet to 5/ for prompt shipments f.o.b. Butter was easier. At auction factory sold at 1/2 to 1/0¾; dairy, 1/1 to 1/2; stores, /10½ to /11½. Cheese eased ½d to /7½ to /9; new makes, matured, /10½ to /11. Bacon was firm at /10 to /10½.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

EGGS LARGELY SUPPLIED AND CHEAPER.

Exceptionally large supplies of railway eggs were received in Sussex-street yesterday morning, but the arrivals of new-laids were greater. With such a quantity of new-laid eggs merchants were glad to dispose of their case eggs. They found it no easy matter. The price of new-laids was reduced to /11. Values under and above this price were ruling in isolated instances. Railways were being sold almost entirely at /10. A few selected lots commanded an extra /¼. Rivers were moving off at /10. This week's shipment of Nambucca eggs was not of good quality, and the bulk of it was being sold at /9½. "If the other river eggs are worth /10, then the present Nambucca eggs on the market are dear at /9½," remarked a merchant who had received a quantity of the unfavourable eggs. Duck eggs were steady of sale at /10 to 1/ per dozen. From information obtained during the morning it was believed that the Melbourne merchants had not operated on the market this week.

The announcement that one large firm had reduced the price of cheese to /8 from /8½ was not regarded as satisfactory by other merchants, and consequently they did not change their values. At the same time, it was the opinion of two or three that the market would eventually reach a lower level, on account of the present dull sales, but they considered that a reduction would now be premature. The lower prices will certainly have a great deal to do with preventing Queensland cheese from coming to this market. During the morning a Sussex-street merchant was asked to sell a quantity of Queensland cheese on consignment, but, owing to the declining state of the market, it was considered advisable not to accept the offer.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

TRADE GENERALLY DULL.

Dulness in trade was supreme for forage and grain merchants in Sussex-street yesterday morning. Sellers were plentiful, but it seldom happened that they opened their books to make any transactions. Every commodity was difficult to sell. The chaff market recently showed a brighter side, but this has been discoloured by retail merchants not buying so largely, and the chaff from the other States being of poor quality. There was scarcely one merchant in Sussex-street who did not complain about the quality. Lately the shipments have been large, and it will no doubt be difficult to clear them, as the Sydney and suburban retailers usually want the best of chaff for their customers.

Lucerne hay was unchanged from Monday's ruling rates. About 50 bales were added to the large quantity on the wharf. Best samples were in fair request, but lower qualities were difficult to sell.

Maize was quiet at 4/7. No good reasons could be found for the advance in price. The South African maize which arrived this week by the two German mail steamers is expected to be available about Thursday.

Onions were scarce, and met with few inquiries at the late high prices. Another shipment of Japanese onions is expected on September 9, and a quantity of San Francisco onions a week later.

Three Victorian steamers arrived with a total of 1400 bags of potatoes. Prices had not been definitely decided upon, but it was expected that the late rates would not be changed. Tasmanian potatoes were moving off at £14/5/ to £14/10/. New Zealand's were easier at £11/10/ to £12. Another shipment, amounting to 6000 bags, arrived by the Ulimaroa during the morning. It was expected that the quality would be better than that of the last two shipments.

Firewood advanced at the auction sales, where 16 trucks were offered and the best wood realised up to £20.

RAILWAY MARKET.

PRICES EASIER.

For a Tuesday there was an unusually large amount of produce in the yard at the Railway markets yesterday morning. Seventy odd trucks were placed in position for sale, and over 50 of these consisted of chaff. A large number of buyers were present at the opening of the sales, but towards the end they seemed to dwindle, some of the last trucks faring rather badly. The demand for produce was not very good, and, as a consequence, prices were easier. The majority of the auctioneers sold out their produce at lower rates rather than hold over consignments, and incidentally pay demurrage. Hence a large proportion of the produce offered was sold. A striking feature of the sales was the large number of consignments sold privately. In fact, all the best consignments were disposed of in this manner—and always are. It must be rather discouraging to owners of produce if they should happen to be in the yard—to see the absolutely unjustifiable waste of produce on the part of buyers when "sampling" chaff. The ground directly below the trucks was simply littered with chaff yesterday morning, and it seems to be a rule that the better the chaff the more it is wasted. Sampling in moderation is, of course, absolutely essential, but such waste as was apparent yesterday is rather passing the bounds of necessity.

Wheaten chaff was the principal commodity offered, fourteen consignments being disposed of. As stated above, most of the choice chaff was sold privately. With the few consignments that were sold the greater proportion had to be passed. On Monday there was a drop in prices for all qualities of chaff, with the exception of choice. Yesterday morning choice chaff followed suit. Sales were as follow:—Extra prime, 7/9 to 8/; prime, 6/9 to 7/2; good, 6/2 to 6/7; medium, 5/2; and inferior, 4/3 per cwt. Nine consignments of oaten chaff were sold, prices varying from 4/10 to 7/ per cwt. Lucerne hay was easier also. Mudgee hay sold at 6/5 and 7/, other qualities fetching 4/ to 5/3. Lucerne chaff obtained 5/7 per cwt. A truckload of oaten hay sold at 7/ per cwt. Two consignments of wheat were offered, but both had to be passed. The market for potatoes was easier, in common with everything else. Sales varied from 6/7 to 13/5 per cwt.

Trucks of produce placed in position for sale totalled 77, and consisted of:—Hay 10, chaff 58, wheat 5, potatoes 3, turnips 1.

The manifest included:—Hay 3, chaff 34, wheat 7, potatoes 3, turnips 2.

INSANE ASYLUMS.

OVERCROWDED INSTITUTIONS.

The report of the Inspector-General of Insane (Dr. Eric Sinclair) tabled in the Legislative Assembly yesterday, stated that during the year there was an increase of patients admitted at the different hospitals, the number, 1247, being the largest yet recorded, and the consequent increased hospital population (6383) remaining at the end of the year being 206 more than at the end of the previous year. All the hospitals were full to overflowing. At the end of the year, not taking into account the temporary accommodation, there were no fewer than 705 patients in excess of the numbers the hospitals should properly accommodate. The Public Works Committee consented to two new institutions being built—one at Morriset, and one at Orange.

The report referred to the recommendations issued by an English commission relating to feeble-minded children. These were for the compulsory notification of all known cases of persons who, through mental defect, were unable to take care of themselves, with a view to instituting proper safeguards, and to seeing that they received the best training suitable to their condition, and it was intended to recommend an amendment in the local Lunacy Act on such basis.

N.S.W. ALLIANCE.

At a meeting of the State council of the New South Wales Alliance, Mr. B. E. Godbehear was appointed superintendent of the southern division. He will take up his duties on September 2.

LONDON FIRM IN SILVER AND COPPER.

The fact that the quotations of the London Stock Exchange on Monday, after the holiday on Saturday, disclosed considerable firmness in Barriers, as well as Australian copper propositions, had a good effect upon the market yesterday morning. This was seen, not so much in the direction of increased speculation—the incubus of a tight money market is still felt—as in the better values ruling in most cases. The result was, buyers had to bid up to close bargains; hence scrip-holders looked more cheerful than they have done for some days past.

That the London Stock Exchange showed all-round stability for Australian stocks is evidenced by the fact that in the silver section the middle quotation for B.H. Souths (paid) improved from £8 to £8/3/9; B.H. Proprietary from 51/ to 52/3; North Broken Hill from £6/11/10½ to £6/13/9; British Broken Hill (old), from 49/9 to 50/6; Sulphide Corporation (ord.), from 24/6 to 25/6; whilst B.H. Block 10 was stationary at 46/. In the case of copper shares, Mount Elliotts firmed from £6/15/ to £7/5/; Hampdens hardened from 44/3 to 45/6; whilst Mount Morgans held steady at 63/9. On the other hand, Chillagoes, Munganas, and Great Cobar, Limited, showed a lack of strength.

Locally, silver shares commanded most attention, and a fair amount of business was transacted. Broken Hill Junctions (ord.) changed hands freely from 10/11 to 11/8, after which they eased to 11/6. The preference scrip advanced in sympathy. The improved London quotations for B.H. Proprietary led to sales on the strong side, the same being the case with Broken Hill Souths (contg.), whilst better offers for the paid scrip failed to draw sellers. The better tone ruling for Barriers caused an advance in Broken Hill Junction North from 17/10 to 18/6. North Broken Hill and Sulphide Corporation (ord.) were in request at solid rates, but sellers stood off. In the case of Iodide, Limited, Melbourne took a hand in buying shares, and this, together with a local demand, caused an advance in the price from £8 to £11/10/, a rise of £3/10/.

Though the amount of business done in copper propositions was not big, it was in favour of sellers. Thus, Hampdens commanded a firm position, with sales at 45/3, 45/6, and 45/7½; Grafton Copper firmed from 10/6 to 12/; MacGregors were steady at 3/6; whilst Mount Morgans sold on the strong side. Mount Elliotts opened with buyers at £7/2/, but sellers were undeclared. Wallaroo and Moontas were wanted at a firm price, but sellers quoted wide. Chillagoes were also in request.

In gold shares sales on steady lines were booked in Brilliant (C.T.), Victory (C.T.), Brilliant Deep (C.T.), and Bullfinch (W.A.). Tin shares were in the background, as far as regards business, but the Tongkah group was in request.

Both the copper and silver sections were in evidence in the afternoon, and a fair number of transactions were recorded, with values well maintained throughout, with a steady tone ruling at the close of the day. Both gold and tin shares were again neglected.

MINING NOTES.

The Wallaroo and Moonta Company has declared a dividend of 2s per share, payable on September 24.

In his letter published in yesterday's issue with regard to the recent drop in the value of Broken Hill Junction shares, "Investor" inadvertently made Mr. Hebbard manager of the Zinc Corporation, whereas the name should have been the Sulphide Corporation.

MINING IN THE STATE.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

The mining warden (Mr. A. B. C. Burke) has granted the application of Thomas Deegan for a further suspension of labour conditions for a month on his gold lease, known as "Dad's Millions." The applicant stated in evidence that he had held the lease for about four years, and had expended £1000 in mining operations. These consisted of 500ft of tunnelling and 250ft of driving and costeening. Besides this, he had put in a winze, and had installed an engine, erected cyanide vats and sheds, and effected other improvements. Arrangements were now being made for machinery suitable for sluicing operations. The pipes had already been laid down, but could not be installed until the engines had arrived. The application was granted.

TASMANIAN MINING.

LAUNCESTON, Tuesday.

The adjourned extraordinary meeting of shareholders in the Hercules Company, called to pass resolutions altering the rules, so as to give shareholders greater power over the directors, was held to-day. The result of the ballot was that 343 shareholders, representing 69,832 shares, voted in favour of the motion, which the chairman declared carried, as a statutory majority had been obtained. Mr. E. A. Weinberg, who was asked to meet the directors of the Hercules to-day, to give them, if possible, any more information regarding the Oker process for the treatment of sulphide ores, replied that no practical purpose could be served by his meeting them, seeing that they were so antagonistic towards the amalgamation proposals.

KISSING POINT.

The romantic theory that Kissing Point derived its title from the act of a sprightly lady who kissed Governor Hunter while he was asleep after dinner, is not, according to Mr. Walter Hibble, confirmed by historical facts. In his interesting paper on the early history of that locality, delivered before the Australian Historical Society last evening at the Royal Society's House, Mr. Hibble declared that his researches showed that the point was so named because the gallant Governor, on finding his boat stranded on the shoal now marked by a beacon, carried the ladies of the party ashore in his arms, and kissed his first passenger on setting her safely upon dry land. Mr. Hibble considered Kissing Point, and, indeed, Ryde generally, as of greater historical interest even than Parramatta.

A resolution expressing the sense of loss sustained by the death of the late Dr. Houison and of sympathy with his relatives was unanimously passed by the meeting.

WOOLLOOMOOLOO ROBBERY.

TWO BOYS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Two boys have made confessions to the police, implicating themselves in the safe robbery which occurred on the 13th inst., at the Fitzroy Stevedoring Company's store, Cowper Wharf, Woolloomooloo.

The two lads appeared at the Water Police Court charged with breaking and entering the warehouse in question, and stealing £3 0s 7½d. Their names were given as William Andrews, 18, and Henry James Ryan, 16.

Mr. P. K. White appeared to defend Andrews.

The confession made by Andrews was reproduced by Senior Detective Ward, who said that he had a conversation with the boy at the company's office the day after the burglary. Andrews, in the statement he made, said that he worked at the store which was broken into. On the Saturday previous, a lad named Jacobs, whom he had known three months, came to him and asked if any boys were wanted at the store. Witness told him none would be wanted until September. Jacobs then exclaimed that he did not know where he was going to get money, and asked if there were any safes in the warehouse, and how he would get into them. Andrews declared that he told him there were two, and showed him the door to go in by. He said, "The door in the corner will be the easiest, if I leave it open." Jacobs asked him to leave it open on Tuesday, and Andrews said that he did so.

The detective said that when he saw Ryan, he at first denied that he was known also as Jacobs. Subsequently, however, he made a confession, in which he said that he met Andrews on the Tuesday afternoon, about 5.30, and at his (Andrews') invitation, they went down to the wharf, where Andrews broke open the safe. Andrews gave him £1 8s.

Further evidence was given to the effect that a finger-print found on a cash box taken from the safe was identical with an impression taken from Ryan's left middle finger.

The two boys were committed for trial. Bail was allowed.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

A BRUSH WITH THE SPEAKER.

MR. COHEN GOES OUT.

HOSPITALS AND THE LAND.

Private members' motions occupied the Legislative Assembly last night. One evoked a debate on the question of whether the residence conditions now imposed on settlers should continue. It brought a pronouncement from the Minister for Lands on the subject, the effect being that, while the restrictions imposed hardships in some directions, the abuses of the past would be let loose again should they be removed.

Incidentally the Minister stated that there is to be no land legislation until the consolidation of the various Land Acts has been effected.

The second debate raised some warmth. It was on a motion by a Labour member to express the opinion that all hospitals should be given financial support by the Government. Sectarianism occasionally floated up to the surface while the discussion went on, and upon that point Mr. Cohen, Liberal member for Petersham, and the Speaker came into conflict, with the result that the sergeant-at-arms was called for to remove Mr. Cohen.

Mr. Cohen (Liberal) was addressing himself to the motion, when the Speaker ordered him to his seat, saying he was making it a sectarian question, and he would not allow it.

Hotly resenting the charge, Mr. Cohen jumped to his feet and said as much.

"Order!" said the Speaker. "The hon. member must withdraw and apologise."

Mr. Cohen: I ask with all respect——

The Speaker: Order! Will the hon. member be seated?

The demand for a withdrawal was repeated.

Then there was frequent repetition of Mr. Cohen attempting to make apology, and the Speaker ordering him to his seat. The offence was apparently that Mr. Cohen did not wait for the Speaker to sit down, for the latter told him that "when the Speaker is on his feet the hon. member must be seated."

After "withdrawing" and apologising, Mr. Cohen's temper got the better of him, and he leaned across the table to Mr. M'Gowen, excitedly saying, "I apply to the Premier to protect me when I'm charged with making a sectarian question of this; it's brought against me by a man who has a biassed mind—who's endeavouring to do me an injury."

This brought the Speaker up again promptly. In smooth tones he said, "I again ask the hon. member to withdraw and apologise."

"If the hon. member will tell me what to withdraw and apologise for I'll do so," said Mr. Cohen.

"The hon. member has reflected on the decision of the Chair. I again call upon him to withdraw and apologise."

There was a crossfire between the member and the Speaker for a few moments, and finally the Speaker called the sergeant-at-arms to remove Mr. Cohen. The latter, incensed beyond bearing, did not wait. "I'll go out rather than be bullied by a man like this—who has no right to do it!" he exclaimed as he left.

LAND RESIDENCE CONDITIONS.

Mr. M'Farlane (Liberal) moved that in the opinion of the House the Crown Lands Act should be amended so as to do away with residence conditions on all classes of holdings, improvement conditions to be substituted. He contended that the disadvantages under which settlers were compelled to live while obliged to reside on their leases were too great, and the object aimed at in the residence conditions—the prevention of dummying—had not been attained. It meant unduly punishing people holding land under the various forms of tenure.

There are people with small holdings in various parts of the country who have land near by, which they would gladly take up were it not for the residence conditions.

Mr. M'Farlane pointed out that a great deal of inferior land would be made use of in this way were the conditions removed. "Wouldn't it be better for the State to let them take up that class of land instead of its being allowed to lie wasting—growing prickly pear and harbouring all kinds of pests?" he asked.

The proposal he put forward as an alternative was covered by the following heads:—Classify the land, make it available for different forms of tenure, impose higher values of improvement conditions than is provided in any of the Crown Lands Acts. Then, after, say, three years, a portion would be put under agriculture; in another two an additional area; further portions at other times; until half of the holding would be under agriculture; and it would have to be so maintained. Other conditions could be made with respect to pastoral and dairying country. Eventually it would be laid down that the whole of the land should be occupied for the purpose for which it was designed.

Mr. Waddell (Liberal), twenty-five years ago, made speeches in the House in which he pointed out that the question of residence was a two-edged sword; that, while it prevented on the one hand monopolies of large aggregates, on the other it handicapped many bona fide settlers. "Time has not changed my feelings," he said, when he rose to follow Mr. M'Farlane. He proceeded:—

"On the contrary, it seems to me that whatever reason could have been given a few years ago, the great change that has been going on in connection with land settlement removes the necessity for having these restrictions.

"The thirst for land monopoly has declined. The feeling all over the country is against a few individuals accumulating enormous areas.

"The main reason for insisting upon residence has, to a large extent, passed away."

The feeling of the House was not entirely in favour of the proposal. Mr. M'Garry (Labour) voiced the first objections. He viewed it with alarm. He saw the storekeepers, butchers, hotelkeepers, and others in the towns competing with the bona fide settler for the land, whereas the whole aim should, in his opinion, be in the direction of finding homes on the land for those who wanted to live on it. As to the disadvantages in regard to the families of the settlers, he pointed out that legislation already provided that they might live in the nearest town in order to have the children educated.

An infrequent speaker is Mr. G. A. Jones, Labour member for the Gwydir. He made a short speech in which he expressed his surprise that such a proposal should be made. He instanced cases of the residence conditions being evaded, strict even as they are to-day. "The man of money," he urged, "could avail himself of dummies to a greater extent than ever before if these conditions were abolished."

"It's legalising dummying," put in Mr. M'Garry.

"Well, it would remove all obstacles," replied Mr. Jones, and he hammered his arguments home by declaring that for every block of land that was suitable there were a hundred or more applicants.

Mr. J. Miller (Liberal) thought that residential conditions were desirable in some areas, but not in others. He moved to amend the motion so as to substitute for abolition modification.

The Minister for Lands (Mr. Beeby) said: "I think it would be disastrous if we entirely abolished all form of residential tenure. I think everybody will agree that the only practical safeguard against the aggregation of large estates and trafficking in land is some form of residential tenure. Only for the adoption of that system we would be to-day in a worse position than we were before the passage of the 1889 Act.

"I quite agree that the general tendency of modern legislation and public opinion is against the holding of large areas, but land trafficking and land speculation has not ceased.

"The man who merely wants to occupy land through another occupant for profit, as an adjunct to his business, is the type of settler that's of very little use to the community.

"Abolition of the residence conditions would create an unhealthy system of land trafficking, and the country would be well advised to retain them in its laws.

"I believe that trafficking is gradually dying out. Our laws are encouraging the right type of men and discouraging the speculator."

Mr. Beeby went on to say that the Government was not submitting any amending land legislation until the consolidation of the laws had been achieved. He threw out certain suggestions where modifications in the residence conditions might be made. He instanced that he had himself seen cases in which in new country it was inhuman to insist upon the settlers taking their wives and families into the entirely undeveloped territory. He thought the land boards might be given power to grant exemption in such cases. They had tried to meet it by allowing residence in adjacent towns in the matter of conditional purchase leases. That might be extended, he thought. In extra hot districts there might be suspension of the residential conditions, so that the settlers might have the summer months in some seaboard town. The general principle of the motion, he asseverated, was a mistake.

After a speech from Mr. Price (Liberal), the debate was adjourned.

SUBSIDIES FOR ALL HOSPITALS.

Mr. M'Garry (Labour) moved:—

"That in the opinion of this House all hospitals whose doors are open to the sick poor free of charge should receive financial support from the State."

"We have seven institutions run for the benefit of the sick poor," he said. "Those who support and control them give their services free of charge. People subscribe large sums of money annually to these hospitals. I don't believe we would have sufficient hospitals if their doors were closed. We don't want a subsidy, but we ask that all hospitals open free to the sick poor should receive financial support from the State."

Mr. Donaldson (Independent) attributed bigotry to the opposition that arose when the motion was put on the business paper. Surely it was not too much to ask, he said, that those institutions which relieved the large hospitals to such a great extent should receive financial assistance.

Mr. Wade denied that any opposition to the bill arose out of bigotry. He told members that they must disabuse their minds also of the idea that anyone going against the motion did so because he believed that human life was not properly cared for in these hospitals. He contended that those who wanted the money should conform to the conditions. It was surely not unreasonable to require that when the money was disposed of there should be some account rendered to show how it was spent.

Mr. Cohen, as one who is largely interested in hospital work, applied himself to the matter of hospital work in detail, until, as related, he was compelled to retire.

The debate was then resumed by Mr. Fitzpatrick (Liberal). It was a remarkable thing, he said, that no sooner did a member rise to claim that the law should be carried out than he was charged with being a bigot. "The hon. member who has just been ejected, for what reason I don't know——"

"The hon. member is out of order," said the Speaker severely.

Mr. Fitzpatrick moved an amendment to add to the motion the words:—"Provided they are prepared to conform to the conditions of the Hospital Act."

The Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) had an amendment to substitute for that of Mr. Fitzpatrick. It was to add to the motion the words:—"And whose accounts are subject to Government audit." This he considered would be a medium course. Mr. Fitzpatrick's amendment, he held, meant destroying the possibility of acceptance, because it imposed conditions for handing over control of the hospitals' properties.

Mr. Hoyle (Labour) spoke eulogistically of the work performed by St. Vincent's and the Lewisham hospitals. All this question of sectarianism, he declared, was contemptible.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE PREMIER.

"The pound for pound subsidy is an absolute right, available to hospitals who come under the statute" declared the Premier. "But this Government is compelled, unless we raise further taxation, where hospitals have a big balance to their credit, not to give the subsidy, because so many other hospitals, doing equally important work, are perishing for want of funds. The Lewisham and St. Vincent's are dealing with patients from overcrowded hospitals. My proposal is to deal with these hospitals on a per capita basis, just as the Imperial Government does with local hospitals. I believe it pays something like 25s per week per capita. I am prepared to do something like that so far as this Government is concerned—to pay for services rendered to the community."

Messrs. J. Miller (Liberal), Crawford (Labour), D. Storey (Independent), Onslow, Fallick, Lonsdale, Perry, Bruntnell (Liberals), Scobie (Labour), and Cochran (Labour), took part in the debate.

MINOR MOTIONS.

On Mr. Minahan's motion, a preliminary motion was carried for the introduction of a bill to restrict the powers of bonds and contracts in reference to what are known as tied houses.

Mr. Price moved an expediency motion for consideration of a bill to amend the law relating to agricultural holdings. The motion was carried.

Mr. Wade moved the adoption of the report of a select committee on the claims of Harry K. Carpenter. He said Carpenter joined the service in 1875. In 1895 a board was appointed to inquire into the service in connection with a general scheme of retrenchment. Carpenter claimed that he agreed to a reduction to £300 on a clear undertaking being given by the board that, in consideration of his value as an accountant, he would be restored to his higher salary as soon as the volume of work and the prosperity of the country warranted it. Though Mr. Carpenter could not produce any document to that effect, his statement was supported by the oral evidence of Mr. Deane and Mr. Hickson, two members of the board. The committee suggested that Carpenter be awarded £400 to satisfy all claims. Carpenter had suffered a nervous breakdown, and the Minister for Works had granted him a sum of, he believed, £50, for which action he (Mr. Wade) expressed his thanks.

"I have the assurance of my colleague that this is a claim that should be granted," said the Premier, "and if the House agrees to the recommendation of the report the Government will honour it."

The motion was carried.

Colonel Onslow moved the appointment of a select committee to inquire into and report on the facts in connection with the appointment in 1909 of Mr. Charles Pike, now employed on the launch Carrington, as to whether he had been deprived of pay, seniority, or other rights. The motion was lost by 25 votes to 27.

Preliminary notice was given by the Premier in connection with the introduction of a bill dealing with the regulation of motor traffic.

The Minister for Works stated that it is his intention to proceed with a bill to grant the Parliamentary franchise in connection with the City Council in time for the forthcoming elections.

The Minister for Agriculture is waiting for an opportunity to introduce a bill dealing with the water hyacinth pest.

The Minister for Works informed Mr. Parkes that the revenue from the Rookwood reservoir railway amounted to £172 18s 3d to 23rd instant. As the line is still under construction, interest has not been paid by the Chief Commissioner.

In reply to Mr. Price, the Minister for Works stated the following amounts had been paid in wages on the North Coast railway since the Government had taken the work over:—Section 2, £43,518; section 3, £30,092; section 4, £63,448.

The Minister for Public Instruction informed Mr. Keegan that 16,909 school children had been medically examined during 1911. It was no part of the duty of a medical inspector to issue prescriptions. Teachers examined their pupils in a preliminary way with a view to making a selection of those pupils whose eyes obviously required attention. These, then, had their eyesight tested by the medical inspector.

The Minister for Works stated that American, German, and English methods were considered in connection with the plant for the Botany brickworks, and tenders obtained for each. The order was placed with Messrs. Sutcliffe, Speakman, and Co., Ltd., Leigh, Lancashire. It was hoped to have the plant in running order in about eight weeks.

In reply to questions by Mr. Morrish, M.L.A., the Chief Secretary gave particulars of the ages of the admissions and readmissions, discharges, and deaths in connection with the hospitals for the insane during the five years ended December, 1911. 2129 cures of individual cases of insanity had been effected as compared with 2053 in the preceding five years.

The final speeches were from Messrs. Millard (Liberal) and Kearsley (Labour), and on a division the amendment to add to the motion was lost by 29 to 15.

The Minister for Works had an amendment to provide for an audit, but it was ruled out under the Standing Orders.

The motion was carried by 30 to 13.

The House adjourned at 10 minutes before midnight.

CITY COUNCIL.

OXFORD-STREET RESUMPTIONS.

At the meeting of the City Council last night the finance committee recommended that the fourth section of the Oxford-street resumption area, between Palmer and Bourke streets, be offered for lease by public auction for 30 years, and on similar terms to the sections already disposed of in this way.

Alderman Walker moved an amendment,—"That the council build on the section, and that the same conditions apply as had already been approved for the third section, with the exception that the rate of interest to be charged be 6 per cent. instead of 4½ per cent., as suggested in Sir Allen Taylor's minute of April 22, and that disturbed tenants be given preference."

Alderman English seconded the amendment, which, after considerable discussion, was lost by 11 votes to 9, the recommendation being adopted.

On the motion of Alderman Lindsay Thompson, it was decided to request the health committee to consider the advisability of drafting a bylaw to prevent expectoration in public halls, theatres, and halls for entertainment.

WORKMEN'S DWELLINGS.

Alderman Mallett moved,—"That the council proceed with the erection of workmen's dwellings in Camperdown Ward."

The Lord Mayor said that there was no need for this motion, as the work was about to be put in hand, and it was accordingly withdrawn.

COROWA SHOW.

FINE EXHIBITION.

COROWA.—The weather for the past few days did not offer much encouragement for a fine day for the opening of the annual reunion of the Corowa Agricultural, Pastoral, and Horticultural Society, which commenced today. However, the day, although overcast and threatening, was fine, and led to a greater number than usual visiting the grounds on the first day. Despite the dry period which prevailed up to June, and which had a more or less injurious effect upon the primary industries, the gathering bids fair to be a remarkably fine all-round exhibition. The entries over all classes equalled those of last year, which was a record, and the major portion of these were forward, so that an interesting and instructive exhibition was available. In the fat sheep sections the society claims first, second, and third prize winners. The prizes offered more than covered the first and second prizes, but the third at the price now ruling did not cover the value. This in a measure prevented a freer exhibition in these classes. However, some very prime animals were penned. There is a continued falling-off in the sheep sections, merinos especially being neglected. This has been a noted feature of the past few years, and the competition from the big owner is not now taking place. It was, however, noticeable that the small owners hold possession of a very fine even type of stud merino sheep, the champion ram and ewe being big-framed, well-woolled animals. For some time past there has been a growing tendency on the part of owners to make the breeding of lambs a part of their industry, and as a result Lincoln rams are growing in favour.

The horses as usual make up the strongest exhibit of the gathering, and the parade illustrated the growing tendency to go in for horse-breeding by landowners in this part of the State. In the blood sections some exceptionally fine animals were brought together in the ring, and the judges experienced some difficulty in making a first. Ponies and hackneys were numerous and of good even quality, and every section was keenly contested. Machinery formed an attractive exhibit, and a deal of attention was given to this part of the ground, where every make of harvesting and farming machinery was represented.

Poultry forms a very extensive exhibit, all the pens being filled, and the competition here was indeed keen. Some very big birds were shown, and a noticeable feature was the success of the amateur breeder over the big breeder. The Wagga Wagga Experimental Farm exhibit, which is a very interesting one, takes up all one side of the grandstand pavilion, and it is attracting a deal of attention from visitors. It shows to a nicety what can be grown in this part of the State, and goes to encourage land owners to experiment in the direction of increasing their products. Pigs did not bring about much competition, but the animals penned were of a most useful type.

In the pavilion flowers created a slightly better competition, and pot plants were attractive. In garden produce, some fine exhibits were forward. Wines were a neglected class, and were far from representing the position which this district takes in wine production. Another class which did not receive that attention which its position warranted, was farm produce. The competition in the grain sections was practically limited to one or two growers.

GRIFFITH INQUIRY.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE COMMISSION?

"Will the Premier inform the House what has become of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the charges made against the Minister for Works?" asked Mr. Parkes in the Assembly yesterday.

Government supporters laughed. Somebody said to Mr. Parkes, "You ought to know!"

"Further," continued Mr. Parkes, "will the Premier extend the inquiry to the first series of issues which were proposed to be put before the commission? and, thirdly, what steps does he intend to take with regard to the commission?"

"I thought the answer I gave on Thursday night would have been sufficient for the hon. member," replied the Premier. "As to what has become of the commission, that is for the commissioner to report. Whether it has been taking evidence or not I do not know.

"The terms of the commission were definitely set forth in the instructions to the District Court Judge who was appointed commissioner. On Thursday I said, in clear and distinct terms, I would not appoint a commission to inquire into questions of policy. Not only myself, but the general public, were under the impression that the hon. member and other hon. members were making charges against the Minister's integrity, charges of collusion, and that was the question we asked the commissioner to inquire into."

Government members cheered the Premier's reply.

"What was the Premier's reason for withdrawing the first three issues which he originally proposed to put before the commission?" asked Mr. Parkes. "If I undertake to bring evidence on those issues, will he resubmit them to the commission?"

"Will the hon. member please give notice of his question?" was the Premier's reply.

CASE OF WILLIAM CHIDLEY.

In the Legislative Assembly yesterday the Premier tabled the report of the Inspector-General of Insane, Dr. Eric Sinclair, in connection with Wm. James Chidley, at present confined in the Hospital for the Insane at Callan Park. Dr. Sinclair stated he was unable to certify in the terms of section 100 of the Lunacy Act "that he is detained in such hospital without sufficient cause."

The report stated that the officers of the reception house who had charge of Chidley in the first instance, and the medical officers of Callan Park under whose care he had subsequently been, were unanimous in the opinion that he was mentally unsound. He (Dr. Sinclair) personally examined Chidley, and had a conversation with him lasting over two hours. Chidley insisted his "discovery" was everything, and that there was no room in life for any other ideas. He stated all the unanswered problems of ethics were answered in his book, and that the world was waiting for it.

The report continued:—"It will be seen that his premises are not based on facts or a scientific basis, but on supposition. Chidley's case comes under the form of mental disease known as systematised delusional insanity, or paranoia, and the growth of his symptoms fits the description of this disease in the text books with considerable accuracy. There can, therefore, be no reasonable doubt that he is properly described as insane, and is consequently suitably placed in a hospital for the insane both for his own protection and as the most suitable means of preventing his condition becoming confirmed and permanent."

The reason that had been urged for Chidley's release, that he was harmless, could be applied to a large majority of the present population of the hospitals, but of itself such reason could not be taken as sufficient. It was the daily practice of the department to discharge patients who were unrecovered and harmless from the hospitals when their friends provided proper care and a suitable home, and Chidley's friends were communicated with, but a definite proposition was not yet available.

DR. SHELDON'S NEW DISCOVERY.

THE TURF.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Kensington this afternoon, and the bill of fare provided for the occasion should provide interesting sport. The number of horses engaged foreshadow large fields, and the track is reported to be splendid going. The transit arrangements include special trams to the racecourse gates, while the ordinary service to Kensington and Long Bay will also be available. The first race is timed to start at 2 p.m., and the results may be anticipated as under:—Maiden Handicap: First division, Volplane or The Arena; second division, Tanbrook or Rifle Queen. Flying Handicap: Shot Tower, Yamba, Haut To. Fourteen-one Handicap: Remembrance, Tessie, Wairoa. Encourage Stakes: Flatina, Dalhasel, Hazelberry. Fourteen Hands Handicap: Pantomime, Lady Beauchamp, Sir Moorefield. Kensington Handicap: Goldlink, Spyglass, Carson. Fourteen-two Handicap: Ragtime, Little Boy, Albra.

The spring racing campaign in this State opens on the 14th prox. at Randwick with Tattersall's Club fixture, and horse-owners have been liberally catered for, inasmuch as the added money for the half-dozen events on the card totals 1650 sovs., while all payments go to increase the stakes. The leading event is the Chelmsford Stakes of 700 sovs., a w.f.a. race, with penalties and allowances, to be run over nine furlongs; there are four handicap events, each endowed with 200 sovs., and a hurdle race with 150 sovs. Nominations will be received by the secretary, Mr. J. B. Olliffe, up to 4 p.m. on Monday, September 2.

Mr. H. Oxenham's Melbourne Cup winner, Acrasia, by Gozo (imp.), with colt foal by Maltster at foot, and in foal to Royal Artillery, has arrived from Woodlands. The mare is looking very well, and this season she will be mated with the St. Simon horse St. Savin (imp.).

The bill of fare framed for Rosehill spring fixture on the 21st prox. stands out as the most attractive that has so far been issued for a suburban meeting. The prize-money aggregates £1600, of which 500 gns. goes to the Rosehill Guineas, for which entries have already been received; 450 sovs. to the Spring Stakes, a w.f.a. race, with penalties and allowances, run over a mile; 250 sovs. to the Rosehill Handicap; and 125 sovs. each to the other three events, which comprise a race over the battens, a sprint event, and a mile race. Nominations close with the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, at 4 p.m. on Monday, the 9th inst; while Mr. M. P. Considine will up to the same hour receive entries in Melbourne.

Sconser and Golden Point were yesterday struck out of the Epsom Handicap and the Metropolitan; and Pistolls, Wavell, and Lily Mostyn out of the Derby, in connection with the A.J.C. Spring Meeting.

The scratchings notified yesterday in connection with the Moorefield August meeting were Kingbrook out of the Kogarah Stakes and Debutante out of the Flying Mile.

The secretary of the Straits Racing Association, Singapore, Straits Settlements, invites applications, which must not arrive at Singapore later than October 1, for the position of official handicapper to that body for the year 1913. The successful applicant will take up his duties on New Year's Day at a salary of 450 Straits dollars (50 guineas) per month, will be required to pay all his travelling and other expenses, and his duties will be to handicap all horses and ponies entered at the recognised race meetings held by the clubs of the association, which at present are two meetings annually in Singapore, Penang, and Selangor, and one in Taiping (Perak). The appointment will be for one year only.

A correspondent writes, complaining of the nuisance created on the metropolitan racecourses by bookmakers' runners and ticktackers, and advocates their suppression. In their haste to convey information to their employers, these individuals rush through the crowd, bumping into and almost knocking down any person in their way, and this reprehensible conduct, he asserts, was particularly noticeable at Warwick Farm on Saturday last.

Our Manilla correspondent telegraphs that the trotting club has decided to hold a meeting on September 18.

Our Byron Bay correspondent wires that, at a meeting held on Monday night, it was decided to form a pony racing and trotting club, the first meeting to be held in November.

Tachreet, Maid of Ury, Rushcutter, and La Pride were yesterday struck out of the Rosehill Guineas and the Hawkesbury Guineas, 1912.

E. A. Connolly has sold Loru to Mr. W. T. Rowe, and the three-year-old colt, Heros, to J. Fielder. Tiercel has also changed hands, wires our Melbourne correspondent.

THE MORNING GALLOPS.

The "magpie" grass track was used at Randwick yesterday morning, and was a trifle heavy, owing to the overnight rain. Haze started proceedings with a nine furlongs' gallop, run in 2m 5s, and Posadas was not extended over a mile. Laurentine put past five furlongs at a useful pace, while Jacamar and St. Medoc, separately, did a similar task. Idyia and Donde 'Esta took 1m 53½s for a mile spin, and Vice-Admiral and Pelrone registered 2m 9s for nine furlongs. Beverage put in a steady once round, and Blairgour spurted at the end of useful work, as did Bronze. Ladies' Man and Cayenne put in a strongly-run mile, while Allegory and Canute slipped over seven furlongs in 1m 38s. Lady Medallist got over a circle at a good, sound pace; while Eurow and Peronella disposed of seven furlongs usefully. Cider and Crown Grant took 1m 49s for a mile, and Lochano covered the same journey strongly. Malt King and Golden Hop were not asked to make time over a circle, but Popinjay reeled off six furlongs in 1m 21½s. Duke Foote did steady work, while Odist and Mashtun ran nine furlongs in 2m 5½s. Danaus and Royal Actor went strongly over seven furlongs, and Golden Gauntlet did similar work. Elystan and Bernard made no time over nine furlongs, and Almed ran a strong mile, as did Torula, and Buneewa. Menes did a steady round, and Cisco accounted for a mile in 1m 53½s. Nymphia registered 1m 24s for six furlongs; while Wyealla and Embracer ran the same journey usefully. Ioli cast three-quarters of a mile behind in 1m 23½s, and Irishman went strongly over the same journey. Perissa and Limelight registered 1m 32s for seven furlongs, while Irishwoman and Maroomba covered five furlongs in 1m 8½s. Golden Shore defeated Langour over a furlong further journey in 1m 22s, and several others pottered about.

Havocorn spurted five furlongs in good style on the cinders, and Tartania occupied 1m 21½s for a six furlong trip on the tan.

CAULFIELD AND MELBOURNE CUPS. LATEST SCRATCHINGS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Meritus, Psyttyx, Princess Melton, and True Form have been scratched for the Caulfield Cup, and Meritus has been withdrawn from all engagements at the V.R.C. Spring Meeting.

DEATH OF LADURLAD.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Mr. C. E. M'Dougall, of the Lyndhurst Stud Farm, has had the misfortune to lose his imported blood stallion Ladurlad. The horse was kicked by the racing mare Laverna, causing a compound comminuted fracture of the off foreleg. The immediate destruction of the stallion was ordered, and this was carried out.

Ladurlad was bred by Lord Rosebery in 1900, and was by Ladas (Derby 1894) from Tressure, by Bend Or from Bonnie Jean, by Macaroni from Bonnie Agnes, by Blair Athol. He did not prove successful on the turf in England, and was purchased for the Lyndhurst Stud by Mr. M'Dougall in 1906. As might have been expected from such a beautifully-bred horse, he sired a host of winners during his time at the stud, among whom were The Lad (Queensland Cup), Braw Laddie, and Maritoria (Q.T.C. Derby), Yeena Lad, Black and Gold, Royal Ned, Royal Lad, Ladas, La-de-da, Ladowra, Braw Lady, Cowl, Lazy Lad, and Rosalad. Ladurlad was only 12 years old, and his untimely death means not only a serious loss to Mr. M'Dougall, but to the breeding of thoroughbreds in the northern State.

CYCLING AND MOTORING.

NOTES AND NEWS.

The first general meeting of the newly-organised Chauffeurs' Union is to be held at the Trades Hall, Goulburn-street, to-night, at 8.15 o'clock. Mr. Morrish, M.L.A., and other speakers have promised to address the meeting. The officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Members of the Annandale Bicycle Club will hold a tally run to National Park this week-end. A 20-mile road race is to be held on next Club Saturday.

A cycle car propelled by an 8-10 h.p. engine was recently driven 45 miles 278 yards in an hour on the Brooklands track (Eng.). The total weight of the machine was 412lb.

New figures have also been established in England by a motor cyclist, J. Grizzwell, for a continuous six days' run on the road. The total distance covered in this time was 3080 miles. This is 72 miles further than the previous record. During the run all the working parts of the machine—a Rudge—were sealed, to prevent replacements. Out of the six days' test the record-breaker only had seven hours' sleep, but he finished in splendid condition.

The annual New South Wales Dunlop road race, from Goulburn to Sydney (131 miles), for prizes totalling £170, has drawn 143 entries. The Sydney management are very pleased with the entry, as it was unexpected. The most gratifying feature is the number of young untried riders, with no performances, who are on the list. This fact may probably result in the unearthing of a new champion. It is a strenuous race, and creates a lot of local interest in country centres.

The struggle between the teams representing the Western Suburbs and the Eastern Suburbs Bicycle Clubs in the final of the N.S.W. Cyclists' Union's Dunlop inter-club premiership, to be run over 20 miles on the Homebush course on Saturday, promises to be one of the most exciting yet seen. The Western Suburbs were winners in 1907 and 1909, but so far the Eastern Suburbs have not won a final. Opinions are evenly divided as to which will prove the better team this year.

ROLLER SKATES HOCKEY.

The first round of the New South Wales Roller-skating Hockey Competition was concluded last week, and the table below gives the positions of the various teams. The following matches will take place during the week:—N. Sydney v St. George, Wanderers v Crystal, at Acme Rink, Rockdale; Parramatta v Chatswood, Katoomba v Kogarah. Wanderers play on Wednesday, Katoomba on Saturday; all other matches will be played on Tuesday nights at 9 p.m. St. George, 11 points; Katoomba, 10; Kogarah, 9; Wanderers, 8; Parramatta, 7; Chatswood, 5; Crystal, 4; N. Sydney, 5.

ICE HOCKEY.

The second match of the annual series of ice hockey contests played between New South Wales and Victoria was decided at the Glaciarium last night, and was won by the home team by 3 goals to 1.

STADIUM TUG-OF-WAR.

Interesting additions to the entries for the international tug of war at the Stadium carnival have been made this week. The Russian team has been completed, and its entry lodged. Another European team late in the field is the Finnish combination. The English pullers are at work, the quality and condition of its members proving a surprise. It will have to be reckoned as a serious rival to the Australians, the Scotch, the Irish, and the New Zealanders. The approval extended by Admiral Sir George King-Hall to the entry of naval teams for the special service championship has stimulated the interest of the men of the squadron, and the formation of a team from the Cambrian brings the representation of the British ships up to four teams. Entries are still coming to hand for the all-comers' championship of New South Wales, the amateur contest, and for the single pull championship. Fitzpatrick has repeated his challenge to any team in Australia, and the Hackenberg brothers are likely to have an opportunity for the match suggested. In all between 50 and 60 teams will compete during the carnival fortnight.

BILLIARDS.

LINDRUM v HARVERSON.

AUSTRALIAN'S GREAT EFFORT.

Lindrum showed splendid form in his match of 16,000 up against Harverson, at Billiards, Ltd., yesterday, and finished the day only 1798 points in arrears.

When play began at the afternoon session Harverson led by 3386 points, the scores being 9332 against 5946. The attendance was good, and soon became enthusiastic when Lindrum displayed the form that had been lacking in the previous 15 sessions. He opened with a beautiful run of 174, and this he followed up with a magnificent break of 314, that included several masterly strokes. Harverson responded with 104—his best effort during the afternoon. Lindrum soon came again, and three breaks before the adjournment yielded 194, 198, and 122. He scored 1156 points against Harverson's 355.

The scores at the close of the afternoon session were:—

Harverson	9633
Lindrum	7102

When play was resumed, the young Australian was 2536 points in arrears. He was in play with 50 unfinished, and carried his score to 206 before narrowly missing a difficult shot. Harverson played prettily for 50, and then Lindrum raised great enthusiasm with another break of 300—his second that day. With wonderful accuracy he scored off the red, the points coming at a rapid rate, until he had compiled 312. His opponent played with great skill, but his visits to the table were brief. Lindrum's next efforts were 151, 144, and 112. Harverson reached three figures on one occasion during the evening's play, when he put up exactly a century by clever all-round play. Some of his touches evoked great applause. His best breaks were 50, 71, 77, 100, and 88. Interest in the match heightened considerably as a result of Lindrum's rapid return to form, and at the close of the day's play he was but 1798 points behind his opponent, with a break of 30 unfinished. He was heartily applauded at the finish for his big effort. He had scored 2313 points in two sessions.

The closing scores were:—

Harverson	10,052
Lindrum (in play)	8,259

NATIONAL CLUB TOURNAMENT.

The above club's tournament was continued last night.

L. Tout (rec 40) beat G. Hart (rec 65) by 17.

PILLIGA, Tuesday.

The School of Arts billiard tournament was decided last night, J. M'Callum winning by 4 points.

BOXING.

O'DONNELL DEFEATS TOWNSEND.

At the Gaiety Athletic Club last night Les O'Donnell knocked out Tommy Townsend in the twentieth round.

SULLIVAN v ZANDERS.

Jack Sullivan, of Newtown, has been matched with Ernie Zanders, of America. The contest will take place at the Stadium on Saturday, September 14.

LOCKHART SHOW.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

LOCKHART.—Under unfavourable weather conditions, from the standpoint of a successful show, the exhibition of the Lockhart A. and P. Society has opened. On Tuesday, early in the morning, rain came down in torrents, creating such an abundance of mud under foot that at times it was almost impossible for pedestrians to keep a foothold, while for vehicular traffic the roads for miles around are almost impassable. Notwithstanding all this, the farmers' faces were wreathed in smiles, and they view with satisfaction the rain as an insurance against a possible crop failure.

The show this year is hardly up to former ones; not that there is not an increase in entries, but the fact that dry conditions prevailed till a month or two ago has left its mark on the stock. The rain had the effect of keeping many exhibits away, and when a start was made with the horses there were several entrants that did not parade. The same applies to the sheep and cattle, and many of the pens are empty. The feature of the show is the splendid muster of draft stock, especially in mares, the most successful exhibitor being Mr. W. Smith, who secured a number of prizes, including the prize for best mare with Model, Mr. Lawrence's Kirkaldy obtaining a similar distinction amongst the stallions. Blood horses were generally disappointing, and the paucity of entries suggests a lack of interest in the thoroughbreds. Carriage horses generally did not have that quality one would expect, although there were exceptions to this. The heavy condition of the ring prevented animals being seen to advantage.

Sheep were poorly represented, there being only entries from one breed in the merino classes, while there were a few longwools present. Owing to the weather conditions cattle were very few in number. In fact, there seems to be a declining interest in show cattle exhibits. In the farm produce, any merit was confined to wheat and chaff, and there was plenty of competition, which is a healthy sign. Outside this there was no display of farm produce, although in the horticulture section there was a little fruit. Awards:—

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

An unusually strong programme has been arranged for the Actors' Association matinee at Her Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday, September 10, when the list of items definitely announced will include:—Florence Young, Celia Ghiloni, and Reginald Roberts in the Trio from "Cavalleria Rusticana;" Hugh Buckler and Violet Paget in the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet;" W. S. Percy, Jessie Ramsay, and Edward Wynn in the Japanese operetta, "Cherry Blossom;" H. R. Roberts and Jennie Pollock in the closet scene from "Hamlet;" Sybil Arundale, Amy Murphy, Edmund Sherras, Jack Cannot, and Harry Halley in vocal selections; Hilda Spong, William Desmond, and Patrick in "A Friend in Need;" Fred. Niblo in a monologue; Walter Bentley, supported by Messrs. Halley, Welch, Lawrence, Glynne, and Sheppard, and Misses Leigh, Harvey and Dunn, in the dinner scene from "David Garrick;" Harry Corson Clarke, Robert Gregg, and Margaret Dale-Owen in a sketch, "The House Divided;" W. Talleur Andrews, Dorothy Brunton, Vivien Talleur, and Victor Prince, in an original springtime idyll, "The Forest of Pan."

This afternoon the last matinee performance but one of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" will be given at the Theatre Royal, where Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton are now making their last ten appearances as Falstaff and Mistress Ford in Shakespeare's jovial comedy of old English life and manners.

At Her Majesty's Theatre the Haymarket Theatre Company is giving a few delightful performances of "You Never Can Tell," a clever and vivacious comedy of the day, which playgoers should not miss. In addition to the regular matinee to-day, there will be an afternoon representation to-morrow in honour of resident professional artists, and the farewell will be on Friday.

The New Comic Opera Company will open on Saturday at Her Majesty's Theatre for a return season of Johann Strauss's sparkling operetta, "Nightbirds," when the leading artists of the J. C. Williamson combination, including Misses Florence Young, Sybil Arundale, and Dorothy Brunton, Messrs. W. S. Percy, Talleur Andrews, Reginald Roberts, Jack Cannot, and Victor Prince will reappear in their original characters. The plan is at Paling's.

At the Criterion Theatre a fourth matinee will be given to-day of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford." The new farce-comedy, with a smart company, headed by the American artists, Messrs. Fred. Niblo, Harry Corson Clarke, James H. Manning, Misses Josephine Cohan, Margaret Dale-Owen, and Marian Dunn (Australian), is crowding the playhouse nightly, and a long run is anticipated.

There will be a matinee performance to-day at the Palace Theatre of "A Romance of Ireland," and in the evening Mr. Allen Doone will appear before the Hibernian Society of New South Wales, whose members will assemble in force to enjoy the pretty love-comedy, and to listen to Mr. Doone in "The Low-backed Car," "Dear Old Ireland," and other national ballads. The farewell of Mr. Doone and Miss Edna Keeley will be on Friday night.

On Saturday, at the Palace Theatre, Miss Madge Hore will appear in the title role of the new Australian drama, "The Girl from Wayback," under the direction of Philip Lytton, Ltd. The popular actress will be supported by a specially selected company. The new drama, which is by Philip Lytton and W. E. Vincent, is brimful of stirring incident from "outback," and at the same time is devoid of bushranging melodrama, a fact which will recommend it to playgoers. The new play should be anticipated with interest.

At the Adelphi Theatre "The Girl Without a Home" continues to attract audiences with its touching story of a girl's adventures in London, during which the action embraces such central incidents as a railway accident, as the result of which the train catches fire. This scenic sensation is applauded nightly. The next new production of the Marlow Dramatic Company will be "Her Forbidden Marriage."

At the Tivoli Theatre, both afternoon and evening to-day, the Rickards' Company will include such new star attractions as Chinko, the juggler; Miss Minnie Kaufmann, lady trick cyclist; the Schenck Brothers, sensational equilibrists; Rich and Rich, duettists and dancers; the three Sisters Sprightley, in burlesque; Miss Jessie Stuart, vocal comedienne; the Staverdale Quintette, in banjo and harp specialities; Fred Bluett, Fanny Powers, and other favourite artists.

Carrie Moore will conclude her season at the National Amphitheatre to-day, when she will appear at the matinee and evening performances. The Olrac Company will repeat their clever acrobatic comedy sketch, "Fun in a Drawing-room," an unusually clever performance. Their first appearance on Monday night was a marked success, for the act is an unbroken run of brilliant and original acrobatics and grotesque and irresistible humour. Varying in size and "make-up," they resemble each other in their apparent absence of vertebrae and the surprising manner in which they fall about the stage, like so many logs of wood, with a noise, as Alice would have said, as of all the fire-irons falling into the fender. Lalie Brooke, Victoria Cross, and the three Renaux will contribute up-to-date specialities. To-morrow evening Budd and Clare and Marguerite and Stanley will close, and on Saturday next the Wynfords, "world's champion jumpers," will make their debut. Mable and Malfe, Grace Compton, and George Collins will then rejoin.

MME. KIRBY LUNN'S SEASON.

Mme. Kirby Lunn, whose season commences in the Town Hall on Thursday evening, September 12, created the part of Dalila in "Samson and Dalila" at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, and is regarded as an incomparable Amneris in "Aida," and, altogether, she has sung the leading contralto roles in 28 operas. She possesses a voice of striking beauty, of which the "Globe" says:—"Such powers as those possessed by Mme. Kirby Lunn are not vouchsafed by nature to more than two or three singers in a generation. Fortunately, Mme. Lunn is not one of those singers who depend on voice alone, for she is a fine artiste, as well as a rare vocalist." Mme. Lunn on her Australian tour, which is under the direction of J. and N. Tait, is supported by the brilliant French violinist, Andre de Ribaupierre; Mr. Andrew Shanks, a baritone from the London Grand Opera House; and Mr. William Murdoch, Victorian pianist. Box plans open on Thursday, September 5, at Nicholson's.

MR. F. WHITLOW'S FAREWELL.

Mr. Frederick Whitlow was well supported both by concert-artists of merit and by the general public at his farewell entertainment at St. James' Hall last night, when a capital programme was presented, under the stage-direction of Mr. A. Bertram Flohm. The latter had to announce the regretted absence through indisposition of Miss Leah Myers, but there was an abundance of good things to allay the disappointment caused by this unavoidable defection. Mr. Whitlow was naturally the most prominent figure. He showed a great deal of melodramatic intensity in "Coquette," cleverly and humorously suggested various phases of intoxication in "Coming Home," and in character as a rustic mourning in sad reflection on the loss of his wife years ago delivered "Eighteen and Twenty-three." In the lastnamed there was a discrepancy between the assumed voice, which was that of extreme old age, and the face, which was free from lines, but this was due to the exigencies of an occasion which forbade delay. The piano part to these musical monologues was skilfully played by Mr. Charles Phillip. One of Mr. Whitlow's happiest efforts was "The Young Man Waited" (Anon), his rapid pantomime in which was decidedly clever, and caused hearty laughter. The gaol-bird's story "Caged" was also recited with a vivid feeling for character; and the young actor joined with Mr. Charles Walsh and Miss Benita Pascoe-Pearce in an effective rendering of an incident of war, entitled "A Sacrifice." This won the players enthusiastic recalls. The musical side of the programme was particularly strong, as it was furnished by Misses Daisy Street, Millie Gallagher, Geraldine Ward, Eileen Rogers, Hilda Thorndyke, Messrs. Chas. Phillip, and Sir. M'Donald.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

The second of the Lawrence Campbell series of dramatic and humorous recitals will take place on Monday next at the Concordia Hall, Elizabeth-street. An interesting programme will be submitted, consisting of a scene from "Hamlet," several humorous sketches, and new musical monologues, as well as the dramatic story, "The Village Priest" (by request). Assisting artist will be Herr A. Camphausen. Plan at Nicholson's.

The Dandies at North Sydney are playing to splendid business, and their Thursday night at Warringa Hall, Neutral Bay, has proved a great attraction in that district.

OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

At the Princess and Olympia theatres large attendances have witnessed West's exclusive film, "The Earl and the Girl." The story is one of great interest, the plot is well laid, and the film includes a number of fine scenes. The ballroom scene and the series of hunting views are specially interesting. Incidents in the life of the late General Booth are also included in the programme. On Monday night a Vitagraph special, "The Redemption Ben Farland," was shown to appreciative audiences. There will be a change of programme to-morrow night, and a matinee is announced for Saturday. The Glaciarium season will begin on September 7.

The two big features in Spencer's pictorial programme now being presented at the Lyceum are "Fra Diavolo," a three-reel adaptation of Auber's famous work, and "Fortunes of a Composer," an exclusive vitagraph portrayal, dealing with unrewarded genius. Other subjects are "Detective Dorothy" (dramatic), Pathe's "Australian Animated Gazette" (topical), "The Evolution of a Duck Egg" (educational), "Making Briar Pipes" (industrial), "Katchem Kate," "Night Clerk's Nightmare," "Polidor's Love Letter," and "Percy's Diminishing Bike" (comedies). There will be a matinee exhibition to-day, commencing at 2.30, and a change of programme to-morrow night.

The J. D. Williams theatres are drawing big audiences, and an excellent quartet of programmes is being presented. At the Crystal Palace this week the items screened include, beside a series of dramatic and educational pictures, various illustrations of local events, such as the Wagga Show and Cup Meeting, while the diving feats of Neptuna are an additional attraction. "A Temporary Truce," a sensational story of the great American desert and its rough inhabitants, is the star feature of the Lyric programme, while at the Empress Theatre the quondam Colonial No. 2, the favourite film is "Into the Jungle," a thrilling story with a love motive. At the Colonial Theatre is screened, among other subjects, a sensational romance of the sea, entitled "Lieutenant Rose and the Robbers of Fingal's Cave."

At the American Picture Palace, in Pitt-street, the current programme includes a number of interesting films. Among those which appear to achieve most popularity with the audience are "Nanine, the Artist's Wife," the romance of a poor girl, who marries above her station; "A Temporary Truce," and "The Eye That Never Sleeps."

The last four nights of the ice-skating at the Glaciarium are at any rate to be crowded with incident. To-night Prof. Allander or a pupil will give an exhibition of fancy ice-skating, while to-morrow evening will take place the final interstate hockey match between Victoria and New South Wales. A grand gymkhana of ice sports has been specially arranged for Friday night, and on Saturday a last frolic on the ice will leave skaters with eager anticipations of the re-opening of the Glaciarium in May next.

"Ireland To-day" is the name given to an entertainment being organised in Dublin, for the purpose of making an extensive tour of the Australian colonies, the object being to show the different phases of life, the industries, and the scenery of Ireland, by means of the cinematograph. Views in and about Dublin and other important cities and towns, also numerous pictures of the Killarney district, County Wicklow, and the wild Western counties, Donegal and Galway, with their accompanying quaint cottage industries and mode of living, are all realistically depicted. It is expected that arrangements will be completed to commence the tour before the end of the year.

The city organist, Mr. Ernest Truman, will give a recital at the Town Hall at 3.15 p.m. to-day. The programme will consist of classic and popular items. Mr. Truman has been re-appointed city organist for a further term of three years by the municipal council.

The Lord Mayor, at the Old Bailey, excused a grand juryman named Houghton, on the ground that he was taking part in a cricket week. Mr. Houghton declared that this was his last season, and he desired to get as much of the game as possible. "That seems a reasonable excuse," the Lord Mayor observed.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

UNION'S REGISTRATION.

The Commissioner of the Federal Public Service has raised objections to the registration of the Australian Telegraph and Telephone Construction and Maintenance Union under the Federal Arbitration Public Service Act. The grounds of the objection are that the association is not an association capable of registration under the Act, in that it is not an organisation of employees in the Public Service of the Commonwealth, as under the rules of the association, persons who are not employees of the Commonwealth Public Service, may be members; that the prescribed conditions for registration have not been carried out by the association.

CUTTERS and TRIMMERS' CONDITIONS.

The existing award of the Clothing (Cutters and Trimmers') Board will expire in September. Preparations for a new award are now being made. New claims have been drafted, and adopted for submission to the board constituted under the new Act.

Under the new claims the minimum wage asked for journeymen stock cutters and journeymen trimmers is 75s per week, and for order cutters 85s per week. The hours of labour are to be 44 per week, and there is to be no overtime worked. Any work performed on holidays is to be paid at double rates. The wages of apprentices are also fixed.

Mr. Lynch, the secretary of the Cutters and Trimmers' Union, says that arrangements are well advanced for the wages board case, and the union will lose no time in securing consideration of its claims. It had been hoped that a conference with the employers would have settled a basis of conditions, but the employers had not acquiesced in the union's application for a conference.

RAILWAY WORKERS' UNION.

The Minister for Works has written to the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association stating that in reply to the request for the provision of first aid appliances on the railway works under his department, he has issued instructions for these to be installed.

CLERKS' CONDITIONS.

The Treasurer, Mr. J. H. Cann, is to receive a deputation from the United Clerks' Union to-day, in regard to the conditions of temporary clerks employed in the departments under his jurisdiction. It will be pointed out by the deputation that whilst the wages of all other classes of employees have been increased, the wages of temporary clerks are the same to-day as 15 years ago. Other conditions will also be mentioned.

A meeting of clerks employed in newspaper offices, who are members of the Clerks' Union, is to be held this week to elect a committee, whose duty it will be to draft a log of wages and conditions to govern the employment of clerks in newspaper offices. When the log is ready, and has been adopted, a request will be made to the various newspaper proprietors for a conference. A committee of clerks employed in retail establishments is also being called together to draft claims to be placed before the board appointed to consider the conditions of office assistants in shops. Negotiations are still proceeding to secure a conference in regard to the conditions of shipping clerks. Arrangements are now being made to bring the conditions of clerks in banks and similar institutions under the notice of the Commonwealth Arbitration Court.

EIGHT-HOUR PROCESSION.

The order of the Eight-hour Procession, which takes place on October 7, was decided at the last meeting of the union, at which Mr. E. H. Farrar presided. Some dissatisfaction has been expressed in previous years owing to the grouping of some of the bodies, but this year the building trades, iron trades, wood trades, shipping, and so on, are to be, as far as possible, placed together. Seventy-seven unions will appear in the procession, amongst the notable additions being the Rockchoppers' Union, which has already achieved less than an eight-hour day, its members working six hours merely.

His Excellency the State Governor has accepted the invitation of the Eight-hour Committee to be present at the banquet to be held on October 5.

WAGES BOARD IGNORED.

The committee of the Master Builders' Association object to the Harbour Trust having raised the wages of a section of its employees from 9s to 10s without consulting the wages board.

The matter was referred to at the last meeting of the Builders' Association.

The president said that if the trust and the Public Works Department were allowed to go behind the back of the proper tribunal and raise wages as they thought fit, the builders would be compelled to do the same. It was reported that the Harbour Trust had done this. If that were so, what became of the wages board? He thought the Government ought to be the first to uphold the industrial laws.

It was decided to allow the matter to stand over pending further information from the trust.

WEST SYDNEY FEDERAL COUNCIL.

The annual meeting of the West Sydney Federal Council was held last week. Mr. G. C. Gillespie occupied the chair.

The returning officer, Mr. J. J. News, read a letter from Mr. J. Grant, secretary of the P.L.L. executive stating that Mr. W. M. Hughes's nomination had been received and duly endorsed, and added to the list of selected candidates. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Mr. D. Guihen; vice-presidents, Mr. G. C. Gillespie and Mr. R. M'Killop; treasurer, Mr. Cos Mooney; asst. secretary, Mr. Jas. Bollard; secretary, Mr. J. J. News. It was resolved that an executive committee of seven be appointed to assist the officers.

BREADCARTERS' BOARD.

A number of witnesses were examined last night by the Breadcarters' Wages Board. Mr. G. Flannery was chairman, and Messrs. White and Freeman (employers' representatives), and Larter and Pye (employees), were present.

Mr. Craft conducted the case for the employees, and Mr. Dyer appeared for the employers.

The bulk of the evidence dealt with the increase in the cost of living during the past three years.

Evidence of master bakers favourable to the claims of the union was taken, and the case on behalf of the men was closed.

The employers' case will be opened at the next sitting.

UNION AMALGAMATION.

The trend of unionism is now towards amalgamation, and during the last 12 months or so there has been a marked linking up of the various organisations. In the meat industry, for instance, the local bodies are part of a federation extending throughout Australia, and it is now proposed to carry the amalgamation process a step further.

At the conference of the Australasian Meat Industry Employees' Federation, which was held recently in Hobart, the amalgamation of bush workers, proposed by the Australian Workers' Union, was approved, and it was decided to ask that body to allow the meat industry employers to be represented at the next amalgamation conference, to be held in Sydney in January. Messrs. Styles, M.L.C. (South Australia), Anderson (Victoria), Crampton and Gibbs (Queensland), and T. Furse (N.S.W.) were appointed to represent the federation at the conference.

GAS WORKERS UNEMPLOYED.

As a result of the refusal of the Government to grant the power to extend the capital of the Australian Gaslight Company, 300 gas workers are said to be out of employment.

Mr. Rawlins, the secretary of the Gas Employees' Union, states that the sooner the power to increase the capital was granted the sooner the men would be in work. Three hundred men were out owing to the fact that the borrowing powers of the company had not been extended. In his opinion it was the duty of the Government to find work for the men, seeing that its action had resulted in their unemployment.

BARMEN AND BARMAIDS.

At a meeting of Barmen and Barmaids, who are members of the Hotel, Club, and Restaurant Employees' Union, the situation in regard to the foundation of a new union for barmen and barmaids was discussed, and the following resolutions were carried:—"That this meeting of barmen and barmaids expresses the fullest confidence in the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' Union, and pledges itself to do all in its power to assist the union in its present efforts to improve the conditions pertaining to bar work, in common with all other workers in the trade. That all members of the union at this meeting assembled pledge themselves to do all in their power to bring all barmen and barmaids into this union, and to assist to the best of their ability the executive officers to that end."

HARBOUR TRUST EMPLOYEES.

A deputation from the Sydney Harbour Trust Dredge Employees' Union waited upon the Minister for Works, in the absence of the Treasurer, at Parliament House last night.

The gravamen of the complaint of the union was that when they went over to the Harbour Trust from the Public Works Department they were promised a continuance of the good conditions which they had been accustomed to, and that the promise had not been kept. The complaints were in respect of pay, leave, and relief duty in certain circumstances outlined.

Mr. Griffith promised to lay the matters complained of before the Treasurer.

MINERS' WAGES.

KALGOORLIE (W.A.), Sunday.

General meetings of the various unions which have combined for the purpose of negotiating for a new wages agreement for the mining industry will be held within the next few days to consider the terms offered by the Chamber of Mines. The result of the deliberations will be passed on to a conference of combined unions, to be held on September 1. Strictest secrecy is maintained regarding the nature of the chamber's offer, but it is understood to depart but little from the existing agreement.

ENGINE-DRIVERS' WAGES.

SUBSTANTIAL INCREASES SOUGHT.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The executive of the Federal Council of the Federated Engine-drivers and Firemen's Association of Australasia have submitted a log to the mining companies, and if a settlement be not effected between the parties the demands will be considered by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration. The log provides for substantial increases of wages.

MELBOURNE PRINTERS' GRIEVANCE.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The members of the general chapel at the Government Printing Office held their annual smoke concert last night. Mr. A. J. Curtis (the father), who presided, said their greatest grievance was the question of hours. The Sydney Government printers worked but 46½ hours weekly, and the men at the Tasmanian office worked 47 hours weekly. The Victorian printers were not unreasonable in asking for the same hours as those worked by their Sydney brethren.

ROWING.

ULMARRA HUNDRED.

GRAFTON, Tuesday.

There is no lack of financial support for the Ulmarra Hundred sculling race, and present appearances point to the regatta being a great success. Word has been received that W. Beach, P. Kemp, and many other supporters of rowing in the metropolis will be present. Miss Kemp will also be amongst the visitors, and it is probable that a ladies' race will be put on the programme if Miss Larsen can be induced to come over from Woodburn.

Sally, the pet monkey of the 2nd Battalion Grenadier Guards, stationed at Windsor, escaped recently, and entered the infants' school opposite the barracks, taking with her a small kitten she had picked up on the way. Then, still hugging the kitten, she climbed on a roof, but was finally lured into captivity with a banana.

MR. CYRIL MACKAY, the popular and talented leading man of the Anderson Company, writes in praise of RED SPRUCE INHALANT.

King's Theatre,
Melbourne,
July 29, 1912.

Dear Mr. Haynes,—
I wish to thank you for sending me the "Red Spruce Inhalant" so promptly. I was indeed glad to receive it, as I find it most efficacious. If I should fail to stipulate when ordering in future what size, please always send a LARGE bottle, as I must not be without it—it is practically a necessity in my profession.
Yours faithfully,
CYRIL MACKAY.

Testimony such as this from a gentleman whose profession requires freedom from throat troubles is convincing evidence of the value of this remedy for sore throats, head colds, catarrh, and influenza.

Price, 1/6 per bottle; posted, 1/8.

A GENUINE REMEDY
BY DANNEBROG.

Hundreds of so-called remedies for Superfluous Hairs have been offered to afflicted women, but only DANNEBROG, a Danish Remedy, has stood the test of time, and it is remarkable also how many cases previously treated by electrical methods come to the Dannebrog Institute, and are there successfully attended to by Madame Frokjar, of the Royal Massage College, Copenhagen, and her staff of skilled operators. Success is shown in each case before payment on easy terms is arranged. Madame Frokjar places all her experience at the service of her clients, and holds herself fortunate that in nine years of testing her remedy she has relieved hundreds of women of annoying and disfiguring hairs. Dannebrog is now operating in the principal cities of the Commonwealth, and talented women who have tested it state that there is no better remedy, or one more pleasant, and at the same time destructive, in its effects. Country clients treated by post. Only one fee.

WOMEN PRAISE DANNEBROG.

CHIT-CHAT ABOUT THE FASHIONS—AND THEIR COST AT SNOW'S.

Snow's is not just "a hole in the wall"—it is a Specialty Store for women. Nor is it merely a place where Drapery is sold. It is where you can BUY the very best and newest wearing Apparel and house Drapery at Sydney's lowest prices. No one has ever yet undersold Snow's.

Fancy wearing a Jabot at the Back of your Neck. Paris has decided it is quite the natural place for a Jabot. It is an innovation, however, that has NOT yet arrived at Snow's. But here is the new Spade Collar in Muslin Embroidery at 1/11½. It is quite Trumps in New Neckwear. Elsewhere you will probably be asked 2/6.

13-button length White Glace Kid Gloves. Snow's price, 3/3 pair.

100 dozen Ladies' Lace and Mercerised Lisle Hose in Tan, Saxe, Reseda, Grey, Black, Amethyst, Sand shade, Brown and Sky, 8½d pair. Worth 1/ to 1/6 pair. Why are they only 8½d pair? Because the sharp eyes of the Factory inspector discovered little faults in the knitting. Come, see if you can find them—they're hardly discernible.

Fancy Striped All-silk Ribbons—the very newest Spring Goods 4½ to 6 inches wide, and lovely quality, 8½d yard. They would be Good Value if marked 1/9 yard.

Heavy Nottingham Torchon Lace for Ladies' Underskirts—6 inches wide, 3/11 dozen. Insertions to match, 2½ inches wide, 2½d yard.

WHAT YOU WEAR

is not such an important matter as how you wear it. It all depends upon whether THE foundation is correct. Of course, you know the foundation is the strictly correct corset, in regard o design, shape, and style.

Whatever type of figure you have, the beautiful new models in the famous ranges of the celebrated will give you an assurance of the highest artistic attainment in figure formation, enhancing its charm of contour to an exquisite degree, and giving your dresses a decidedly smart and chic effect. Just ask your Draper to show you Royal "P.D." Models.

ROYAL "P.D."
RUSTLESS CORSETS

GOOD-VALUE TAILORING.

Men who wear "E. T. Walsh" Suits will tell you that they are good investments.

They wear so long, look so well, and fit so comfortably and perfectly that those who wear them aver that they get their money's worth many times over.

Right now, this Spring, is a good time to find out about our clothes. The New Season's Suitings are unexcelled for individuality, style, and reliability. We show them in daylight.

E.T.WALSH, EXPERT TAILOR.
122 Pitt-street, corner of Rowe-street, Sydney.

HOW ARE YOUR EYES?

When reading a few chapters of a book—when you are knitting or sewing—when trying to distinguish a distant object—when writing—do your eyes feel that you are straining them? Do they feel heavy?

There are positive signs from nature that you need glasses at once—and that you should lose no time in seeking the advice of a qualified Optician.

If you come to us to have your eyes tested you have the satisfaction of knowing that we are qualified Opticians—our Mr. H. S. Jerdan having passed the highest degrees for optics in London.

And we never advise a client to wear glasses if our examination reveals that these are not necessary.

And if you should get glasses we guarantee to give you entire satisfaction or your money back.

WINTER AND THE COMPLEXION.

Now that the winter is here, fair women who possess tender skins are made miserable, but no lady need have the slightest trouble with her skin if she gives it scientific and judicious treatment. If you would keep your skin soft, clear, and free from blemish during the winter, you must use Valaze, the invaluable Skin Food, nourisher, and beautifier, which is as indispensable in autumn and winter, as in spring and summer.

Valaze has wonderful powers of cleansing, nourishing, and making the skin beautiful. It is Valaze that renders the flabby face firm, bright, and clear. It is Valaze that produces a smooth, transparent [illegible] and all ugly ravages of time, illness, weather, [illegible] rapidly removed, and the face becomes fair and radiant, another good point about Valaze is that it [illegible] absolutely non hairproducing. Valaze in Jars, 2/6 and 6/6, 6d postage.

Valaze Soap, pure and wholesome, perfect for toilet use. It soothes, cleanses, and softens even the most sensitive skin. Lasts several months, 2/2 posted. Valaze Powder, especially beneficial for greasy, over moist, and oily skins. Novena Poudre for dry and normal skins. 2/-, 3/-, and 5/- a box.

Red Noses and Flushed Faces, a great winter disfigurement, can be relieved and modified by the use of Valaze Liquidine, which acts directly on the pores, instantly dispels flushing, redness, greasiness, coarseness, and shine, and imparts a soft, dull, white appearance to the skin. 5/- and 8/6, 6d postage.

Novena Cerate, a worthy auxiliary of Valaze, is a perfect skin cleanser without the use of soap and water. For skins that are too sensitive and intolerant of soap and water, Novena Cerate will be found a perfect winter treatment. It soothes, softens, cleanses, and preserves the skin, as no other preparation. 2/- and 3/6, 4d postage.

Valaze Blackhead and Open Pore Cure instantly removes those blemishes, closes the pores, refines the skin's texture, overcomes greasiness, coarseness, pimples, blotches, and muddiness, and assists in preserving the health and beauty of the skin. [illegible] posted.

All Valaze preparations obtainable from leading chemists, or direct from Helena Rubinstein Prop., Ltd., Valaze Institute, Dept. D, 158 Pitt-street, Sydney, or 274 Collins-street, Melbourne.
